Runciman Must Take Initiative PRAGUE NEWSPAPER FORECASTS

Great Importance Attached

NEW CONCESSIONS

United Press Association-Copyright. (Received August 22, midnight)

PRAGUE, August 22. The Czech Government's newspaper, "Prager Presse," in an obviously inspired article, suggests that Lord Runciman must now take the initiative in seeking a compromise between the Government's proposals and the Sudeten German

This, it points out, would correspond with his mission as outlined by Mr Chamberlain before Lord Runciman's departure. The article also declares that the solution from the Czech side must be radical and seriously meant.

The article is regarded as of special importance—first, because it states definitely that the Czech-Sudeten standpoints are so far apart that a new basis for further negotiations must be found; second, because it shows that the Czech Government is preparing to educate the people to understand that far-reaching concessions must be made.

Hutton and Leyland were both even more confident than Saturday, and continued to score steadily, the bowlers getting nothing from the wicket.

The partnership scored 350 in 345 minutes.

Waite replaced O'Reilly at 12.35 p.m. Fleetwood-Smith, however, maintained a high degree of accuracy despite the fact that he was handicapped by the wet ball. He almost bowled Leyland with a sharp leg-break—the first time to-day that the ball has beaten the bat.

After a short period it began to drizzle.

The story goes deep into the heart of big town life. The cab driver and his wife become involved in the political and racketeering activities of the city. When she is threatened with deportation, Tracy blocks that by sheer indomitable courage, which enables him to win clear of the nany difficulties surrounding him. In "Big City" Luise Rainer once again demonstrates her brilliant flair for versatility in acting. A far cr from her roles in "The Good Earth and "The Great Ziegfeld," and the direct opposite of her recent portrayal of the Countess in "The Emperor's Candlesticks," her new role places her as a simple Roumanian girl who has left her fatherland to ome to America, the "lan "land of a rough and ready taxicab driver only to be precipitated into a dra-matic catastrophe in which police courts, a murder, racketeers and Ellis Island loom up as forboding aspects of the new civilisation,

FILM Bette Davis Gives Fine

DRAMATIC EMOTIONAL

Characterisation

Bette Davis will be seen finally at he Gaiety Theatre, Napier, to-night, n her latest success, "That Certain Woman," which has been screening to large audiences.

Again given a photoplay that has plenty of scope for her unique emo-tional talents, Bette Davis in "That Certain Woman" will delight audi-ences as this Warner Bros. melo-drama unreels its fast-moving action upon the screen. Adventure — romantic love — martyrdom — mother love—are all portrayed by blonde Bette in the course of this exciting drama, which was both written and directed by the cele brated Edmund Goulding.

"That Certain Woman" is a story about the widow of a slain gang-ster, who, despite the scorn of the world and the persecution of enemies, wins her way to business success and to the affections of a worthwhile man. Henry Fonda carries the male romantic interest vhile others in the cast include Iar Hunter, Anita Louise, Donald Crisp, Hugh O'Connell, Mary Phillips and Herbert Rawlinson. There has been an increasing ten ency of late to give Bette Davis he very best stories that the Warher Bros. can find, and the result has been evident in the increasing popularity of her films. She, Fonda and Hunter all turn in outstanding performances in "That Certain Woman," which is as sensational a movie as she ever made.

The "shorts" on this bill are ex-teptional and include "Australian News," "Metrotone News," and "Starlets," a musical revue; also Russ Morgan's Musical Novelty and a delightful musical revue, "Flowers From the Sky." How Customs Change

Rancid Butter Was a Delicacy

As years go on and on and on, customs change. Looking back hundreds of years many customs in vogue at that period seem strange vogue at that period seem strange to us. You learn that in Ireland butter was buried in peat bogs, primarily to keep the precious article out of the hands of the greedy invader. With the likely death of the master of the household who alone knew its cherished resting spot, sometimes the buried butter was not found until many years later. Such rancid butter, if you please, was considered the height of all delicacies, and was consumed with much ceremony and consumed with much ceremony and distinction. In Dardistan Asia, buteter was buried for 100 years. The fresh variety was spurned and scorned. For rancid butter, and even more rancid butter, visit Dardistan

