GERMAN PUBLIC IS ALARMED

Fear Of Military Manoeuvres

PEOPLE HAVE NO DESIRE FOR WAR

Helpless Against Government Plans

United Press Association-Copyright. (Received August 17, 1.15 a.m.)

LONDON, August 16.

VOL. I. No. 146.

Reuter's Berlin correspondent states that the public is becoming alarmed at the extent of the military manoeuvres.

The widespread apprehension may fairly be attributed to a wholesale dread of war. It cannot be denied that the Germans have no desire for a military adventure.

This, and the knowledge that the Government can act without consulting the nation, have resulted in a feeling of helplessness.

Although foreign correspondents are sending thousands of words about the German situation, the only military information in German morning newspapers is the fact that Herr Hitler received the Transatlantic flyers during the review at Juterbog.

The official spokesman, explaining the silence, said that nothing yet had happened in the manoeuvres, which are still in the initial stages, with the troops in camps and barracks.

The significance attaching to the departure for Berlin of the French Air Chief, General Vuillemin, to confer with Marshal Goering, is believed in Paris to be a possible prelude to a Franco-German agreement to limit air forces.

In Prague, Viscount Runciman is receiving the Sudeten representatives, who are replying to the Government's case. Special importance is attributed to the meeting.

Herr Hitler and Marshal Goering initiated the army manoeuvres at Juterbog.

The mobilisation of labour and the commandeering of transport for the manoeuvres is causing embarrassment to many German firms. One lost 250 and another 150 workers

Czech Vigilance.

From observation posts rigged up in trees and from the open fields, in which they are disguised like farmers, members of the special Czech frontier vigilance service, which it is venevated has been powly. which it is reported has been newly created as the result of the German manoeuvres, are watching the border to report violations.

The disguise, it is stated officially, is the result of the desire to avoid The disguise is the result of the desire to avoid The disguise is the result of the desire to avoid The disguise is the result of the desire to avoid The disguise in the four-year plan.

It is believed that a slowing-down of the building programme will be necessitated in view of the increasingly serious shortage of raw materials.

Match For All NEW ZEALANDERS

IDEA NOT APPROVED

Blacks

Players Wanted In The Provinces

By Telegraph-Press Association. WELLINGTON, August 16.

WELLINGTON, August 16.
The idea of providing a match to give the public an opportunity of seeing the All Blacks in action on their return from Australia was discussed by the New Zealand Rugby Union executive. No advice had been received from Australia as to how the members of the team felt about the proposal, but the executive felt that the idea of having the match next Saturday was impracticable.

For one thing the various unions would be anxious to have their players back for inter-provincial engagements and there was also the fact that interference would be caused with the arrangements made ball rules, Victoria defeated New Zealand by 48 to 16, New Zealand being continually penalised for footwork.

WELLINGTON, August 16.

"The legislation is going on the Statute Book," said the Prime Minister (the Rt. Hon. M. J. Savage), commenting in an interview this evening on the statement issued by the New Zealand branch of the British Medical Association that it was unable to offer any further co-operation in connection with the Government's health scheme.

Mr Savage said that the Government had set itself the objective of providing a national health scheme and it could not afford to be turned aside by the opposition of the British Medical Association.

In spite of what had been said by the association, it was his opinion that the doctors would be behind the scheme when the legislation was enacted.

"What would happen if a stand like this were taken by waterside workers, for instance, against a proposal of national importance?" Mr Savage asked. "If the British Medical Association withholds its co-operation when the legislation comes into force, the Government will have to consider taking

Adult "Receivers" Are Blamed

Dutch people in the mother country and in the colonies are intensely interested in Australia and Hol-A marked increase in crime among youths in recent months is causing the Sydney police much concern. Arrests made have disclosed that the young offenders, whose ages range from 14 to 20 years, have been working in gangs, and that their crimes range from shopbreaking to motor car stealing.

A serious aspect is that many of the youths appear to have been working in conjunction with adult receivers who have been buying the A marked increase in crime receivers, who have been buying the stolen property. Police have traced the parts and accessories of motor cars, which have been stolen, and "stripped," and the proceeds of several large tobacco robberies, to this source.

Recently, members of a gang of youths admitted that they were paid £1 for every car they took from a street, and drove to a place where it could be "stripped" by adult car wreckers. This gang has now been broken up by the police, and many of the offenders have been committed to State homes.

Tobacconist Thefts.

Other youths arrested admitted that they had gained entrance to to-bacconists' premises by climbing up drain pipes, over roofs, and through skylights. For a time much of the tobacco stolen was hawked by boys in hotel bars, and sold for the best price obtainable, which was always much below the market value. Police were able to stop this illicit trade, but recently tobacco robberges of which boys are suspected. ies, of which boys are suspected, have been so large that it is considered that receivers are working with the young thieves, and are making huge profits.

Another serious problem is that of the juvenile "joy-rider." SENSATIONAL MURDER MYSTERY

"They Won't Forget" Opens To-day

Commencing to-day at the Regent Theatre, Hastings, is a sensational film, "They Won't Forget."

Based upon the sensational Ward Greene novel "Death in the Deep South," this picture, presented by Warner Bros., has for its theme the question of whether or not an innocent man may be hurried to a murder conviction on circumstantial evidence—plus a spirit of hatred evidence—plus a spirit of hatred aroused by an evilly ambitious pro-secutor who wants to win the case for the sake of personal publicity.