WRITES FROM LOUISE LONDON

Glittering Fashions Seen During the Royal

The Royal visit to Paris is over, but the memory of it will live long with all Parisians, while the splendour of the dresses worn at the three State dinner parties, at the bagatelle garden party and for the luncheon at Versailles will not be forgotten quickly, writes "Louise," the Daily Mail's special London correspondent. Queen Elizabeth's wardrobe, designed in London by Norman Hartnell and fashioned with French materials, was widely admired. Loveliest of all were the crisp white lace frock which her Majesty wore at the garden party, the paniered white satin dress trimmed with silver lace and camellias in which she attended the opera, and her white and silver brocade dress for the dinner at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

REMOVING STAINS

The long skirts of the gardenparty dresses seen at Bagatelle made a picture of great elegance against the background of trees and slopping green lawns. There were frocks of figured silk, plain silk, crepe, organdie, chiffon and lace.

Fruit and wine stains may be sprinkled with salt and boiling water poured through while still wet. Use salt and lemon or oxalic acid.

If a paint stain is still damp, wash in hot, soapy water, and if dry use turpentine. Then rub with benzine.

For tar, scrape off surface and cover with fat and kerosene, and gently rub between hands. Wash in benzine.

Silver sequins gleamed on the white dresses. Stiff silver and white brocade made a dress with a crinoline skirt, while flounces of white line skirt, while flounces of white tulle veiled the shoulders. Although few flowers were worn on this occasion a white satin ensemble stood out on account of the cluster of real white lilies at the corsage, while a single trumpet shaped bloom was pinned in the wearer's hair. Another ensemble to which flowers added greatly was of pale maize-coloured satin with a cluster of deep red peonies at the waist.

"EIRE" GREEN IS NEW COLOUR

> Work of the British Council

A new colour has been added to the existing list of more than 250 standard colours listed by the Bri-tish Colour Council. The new emerald shade, which is a vivid, sparkling colour, is to be known as "Eire Green," and is considered a compliment to the newly concluded Anglo-Irish agreement.
The work of the British Colour

Council is gradually finding wider acceptance among both retailers and manufacturers. The council's annual report, which has recently been published, mentions that on the one hand retail stores are more and more planning their buying and sell-ing campaigns on the seasonal colour cards, while on the other the demands for special colour services the skirt (which is usually pleated) has the stripes in the perpendicular. in connection with colour blendin by manufacturers have justified an increase in the council's staff. The

FASHIONS

Stripes and Floral Patterns Will Be the Favourites

Flower stripes are an important feature of the new silks and crepes. Colour mixtures and unexpected alliances of strong colours are the most interesting notes of the season, and while some dress designers mix their own colours by bold uses of plain silks allied in assertive contrasts, these contrasts are only suitable for certain types of gowns. The printed silks in their infinite variety give considerable scope for new effects in simpler afternoon gowns and ensembles.

Some of the floral silks have new effects in simpler afternoon gowns and ensembles.

Some of the floral silks have stripes within stripes of multicoloured miniature blooms; others have painters' daubs of colour used to give the effect of indefinite flowers and some have coloured spots printed in lines between the floral stripes. Anemone colours appear in various combinations, but there are also some designs in which white plays its part and an effective on navy and black grounds. Another print has a cream flower printing in between an etching of flowers in black on broad stripes of either green, red, or pinky beige; this is on crepe de chine and has already been used for some very smart dresses. Some of the floral striped prints are being used for some of the bolero suits where a deliberate colour clash between the bodice top and the skirt. This has been seen in some of the bolero suits where a deliberate colour clash between the bodice top and the skirt is desired. In cocktail bolero suits this clash is usually very striking.