Claude Rains—always the thorough going villain—plays the part of the unscrupulous district attorney and s said to outdo himself in earning the hatred of audiences.

Edward Norris, handsome young leading man, appears as a Northern U.S.A., school teacher in a Southern town, who is charged with the murtown, who is charged with the murtown, who is charged with the murtown. der of one of his young pupils. His performance is winning and sympa-

ROMANTIC SPY STORY

Intriguing Drama Of Wartime

"Madamoiselle Docteur," the new Max Schach-Trafalgar production, is the attraction at the State Theatre, Hastings, to-day.

Particular interest attaches to the film inasmuch as it marks the return to the English-speaking creen of Erich von Stroheim, the brilliant Austrian actor.

In "Madamoiselle Docture" Stroheim has a heavy but not entirely unsympathetic role as an intelligence officer who persuades beautiful Anne Marie Lesser—the Docteur of the title—to launch upon her spectacular career as a spy.

This character, based on a real life prototype who died recently in Switzerland, is played by Dita Parlo, glamorous Continental star, also making her English-speaking debut. Miss Parlo has enjoyed an extensive screen career, having made films in Germany, Hollywood, Austria, France and England.

Opposite her is John Loder, popular British actor.

The three stars are given every opportunity, in a colourful, thrilling ory which shows how Anne Marie Lesser becomes an espionage agent to avenge the death of her fiance. In Salonika she meets and is immediately attracted to Lieutenant Peter Carr, of the British Intelligence Service. Growing older need not be considered by women in the light of its difficulties. Time does a lot for many women, and could do more. There are certain advantages that all older women have over younger ones, such as improved taste, a better understanding of their own style, a perfected grooming technique, more poise, wit and graciousness, says an American writer.

The programme for the evening was devoted to the works of Purcell, and some delightful items were A large frame may be resented by young girls, but to older women it often means dignity and distinction.

The soft curves of the younger face often hide good bones, and only later does fine modeling become apparent, giving distinction to faces which may have once been merely pretty.

The older woman can be lovelier and more distinguished at 40 or 50 than she was at 20, but hers must be a well-planned campaign.

Cheese to finish off a dinner has been a custom for centuries, but cheese used as the main part of a simple and properly varied menu, is one of the modern discoveries.

It contains more nutriment than meat, and can be given to children and young people with advantage. It is indigestible only when insufficiently masticated and swallowed in lumps and so to obviate this should be grated even when eaten alone with bread or biscuits. Keep this in mind and cheese may be used to supply protein in the diet.

Cheese dishes are ideal for the luncheon menu and several suitable recipes are included here. Also suggestions for delicious savouries to complete the dinner menu.

In connection with the historic visit it is interesting to read that Queen Victoria wore white at most of the State functions, as Queen Elizabeth wore white all her week in Paris. At the State Ball at the Hotel de Ville, Victoria wore a dress of white Nottingham lace slashed across the bodice with the Order of the Garter, and on her head the crown bearing the Koh-i-Noor diamond. We are told that as soon as she was in the carriage for the homeward journey she took off the heavy crown; it is a long drive and a tring drive on a hot August night, from the Hotel de Ville to St. Cloud . . It was at this ball that Richard Strauss, who was leading the orchestra, carried away by who knows what "vent de folie," suddenly started playing "God Save the Queen" to polka rhythm!

COLLABORATORS WHO COULD NOT BE FRIENDS

How Gilbert and Sullivan Ended Their Great Partnership

Gilbert and Sullivan never fundamentally like each other, or understood the one what manner of man the other might be. In London they never met as friends; even their collaborations were carried out mostly by mail, and at least four times they vowed, before they finally dissolved their partnership in 1896, that they would never again submit to the galling derogation of working together says a writer in "Fortune"

In this un-intimate fashion the partners pursued what appeared in finished performance to be one of the most intimate of collaborations. There came after "The Gondo liers" a quarrel between Gilbert and Sullivan so shattering that it disrupted their partnership forever. Money matters provoked it; its real cause, however, was a fundamental dislike and jealousy between the two men that neither one could any longer suppress

In November, 1898, when D'Oyly Carte revived "The Sorcerer," librettist and composer answered curtain calls from opposite sides of the stage, bowed to the audience, but not to each other, and left the theatre without speaking. Two years and five days after that evening Sullivan died, without ever again having set eyes on his collaborator through two decades.

EQUALITY OF RIGHTS FOR MEN

"It is not sufficiently recognised by the layman, which is excusable, or by the chemist, which is less excusable, what we owe to the green leaf," said Dr. J. Melville, of the Wheat Research Institute, and retiring secretary of the Canterbury branch of the Institute of Chemistry, in an address to the branch last evening.

"Let us consider the meal which you individually or collectively are now digesting," he said. "If it start-ed with soup, the vegetables going to make that soup, though probably This talk of equal rights for women is just hooey and blather. The fair ladies simply do not mean what they say. Their real aim is to do successfully what no one has yet been able to accomplish in all the world's history—to eat one's cake and to keep it, too, writes an American, only in this case the man's cake they want to eat, and they have already bitten more than one sizeably chunk out of it.

As compared with their alleged already bitten more than one sizeably chunk out of it.

As compared with their alleged oppressors, the women are sitting pretty. At this very moment they hold one-fourth of the country's jobs and own three-fourths of the country's wealth. Women are the beneficaries of 80 per cent. of the country's life-insurance policies, women hold 44 per cent. of the country's life-insurance policies, women hold 44 per cent. of the country's public-utility securities.

The subjugation of men is well under way. Given time, our women, like those of ancient Egypt, will require the men to agree in the marriage contract to obey their wives. If we men don't act, our destiny seems certain—to live in a woman-made, a woman-owned, a woman-nuled and a woman-nuled and a woman-nuled and a woman-nuled world. ruled and a woman-ruined world, he remarked,

He is survived by his widow, and one daughter, Mrs S. Frankpit, to whom the sympathy of a large circle of friends will be extended.

The funeral will leave his late residence, 59 Marine Parade, at 2 o'clock to-day for the Park Island cemetery.

There have been very few cases of broken chilblains.

One instance was known of a chilblain on a man's foot breaking and turning septic, which caused him some pain and inconvenience for a few days. In most instances the hands are the parts affected.

HAWKE'S BAY DOCTORS AND HEALTH INSURANCE PROPOSALS

> Ballot Shows Great Majority Disapprove: Support Cannot Be Assured

> > By Telegraph—Press Association WELLINGTON, August 16.

An announcement regarding the attitude of members of the medical profession to the Government's health insurance proposals was made by Dr. J. P. S. Jamieson, president of the New Zealand branch of the British Medical Association.

Dr. Jamieson said that in view of the nature of the Government's proposals and its consistent attitude in completely rejecting all advice tendered by the association as representing 98 per cent. of the medical profession practising in New Zealand, a secret ballot was taken among members of the association in June last in order to ascertain individual views as to which scheme they approved—that of the Government or that advanced by the association.

Less than 5 per cent. of the doctors who returned the ballot papers were in favour of the Government's scheme.

WELLINGTON, Aug. 16.

The issues upon which members were asked to vote were stated on the ballot-paper as follows:-

(a) I approve the principle of a limited health-insurance scheme as outlined in the association's plan, with an income limit to be approved by the association.

(b) I approve the principle of a universal general practitioner service as outlined by the Prime Minister.

"Members of the association," said Dr. Jamieson, "were left to vote entirely as they wished and were in no way influenced by the executive through any statement for or against either scheme being enclosed with the ballot-paper.

"That a serious threat to the liberties of the medical profession is contained in the Government's universal health insurance proposals," "The result was that, of 913 returns received, 45 (that is, less than 5 per cent.) were in favour of the Government's scheme. Under these circumstances the association cannot assure the Government of that measure of support and co-operation which is necessary to carry out its scheme. The support and co-operation which is necessary to carry out its scheme. "It will be interesting to see what scheme," it is considered, "will lead to those very distinctions which it is the object of this association no less than of the Government to Forecast: Winds: Moderate to the Government proposes to do in trong northerlies to north-wester the circumstances," said Dr.

Hopes of Split in Profession?

"Incidentally, I notice that the Rev. A. H. Normeyer, chairman of the Parliamentary select committee, who has been acting as the Government spokesman, is reported to have stated at a meeting at Newson (Wellington) that 'doctors who were ready to co-operate would have their names published. The person could select his doctor and would have the right to change every three months.'

"Does this mean that the Government spokesman, is reported to make their own arrangements as they have done heretofore, although being entitled to medical benefits under the scheme. While there might be a few who will do this habitually, many will on occasions. "Thus there will grow up two types of practice, from which we so far, fortunately, have been free—panel practice and private practice."

would have the right to change every three months.'

"Does this mean that the Government hopes to split the medical profession on the subject, expecting that some will act under the scheme and that the remainder will be obliged to come in ultimately, whether they wish to or not? If so, then such a policy on the Government's part must come as a painful types of practice, from which we so the part of an approximately, have been free—panel practice and private practice. If so, then such a policy on the Government's part must come as a painful shock to the majority of its supporters, who stand for the principle of collective bargaining.

a contract the much per attendance invites attention to quantity rather than quality of work. Modern methods of mass-production and the moving work-platform are not suitable for medical work.

"Does the Government stand by its principles or not?" Dr. Jamieson asked. "If it does stand by them then how does it explain away its apparently studied action of completely disregarding the medical profession, and Mr Nordmeyer's re-ported statement? It is certainly a matter upon which a definite answer is required.

"As far as the B.M.A. is concerned, I feel confident in assuring the Government that its members are just as loyal to their association as those of any other organisation, as those of any other organisation, and that, when the time arrives, the 5 per cent. who voted in favour of the Government's proposals will be found acting with the 95 per cent."

Dr. Jamieson said he regretted to have to draw attention to another statement attributed to Mr. Nordmeyer which in this case was other statement attributed to Mr in hospital clinics, and the general Nordmeyer, which in this case was totally misleading.

Scheme in England. "Speaking at the same meeting at Newtown, Mr Nordmeyer was reported to have stated: 'It is interesting to notice that the British Government's experience of the health insurance scheme has been that, though it embraced only a comparatively small section of the community in the early stages the community in the early stages, the diagnosis as witness the millions doctors themselves and the B.M.A. spent on patent medicines. All he was also approving.'

"This statement," said Dr. Jamleson, "conveys an incorrect impression. The actual position is that "Without prior consultation with the profession as to its actual pro-posals and without so much as 'by the British scheme is limited both as to the beneficiaries included and the range of services provided. It provides a general practitioner ser-vice only for employed persons or those below a certain wage or salary limit and neither extends to your leave' the Government pro-poses to change abruptly the whole character of the medical service which has developed in the light of their dependents nor includes the serious needs of hospital, specialist serious needs of hospital, specialist diagnostic services.