THE ORIGIN OF THE TERM "BLOCKHEAD"

About the end of the eighteenth century, hats, as well as boots and coats, were made to order, each town had its shoemaker, and each customer had a last for his shoe and a block for his hat, from which originated the term "block-head."

Another custom, that of men lifting their hats as an act of courtesy,

The revening

Some of the chiffons for evening and garden party frocks are also striped, but for these a softer effect is sought and they look like rainbow huses in water-colour. Ingenious stripes in coloured lace effects on dark backgrounds are other ideas in printed silks. Narrow bands of dyed lace in contrasting colours on black net are used for some of the neatly tailored suits in black or dark coloured chiffon or striped silk blouse. Another custom, that of men lifting their hats as an act of courtesy, originated from the medieval custom of removing one's helmet as evidence of friendly intent.

Mirrors will come up bright if polished with a duster sprinkled with a mixture of powdered washing blue and liquid ammonia.

Unravelled wool, wound round and round a bottle, filled with almost boiling water, will lose all its crimps if you let it stand overnight.

Frilled curtains and pleated frills look smarter if goffered. A goffering iron dipped in boiling water as required will not scorch even the finest material.

The new chiffons have some very charming floral designs well spaced on light or dark grounds. On a creamy white ground a lovely design in pale lilac sprays is used, and others have old-world "chintz" designs in tea roses and faint blue cornflowers. Some massed colour effects are seen in leaves of flowers with plain colours have been featured in every dress parade. Knitted suits show the same idea, and the check coat and plain skirt or plain coat and check or striped skirt is universal. Unless one is tall it curts the figure, but that appears to be a minor consideration. Many of the new afternoon ensembles show a light coloured, long, woollen coat over a dark ground. This is one of the best uses of the colour contrast, and the smartest ensembles have the coat full length over printed frocks.

MAKE-UP MAGIC FROM HOLLYWOOD

Effective Tricks That Can Be Of Great Use In Private Life

Make-up, the black magic of the twentieth century, is both a science and an art. Amazing results have been achieved in the motion-picture world and much that Hollywood has discovered can be applied to everyday life. We are familiar with the make up man have gone with the rudiments of the art, but the make-up men have gone a step further into highlighting, and the optical illusions which are performed every day on Hollywood features open up a fascinating world of possibility for private life.

What we call a foundation, in Hollywood they call a base. And these Hollywood bases are not the heavy, pasty bases of the early movie days, but warm and pinkish to give the skin a natural healthy look. It is with these bases that optical illusions are performed for the screen, and can be performed by anyone who cares to experiment to give the skin a natural healthy look. It is with these bases that optical illusions are performed for the screen, and can be performed by anyone who cares to experiment with the foundations that are sold by the beauty experts.

A base can cause all freckles to disappear. With a darker base used at the outer edges of the face blending into a lighter base at the centre, a resolutely square face can be turned into a perfect oval. A heavy jaw can be made thinner if a dark-yiaw can be made thinner if a ing would be used beginning with the upper eyelashes and tapering off toward the far ends of the eye-

Another effective trick for the evening is the use of two shades of eye shadow—emerald green close to the lashes, fading gradually off into a gray brown. No lining should be used with deeply set eyes, else they will appear too hollow.

Smile when you put rouge on your face. The rouge should start at the highest point of your cheek when you are smiling and then be smoothed back toward the ear, fading out at the end of the jawbone. The closer you put the rouge to your nose, the more you emphasise that feature.

The two younger maids wore gowns of lettuce green organdie mounted on satin with full skirts frilled at the hem. The sleeves were puffed and necklines cut square, while a girdle of chiffon velvet finished the waist. Each little maid wore a Juliet cap like the chief bridesmaid's, and silver shoes, and carried a posy of spring flowers.

the juice from any organisms.

Mr Tiller gave a comprehensive explanation of the technical experimental processes that were being followed in the production of apple in the production Explaining the various methods used in the production, he said that it was necessary to get rid of all infections and this was done, preferably by using a drum. Any rotten apples should be rejected, otherwise the quality of the juice would be affected. Following this it was necessary to put the juice in a sterile cask. Then came bottling. The bottles must of necessity be sterilised.

The high cost of bottles and the transportation of bottles was one factor that handicapped the fruitgrower in New Zealand.

provided it was ripe and fresh from the trees.
Mr Tiller said that it was probable that the capital cost for a 5000-gallon output would be between £2300 and £2400. By using secondhand casks, however, fruitgrowers would be able to save £400.

Any type of fruit could be used,

INTERNATIONAL FINANCE AND POLITICS

There is a great deal of sound commonsense in the view taken by the London Stock Exchange that, behind all the blustering and threatening demonstrations at present going on in Germany, there is a serious fear that Germany, through her lack of raw materials and weakness on the sea, is quite unable to face the prospect of a war of any magnitude. It will be remembered that it was starvation, as much as any other one factor, which brought about the downfall of Germany in 1918, and to-day her resources are in no way comparable to those with which she entered the Great War.

Then, too, the Jews, who control so much of the finances of the world, in 1914 looked at Russia as the arch-enemy of their race, while to-day Nazi Germany has assumed that role.

It is an interesting speculation what effect Hitler's anti-Jewish campaign will have on the trend of future events, and in this connection there is a certain grim humour in the statement of the Nazi Minister of Economics that while "Jews must not have influence in German economy," there is "no reason why the Jew should not possess anonymous securities." That is to say, the Jew is an outcast without any rights in the life of the nation, but—his money would be very useful. This sort of thing may sound like logic to German ears, but to the average Briton it is both fantastically unjust and a little ludicrous. Now that anti-Semitism has become as rife in Austria as it has in Germany, the economic structure of Central Europe has been drastically altered, and it is not difficult to believe that some, at least, of Germany's financial worries might be traced to retaliation for her insensate hatred of the Jewish people, and the policy which supports this attitude—a policy which in some of its aspects has aroused not only the enmity of the Jews themselves, but the disgust of every freedomloving people. It is not surprising to learn that sections of the German populace have indicated pretty clearly that they are frankly tired of the perpetual Jew-baiting which has been maintained since the Nazis seized control. Behind all this surface bitterness the complicated system of international finance is dug in securely. It is now many years since Sir Norman Angell suggested in "The Great Illusion" that a major European war was economically impossible, and the years 1914-1918 proved that except in such a case as Russia, the economic life of modern nations will stand an almost unbelievable strain. Germany herself was crippled for years after the Great War, but she survived; while the victorious nations were hardly less tried during the period of reconstruction. It is curious to-day to find that at a moment when Germany is feverishly trying to reassure herself and the rest of the world that she is not suffering from a slump, France should also be making strenuous efforts to avoid a crisis. There was a time when French financial crises were as chronic as Mexican revolutions, with the franc alternately rallying and diving to apparently absurd depths. But in recent years France has kept a reasonably firm hand on her monetary resources.

Now, however, she is faced with industrial unrest and possibly with financial instability at a time when she is likely to need every resource to impress the totalitarian States with a sense of her strength. The fear of isolation is expressed in the words of the Prime Minister (M. Daladier) and in his reluctance to attempt the revaluation of the franc and the establishment of exchange control—"which would lead to precariousness if not the ruin of the English-French-American monetary agreement." That the situation is regarded seriously may be gathered from the fact that in order to avoid a crisis and "get France back to work," M. Daladier is prepared to jettison the 40-hour week, for in a time of serious industrial unrest such an action would not be taken without urgent need. To the outside observer it appears that the present situ-

A militaristic nation is welcome to make as many "gestures" as it likes, provided that other nations know that there is little substantial foundation to the display.