"The full consequence of so It is a little of the people and innovation has to be appreciated. It involves changes in appreciated habits of the people and

"The association in Britain has long maintained, as we are insist ing here, that the services should be as complete as possible for those unable to provide their own requirements, but it has never been suggested either by the asso-ciation or by the British Govern-ment that the partial scheme should cover the whole popula-tion

Mr Nordmeyer's remarks that the present opposition of the medical profession in New Zealand does not accord with the feeling of the profession in England is entirely misleading, as were the inferences of the Nordmeyer Committee that Sir Vername And the changes should be brought about gradually. "Further, it appears to us that the desire for a universal system arises from enthusiasm for a politico-social conception rather than from consideration of practical necessities. We feel, therefore, that the changes should be brought about gradually. Henry Brackenbury favoured the Government scheme.

"The Government," Dr. Jamieson concluded, "would be better advised to give heed to the result of the ballot I have announced. In the meantime, the general public may rest assured that the profession will continue to render its present service, which is better than that proposed by the Government."

WHAT IS BREWING?

Europe was sceptical when Mr Chamberlain returned hurriedly to London from his holiday ostensibly on account of an attack of nasal catarrh. Was it mere coincidence, observers asked, that this indisposition should occur at a time when tension in Central Europe appeared to be reaching a

The bulletin issued on Monday by Mr Chamberlain's iot allay the suspicion that there was more behind Mr Chamberlain's return than was made public. It savours too much of a belated justification of the earlier statement-for even the state of Mr Chamberlain's nose is hardly a matter of such national importance as to justify a solemn bulletin from noted specialists.

There are ample grounds for asking the question whether the British Government is attempting to conceal its concern over the situation in Europe in the hope that things will blow over. Although this attitude is recognised by now as traditional British diplomacy, it is grossly unfair to the people, and particularly to the people of Dominions far removed from the centre of the trouble.

Although this fact has been bluntly pointed out by the British Press, not one word has come officially from the British Government concerning recent events in Europe, and in Germany in particular.

One does not ask that we be given any other intimation than that Britain is following affairs closely and either that due precautions are being made for an emergency, or that its information from other Governments in Europe has satisfied it that an emergency is not likely to arise. It is futile to imagine that official reticence will allay any possible alarm. Reports from Central Europe are sufficiently significant as to give rise to general uneasiness, and Governmental silence on the matter can indicate only that this uneasiness is shared by official circles.

In the absence of an authoritative statement, one can be guided only by the general trend of events and the circumstances governing international relationships.

It seems clear that the principal motive behind the German military preparations and manoeuvres is an attempt to impress the rest of Europe, and particularly Czechoslovakia, with Germany's might. It is merely a further manifestation of the bludgeon diplomacy and the peculiar Teuton psychology which is impressed, and so endeavours to impress, by displays of might.

Nevertheless, there are some peculiar happenings in Europe at the present time, all of which, considered in due relation one with the other, are gravely significant of the actual tension prevailing. Mr Chamberlain's nose is one. Viscount Runciman's mission is another. The recent happenings in the countries of the Balkan Entente is a third. One cannot overlook, either, recent visits by British Ministers and Secretaries of State to the Mediterranean, Malta, Palestine, and the Baltic countries, including Poland.

Worse still, what of all this gigantic preparation for "defence"—which is neither more nor less than preparation for war? How long can the countries of the world sustain their huge armaments programmes, their vast armies and naval and air forces? What is more important, how long will the people continue to pay for these things without an economic collapse?

The plain fact is that the longer the world is involved in a struggle for armaments supremacy, the more likely are the chances for war. It is obviously impossible for those chiefly responsible for the world's taking up weapons again to continue piling up arms unless there is some justification, and there are strong grounds for the suspicion that these same militarists are being forced into the position where they are compelled to create situations for the purposes of justification.

The Sudeten-Czech dispute has been magnified and distorted out of all perspective by the efforts of those seeking to stir national and international feeling. However, despite the fact that we may recognise the motives underlying such actions, and reveal their machinations for what they are, it does not affect the realities of the situation which has arisen.

Trouble is plainly brewing, and every country of the world is fully aware of the fact to-day. It is high time the people were told the truth of the position. It is then more than likely that there would be such a clear indication of public opinion throughout the world against war that the militarists—and the bewildered peace-seekers—would receive something of a shock.

AIR DEFENCES OF THE DOMINION

COMPREHENSIVE REVIEW OF NEW PROGRAMME OF EXPANSION IN NEW ZEALAND.

A comprehensive survey of New Zealand's air defence is contained in the annual report of the Chief of the Air Staff (Group Captain R. A. Cochrane), which has been presented to Parliament.

Group Captain Cochrane comments that the year has seen a notable advance in the administration of aviation in the Dominion by the passing of the Air Department Act and the Air Force Act. The former established a department to administer service and civil aviation, and charged it with the duty of advising the Government on all matters affecting aviation that might be referred to it.

The flying training school has been established at Wigram Aerodrome, Christchurch, and is training pilots both for the Royal New Zealand Air Force and for the Royal Air Force. Its capacity is 48 pilots a year in two courses of five and a half months each.

The school made good progress throughout the year and achieved satisfactory results, in spite of handicaps due to shortage of experienced instructors and lack of certain specialised equipment. These deficiencies were inevitable in the circumstances, but they are now being remedied.