TANGLE OF NAZI GERMANY

LONDON CORRESPONDENT OF THE "DAILY MAIL" DISCUSSES A DANGEROUS SITUATION.

May 21, 1938, means nothing to the Englishman, but it means a lot to the German. For on this date the British gave so solemn a warning of what would happen if strong action were taken against Czechoslovakia that very many Germans, despite their Propaganda Ministry, realised that there was a limit (which they had reached) to the foreign achievements that were possible without an overwhelming risk of war.

The visitor to Berlin is therefore conscious of a suspense and uncertainty. Hitherto the foreigner has been worried whither the German Government was heading. Now the German people begin to share that worry.

The suspense is due in part to | the man in whose hand lies their he fact that Herr Hitler himself has less and less contact with never been so isolated as now, and them and their wishes. never been so isolated as now, and that while there is no settlement of the Sudeten German question there is the constant danger that his own genuine desire for peace will be overcome by his conviction that some fresh incident there constitutes the bloodshed which, he has already declared, would justify war.

One has the impression that ish short to show how tired they are already declared, would justify war. One has the impression that Czechoslovakia is rendering the greatest possible service to Europe, and to herself, by speeding up her offer of concessions to the utmost. If it is bluntly rejected she will at least have the sympathy of other nations.

least have the sympathy of other nations. what is feared is that the German Government will take desperate action if the weeks go by and it can show its people no result for all their whipped-up enthusiasm and indignation.

THE THREE

Unfortunately none of the three leaders who are believed to have much influence with Herr Hitler is likely to use it on the side of moderation at a moment of crisis.

Goering is much the most hopeful of them, but he may be less nower.

ful than Herr Himmler, whose secret police have dossiers about every important person in Germany, and whose responsibility for the Fuehrer's personal safety must give him an important influence over him.

The third man is von Rikham who fails to live the same afford to study architecture.

Now, working late at night with his friend and architect, Albert Speer, he can plan monuments in steel and stone which will comment on the same and the same architect, albert speed and stone which will comment on the same architect.

Thus in Germany to-day the people are growing more and more alarmed by the danger of war, but the British action of May 21 and ouilding plan Berlin is in such a chaos of half-made roads and halfdestroyed houses that if an enemy squadron were sent to bomb the capital they would return with their bombs intact thinking that the city had been laid waste before their arrival. I tis not surprising that this is taking place, as every dictator has a leaning towards town-planning on a magnificent scale, and one should remember how a penniless youth named Adolf Hitler once tramped the streets of Vienna in search of work because he could not whose responsibility for the Fuehrer's personal safety must give him an important influence over him.

The third man is von Ribbentrop, who fails to live up to the traditional role of a Foreign Minister and to warn his Government of the effects abroad of its actions. He has, as far as one can discover, the greatest contempt for the British, and the greatest readiness to flatter his Fuehrer, and obviously he would be consulted at a time of crisis.

Fowls Cause of Trouble

"On the troublous sea of matrimony it is not often that a ship-wreck happens through fowls," re-marked his Honour Mr Justice Quil-liam, during the hearing of a divorce case in the Supreme Court at Palmerston North. "No, but it seems to be the position in this case," said counsel, who made it clear that a resumption of domestic felicity had depended upon the husband of the respondent giving up poultry keeping, a thing he had refused to do. His Honour commented that this was the sine quo non. Respondent said her husband had preferred his fowls to her.

"Conditions throughout the world to-day are such as to make it more than ever necessary for all nations in the British Empire to keep in close touch with one another, and ship and family relationship that have been so strong in the past, and must not be any less effective in the future," continued Mr Savage.

"Differences of opinion as to serve that welcome from the New Zealand Labour Party, said he believed that there would never be peace in the world until all points of view were studied.

Sir Alfred Zimmern, Montague Burton professor of International Relations at Oxford University, said he was particularly interested at the reception being in the hands of the municipality, because the more he was convinced that the real test of its character was in its local institutions.