Appreciate Good Music

In the opinion of a visiting English stage star (Mr B. Langman), New Zealanders are much more appreciative of good music than Australians. The people of New Zealand were very fine judges of music and were capable of offering keen and constructive criticism of the efforts of any artists, Mr Langman told the "Daily Mail" yesterday. They had a marked superiority over the Australians in this respect.

A wireless message received by the Union Steam Ship Company from its cruising liner Maunganui, indicates that a thoroughly enjoyable time was spent at Suva. On Friday, the weather was fine, passengers going for motor trips and to a hibiscus show. TERRITORIAL SQUADRONS

There are many tasks in the local defence of the ports and coasts of the Dominion which call for the cooperation of aircraft with the other defence services. The organisation of the other three squadrons has been commenced, but progress must largely depend on the availability of the necesion to only the

QUESTION OF REFEREE FOR THE OTAGO MATCH

Hawke's Bay's Views Expressed: Ranfurly Shield Match

Where agreement cannot be reached upon a referee the New Zealand Rugby Union has the power to appoint a referee through their Referees' Appointment Board, stated Mr J. W. Norrie, chairman of the Hawke's Bay Rugby Union, commenting on a report from Dunedin stating that Hawke's Bay had no right to ask for an outside referee for the forthcoming Ranfurly Shield match at Dunedin.

He contended that the Hawke's Bay Rugby Union was quite justified in its request to the Otago Rugby Union.

"As far as a referee is concerned," said Mr Norrie, "we have always treated other unions the same as they treat us."

The last occasion that Otago played Hawke's Bay at Hawke's Bay for the Shield was in 1925. For that match Otago requested the submission of five outside referees for their selection, and the request was acceded to, a Wairarapa referee being selected.

Under similar circumstances and in the same year, Southland made the same request, and an Auckland referee was the Hawke's Bay Union request had been refused by the local management committee. It was pointed out that the Otago Union was agreeable to the appointment of an outside referee if he were appointed in the usual manner, and that was through the New Zealand Rugby Union.

In support of this Rule 7 of the regulations governing the Ranfurly Shield was quoted, stating that: "In all challenge matches for the Shield (as distinguished from ordinary match declared to be challenge matches) the New Zealand Rugby Football Union shall, if requested by either the challenging or the challenged union, appoint a referee."

As the party interested in the appointment of an outside referee, Hawke's Bay was the Union that should approach the New Zealand Union to appoint a referee through its Referees' Appointment Board. Otago was merely adhering to the shield rules and had not refused to have an outside referee.

and was particularly impressed with Napier.

"I am particularly impressed with the beautiful Marine Parade," he said, "and I can honestly say that I saw no better lighting effects in Melbourne during the Centennial celebrations. The latter were more general, but those on the Parade are much more effective."

Asked why he had left medicine for the stage, Mr Langman said that he had looked at himself in a mirror one morning and decided that he would never acquire the bedside manner so necessary for doctors, and decided that his features were better suited for comedy work on the stage. He had started out doing a black and white sketch act on the stage, but nine years ago, while appearing on the stage at the Hippodrome, London, he nad struck up a friendship with the famous ventriloquist, Arthur Prince, and had learned the rudiments of the art from this distinguished tutor.

SOME ASPECTS OF CHINA UNDER WAR CONDITIONS

Englishman Who Spent Twelve Weeks In A Troubled Eastern Land

China under war conditions was described to the "Daily Mail" yesterday by a visitor to Napier, Mr Buddy Langman, better known as "Ventrix," the ventriloquist. Mr Langman was in China for 12 weeks following the outbreak of the war. "I was in Shanghai with a theatrical company at the outbreak of hostilities," said Mr Langman, "and we were advised there to leave the country as seen as we could. We failed to there to leave the country as soon as we could. We failed to take this advice and went to Shantung. That city was bombed during our stay there and the theatre in which we had played the previous night was destroyed by a bomb at five o'clock one morning. Following this episode I left China, my belongings comprising a pair of white flannel pants and a shirt.

"Our company travelled down the Yangtse River by ship, the Chinese members of the complement amusing themselves by taking pot shots at Japanese and the latter retaliating."

Mr Langman said that the war conditions appeared to be affecting the Japanese more than their opponents, by reason of the fact that the Chinese could live on a much lower scale than the Japanese and also that the Chinese held life very Little Regard for Life.

The higher-class Chinese held the ives of the coolie class in low re-lives of the coolie class in low regard, this point being demonstrated in very clear fashion to Mr Langman. He was passing down a street one day when he noticed a lesser Mandarin being carried down the street in his chair by his coolies when a Chinese of the poorer class ran across the road and bumped the chair. The outraged Mandarin rapped out an order and one of his servants drew a knife and fatally stabbed the unfortunate wayfarer. When Mr Langley went down this street two days later the body of the dead man was still lying in the roadway.

This fatalistic view towards death and suffering was typical of the Chinese. The visitor mentioned the numerous "Dying Fields" on which the poorer people lie down and die, sometimes lingering for two or three days in suffering.

"I must admit that the Chinese makes a fine, loyal friend," said Mr Langman, adding that, taken as a whole, the Chinese seemed to be better-educated than their fellow Asiatics, the only exception being the peasant classes.

Mr Langman admitted to having spent a period in prison while in the course of his visit to the Far East but he explained that this had arisen out of very commonplace circumstances. He was entering Japan but made the mistake of leaving his but made the mistake of leaving his passport in a large wardrobe which he was in the habit of sending on ahead of his ordinary baggage. When he was unable to produce his passport he was put into prison and remained there for 14 hours before he could prove to the satisfaction of the authorities that he was not a spy, but merely a visitor to the country.

The second reading of the Social Security Bill was moved by the Minister of Finance (the Hon. W. Nash) in the House of Representatives to-night.

The Minister detailed the financial considerations involved and the benefits that the scheme would confer.

Following Mr Nash, the Leader of the Opposition (the Hon. Adam Hamilton) claimed that the Government had done nothing so far for health in New Zealand. He said that a grave responsibility rested on the Government to make quite sure that the country's resources were enough to prevent the scheme from breaking down under any set of economic conditions that might arise.

The House met at 2.30 p.m.

Mr S. G. Holland (Nat., Christ-church North) gave notice to ask the Minister of Customs whether it was the intention of the Government to remove the embargo on the export of scrap iron to England so as to permit New Zealand to co-operate with the United Kingdom Government in its rearmament programme. He also asked if the embargo had resulted in unemployment in the scrap-iron industry and deterioration of stocks of scrap iron in the Dominion and would the Government compensate merchants for the losses incurred by the embargo.

At 5.20 pm. the Prime Minister moved that the motion now be put.

"Gagged on the Estimates for the first time in history," said Mr Polson.

The Opposition called for a division on the Prime Minister's motion (Nat., Hurunui) asked for the departmental balance-sheets earlier than they had been made available hitherto.

Mr W. J. Polson (Nat., Stratford) contended that it was unsatisfactory that in a year of receding income the Government should be planning its peak expenditure. An examination of the Estimates showed that there was a clear indication of overestimation of revenue and underestimation of revenue and underestimation of expenditure.

Mr W. J. Broadfoot (Nat., Waitomo) mentioned the sum of £29,000 in the broadcasting estimates and asked the Minister in Charge of Broadcasting how much of this amount was for the establishment of the new broadcasting journal.

He asked if the establishment of such a journal were necessary and further asked if it would be used for propaganda, also who would censor the matter published in it.

Continuing, Mr Broadfoot wanted to know why the report had not been finished in time to be submitted to the Auditor-General for his report, and also how many relatives of members of the Government were working for the commercial stations. Who had provided the capital to start these stations, he asked, and he went on to draw attention to the amount of travelling expenses incurred by the commercial stations who had provided the capital to start these stations, he asked, and he went on to draw attention to the amount of travelling expenses incurred by the commercial stations. he asked, and he went on to draw attention to the amount of travelling expenses incurred by the commercial service, stating that he con-

Nor did he care, he said, so long as the service was being provided. He did not know that any relatives of Government of the country for the service was being provided. The country for the cou

"If I have a relative in the service, what is wrong with that?" he asked. If a case could be made out that somebody was receiving preference then he would alter it, but he would not condemn anyone because he or she was a relative of a Government of the past decade, continued Mr Nash, "has relied for its development on its export income." The Government estimated that the 1/- in the £1 tax would bring in some £8,000,000. This was based on an estimate of the country's revenue of some £174,000,000 for 1939/40.

POSSIBLE INCREASE IN TAXATION

Taken all in all, said Mr Nash, the introduction of the scheme could be effected without any increase in normal taxation at all, but something might have to be done for employment promotion if this were found

Half of the contributions to the fund for the social security scheme, said Mr Nash, would come from the contributors themselves, while the other half would come out of the ordinary consolidated fund of the country through ordinary taxa-tion levies. He went on to state that the questions of increases in war veterans' allowances and war pensions would be contained in an-

The Minister then proceeded to outline the various major points in the Bill itself, on somewhat similar lines to the official summary issued when the Bill was introduced.

Dealing with the question of the effect that the superannuation scheme would have on the Public Service, Mr Nash stated that 52 per cent. of railwaymen received less than £208 in superannuation, and 29 per cent. less than £150, and all these would enjoy the benefits which were being provided under Agriculture," he said the circulation of this journal was increasing by

Speaking of the proposed family endowments, he said that the Government considered that it was unfair that when a child was on its way the mother should be faced with the dread that she might have no money when it arrived, and that she would have to save harder than ever.
In conclusion the Minister stated that the Government would continue to negotiate with the B.M.A., friendly societies and all others to enable it to carry out the health side of the scheme. They hoped to have all the arrangements in hand so that it could become operative by April. The principle of the Bill was that there would be no payment without benefit, and no benefit without payment. There was no means test for the health scheme and none for the

DETTON v. FRALEY

Municipal Theatre, Hastings

GOOD PRELIMINARIES

All roads will lead to the Municipal Theatre, Hastings, to-night, where Dean Detton, "the Mormon Flash," steps into the ring to meet "the Singing Cowboy," Pat Fraley, who is one of the most brilliant expenses the state of the ponents of wrestling to visit New Zealand.

No better contest than this has been staged in Hastings, and appreciation of this is shown in the exceptionally heavy booking. Patrons who have not yet made their reservations are earnestly advised to do so, as a capacity house is confidently anticipated.

The preliminaries comprise matches between some of the best amateurs from Napier and leading amateurs from Hastings. The box plan is at Hall's book-

MISUNDERSTOOD LAW

For failure to report a motor accident resulting in bodily injury, Albert William Hasler was fined £1, with Court costs 10/-, by Mr J. Miller, S.M., at the Hastings Magistrate's Court yesterday.

The case was the sequel to an accident in which William Matthews, a passenger in defendant's car, was injured, the car having collided with a tree.

The defendant stated that he had been under the impression that he was required to report an accident. was required to report an accident only when another car was involved. In this instance his car and passenger only were concerned and he had not thought that a report was necessary.

SNAPPED BY THE WAYSIDE

It was his considered opinion that there was a very grave danger of the new scheme breaking down under its own weight. The Government was going too far altogether and too fast. The Government was imposing a burden of taxation on the country that had made investment of capital in industry and trade so perilous, uncertain and unatractive that development was being seriously retarded.

Mr Hamilton said the Bill pur-ported to deal with health insurance and superannuation. A study of the Bill, however, revealed that super-annuation occupied only a very minor position.

Pensions occupied the premier place, with health insurance fairly prominent, while superannuation was only squeezed in. It was fairly evident that the Government was not particularly interested in provid-ing an up-to-date superannuation scheme. In this they had departed from their election points, which would indicate that they had lost in-

Reviewing the reasons for the desired change, the chairman said that Central Hawke's Bay had little community of interest with Hastings, and was almost unanimous in the desire to have its own organisation. If Southern Hawke's Bay were willing to co-operate to form a provincial centre they would be in a much stronger position, and would have direct representation on the Dominion executive of the Union.

Mr J. C. Bolton (Woodville) stated that while Southern Hawke's Bay was willing to assist the other parts of the province they did not wish to sink the idea of the province they did not wish to sink the desire they would have with the Government. Mr D. Joll (Havelock North) urged that a broad view should be taken, and not merely whether to attach themselves to this or that province they would be in a more influence they with the Government. Delegates Of Hawke's Bay Branches In Favour Of The Proposal

WAIPUKURAU.

A motion favouring the formation of one provincial district of the Farmers' Union for the whole of Hawke's Bay was carried at a meeting of delegates from all branches held yesterday afternoon at Waipukurau. It was also proposed that the provincial executive should meet quarterly at Waipukurau, and that a sub-provincial centre should be formed in Central Hawke's Bay, to meet monthly.

There was an attendance of about 25 at the meeting, over which Mr J. D. Ormond, jun., presided.

A statement that had been made at a previous meeting at Waipukurau that the Hastings executive was "not a very live body." This was incorrect, as the Hastings executive had worked hard and persistently for a long period and described to the proof of th pointed out that they were not asking Southern Hawke's Bay to come to the aid of a "sinking ship." The membership in Hawke's Bay was equal to that of the southern centre, and they were sound financially.

Prevention Better Than Cure

Farmers in Eltham and surround ing districts are greatly troubled with sleepy sickness in their sheep. In an interview Mr Allan Leslie, F.R.C.V.S., chief veterinary surgeon, Federation of Taranaki Co-op. Dairies, Eltham, outlined the prevention and treatment of the dis-

"Treatment of affected cases is un-"Treatment of affected cases is unsatisfactory at the best," said Mr Leslie. "Every endeavour, therefore, should be made to prevent the disease. According to my experience this can be achieved by good feeding and management. The cost of extra feed is a matter for the of extra feed is a matter for the farmer. An adequate supply of green feed before lambing is the ideal preventive. However, the sowing of a special catch crop may not be practical.

General Blacksmithing, Acetone Welding and Cutting Setting and Sharpen
General Cutting Setting and Sharpenfor winter and spring feed the ques-tion is whether such crops are sufficient in amount and quality. In particular, do these diets contain enough protein, minerals and vita-mins? Are they properly balanced?

Other Factors "Other factors which may need attention are (1) The control and treatment of foot rot and parasitic disease; (2) the control and treatment of blindness; (3) the arrangement of a suitable diet for gummy or broken-mouthed ewes. "The treatment of affected cases is merely an attempt to correct the symptoms. Advanced cases are practically incurable. It is possible to detect cases in the early stages by forced exercise of the flock twice daily. All ewes that lag behind should be treated as suspects, given a dose of molasses or treacle and placed on green feed right away. Sometimes a mere change to green feed is sufficient."

Suggested Treatments The following treatments have been used by Mr Leslie with fairly satisfactory results:—Recent cases: Give a brisk purgative of molasses or treacle and allow access to green feed. The dose of molasses, treacle or golden syrup varies from alb to or gotten sytup varies from $10 to 131b to 131b, depending on the size of the ewe. The sugar preparation used should be dissolved in a little boiling water and then allowed to cool before drenching. The use of boiling water to make the material fluid reduces the bulkings of the drench reduces the bulkiness of the drench Cases with loss of appetite: Give burgative and follow in two or three hours with a nourishing drench composed of cow's milk 2 pints, calcium gluconate 2oz, and glucose 2oz. The glucose should be repeated three times daily in a half pint of milk or water. To assist the purgative a soapy water enema is beneficial. Early cases showing brain symp toms: Same treatment as for cases wellington on September 28 to London, with loss of appetite, but give in addition 30 grains of chloral hydrate Panama. well diluted with water, three times a day. Aspirin tablets may replace

class on October 10. Due Auckland Debilitated animals: Persist with treatment for loss of appetite. Give liver extract. If response to any of these treatments is unfavourable, consider the induction of labour, "By forced exercise, in which fatigue is shown, it is possible to diagnose early cases about a week before the typical symptoms develop. Road exercise should only be persevered with when the feed on the roadsides is better than in the paddocks," concluded Mr Leslie.

Mr Edward S. Moran, a Democrat who represents a Brooklyn district in New York State Assembly, has been arrested, having been indicated on allegations that he had accepted 36,000 dollars (£7200) in bribes from the two largest taxicab companies in New York to influence helbourness and the many captures and any of the companies in New York to influence helbourness and the state petrol tax.

The owner then proceeded to explain the causes of this complaint and the remedies he had used and

He remarked that the lameness was generally caused through a corn on the sole of the foot. This corn will generally be found in the form of a hard, round substance. The best treatment that he knew of was to place the affected foot in Fordsdale, Capt. D. Christie (Shaw Savill), expected to sail from London on September 22, via Suva. Sometimes it is noticed that young cockerels suffer from weak legs, especially the long-legged breeds. This was explained to be caused gener ally through the birds growing too fast, or else through a lack of sufficient food of the proper kind.

It was suggested that to counteract this fault, the general procedure should be to mix fine bone-meal with the soft food, and put plenty of lime in with the drinking water. It was also explained that to rub the bird's legs with some embrocation was also very helpful.

RICH AUSTRALIAN SPRING EVENTS

Trek from These Shores Begun NEW ZEALAND'S AMBASSADORS OF SPORT

Notes From All Quarters

(BY MOTUROA)

The lists of entries for the spring classics and important handicaps in Australia fairly bristle with the names of New Zealanders, pointing to strong representation for the Dominion in the next few months. Already a large number of horses have crossed the Tasman and more follow with every boat.

While persons of myopic vision are apt to look on the invasion as a "pot-hunting" expedition and a slur on our own big handicaps and classic events, the fact remains that those ambassadors of sport, by their success on racecourses across the Tasman, bring home to horse-owners and breeders the whole world over the undoubted merits of New Zealand as a potent fountain-head for the production and furnishing of the best type of thoroughbred.

New Zealand's climate has proved to be ideal in attaining this end. The clean, crisp air of our elongated, seawashed isles gives added vitality to sires and brood mares alike, resulting in sturdy, virile off-spring—the sine qua non

But Nature does not stop there. An abundant rainfall and temperate atmosphere lend themselves to the making of the finest pasture lands in the Southern Hemisphere; to the growth of rich, succulent grasses and their by-products; all factors in the development and perfecting of the embryo thoroughbred.

It is little wonder that New Zealand-bred horses are sought after by Australians, South Africans, North Americans, and by sportsmen in India and the Far East.

En Tour looks to be one of the most solid of the Northern horses in the Pakuranga Hunt Cup this week and it would be well to remember that the General Latour-Glen Val gelding won this race two years ago, beating Electric Flash by a dozen lengths, with the Taranaki hope Flower Bag another twenty lengths away. It was a good field, too, the beaten division including Cynical Kid and Irish Comet, the latter winning the Great Northern Steeples ten months later. En Tour ran second to King's Archer in the Corbett Steeples at Matamata last month, having Lucidus and Valpeen behind him and it is obvious that he is well forward for his engagement this week

Jan Ridd is not a particularly good class horse on any form he has yet shown, but he was responsible for two very useful efforts at Trentham last month when he was runner-up to Great Pal on the two opening days. The Acre-Lorna Doone gelding is engaged in the second division of the Sylvia Handicap on Saturday and his chances cannot be despised.

CHOICEST BREEDING

(By Moturoa.)

There is no doubting the quality of the Beau Pere fillies of Mr T. H. Lowry's stable, who are in the care of Mrs A. W. McDonald at Awapuni. Indeed, it will surprise the critics if the daughters of Drama and Bar-bacan do not go very close to being the best of their sex this year and it looks certain that they will repay the squire of Okawa the 2,150 guin-eas expended upon them.

Millament, the filly from Drama and her companion, had their first serious sprint last week and, despite Rotoma and Tidewaiter have been in the meeting, the form of the latter, who has taken three races on end, emphasising the class of El Meynell. Mr W. S. Glenn's Hunting Song-Haligan horse is above the rank and file, and, despite his rise in the weights to 9.9, it looks as if he will be very hard to heat in the Auckland Handican on fairs of our club over a long period.

The remarkable success of the stock of Beau Pere last spring makes it unnecessary to dwell greatly upon the breeding of these fillies on the sire side, and it suffices to say that they show the quality, the effortless galloping action and the general tractability of the best progeny of the half-brother by best progeny of the half-brother by Son-in-Law to Gay Shield.

Warrior, the horse the Germans could not kill, celebrated his birth day recently in the company of his master, Lord Mottistone, who also commemorated a similar occasion. Lord Mottistone was 70, and Warrior, still handsome, silky-coated was 26. Just 20 years ago, Warrior carried his master, then General Jack Seely, 58 miles on a wild night ride to a threatened part of France, but shot and shell have not dimmed his eye nor bent his back Twice Warrior was buried in soft earth by bursting shells and dug out unhurt. Once in March, 1918, he was stabled in the drawing room of a little French villa, when a shell burst, smashing in the roof.

But there was a friendly whinny when Lord Mottistone ran up. Warrior stuck his head out of the debris.

A resolution was put to the meet. With a mighty heave he threw off a beam that pinned him down and leaped out . . . just as the remnant of the walls collapsed.