"The Note adds: "The Burgos Government to Spain, agree to suppose the withdrawal of foreign volunteers, the Note from General Franco at Burgos says: "It is proposed as from now to increase to 10,000 the number of foreigners to be withdrawn immediately subject to reasonable and fair measures of reciprocity on the part of the Red faction, and to a proper guarantee that neither should return to Spain, and on the basis of the prior grant of belligerent rights."

Difficulties To Be Discussed

DELEGATES SPEAK

By Telegraph—Press Association. AUCKLAND, August 22. The aims and objects of the British Commonwealth Relations Conference, to take place in Sydney, were outlined briefly by several speakers among delegates at present visiting Auckland at a luncheon tendered by the New Zealand Institute of International Affairs at the Auckland War Memorial Museum to-day. Mr Justice Callan presided over an attendance of more than over an attendance of more than 100 guests, and in extending a wel-come remarked upon the lack of interest in international affairs ap-

On behalf of the United Kingdom group of delegates, the Hon. Hugh Wyndham said that there was no lack of interest in international affairs in England. International matters occupied a great part of the time of Parliament, and since the war the subject, previously of interest to only a few authorities, was now the concern of the man in the street, and had been brought to everybody's door.

The men should resume work straight away and that the matters in dispute should be referred immediately to the Court of Arbitration for decision. This proposition was placed before the men by the secretary of the union, Mr W. E. Sill, and other officials, and was agreed to unanimously.

Conference With Men Bears Fruit

By Telegraph—Fress Association. AUCKLAND, Aug. 22. Work was resumed at the West-eld Freezing Company's works tofield Freezing Company's works to-day. A decision was made follow-ing a conference between the Min-ister of Mines (the Hon. P. Webb), representing the Minister of Labour (the Hon. H. T. Armstrong), and representatives of the company and the union this morning.

Mr Webb made a proposition that the men should resume work straight away and that the matters in dispute should be referred immediately to the Court of Arbitration for decision. Address To Men. Asked whether he had made an address to the men, Mr Webb said that he had a few comments to make after the decision to resume work had been made. He emphas-ised that there was need for cooperation between the workers and the companies, as without harmony there could not be economic effi-ciency, and any stoppage work had a detrimental effect on the whole Dominion.

Not all the employees resumed this morning. Some departments resume at midnight. A conference is to be held this afternoon among representatives of the company, the Freezing Works' Association and the union. The whole of the matters in dispute will be discussed. If any remain in dispute then they will be referred

A TRUCK DRIVER'S MIRACULOUS ESCAPE

Spectacular Accident At A Railway Crossing In Hastings

A light truck used to deliver groceries was struck by the afternoon express from Wellington while using the railway crossing at Southampton Street, Hastings, yesterday. Although the van was completely wrecked by the impact and the wreckage was carried for a distance of about 300 yards on the front of the engine, the driver was not injured.

The Napier express is timed to arrive at Hastings at 4.30 p.m. Just as the train was approaching the Southampton Street crossing, Chapman, the driver of the light truck, drove on to the crossing from the east side, the front of the railway engine striking it just behind the driver's cab.

up about 300 yards past the crossing. The wreckage was carried along on the front of the engine for this distance, Chapman being pinned against the cow-catcher. When the train pulled up, he pushed his head through an opening, and crawled out unharmed.

GOVERNMENT WORK

An intimation that the Government was shortly to review fully the problem of control of the Esk River was given by the Minister of Public Works, the Hon. R. Semple, in answer to a question submitted by a member of a deputation which waited upon him at Eskview yesterday.

The matter was broached by the chaiman of the Hawke's Bay County Council, Mr C. C. Smith, who said that the danger of flooding still existed in the Esk Valley, by reason of the fact that since the floods the bed of the river had become very high again. The afforestation committee had unanimously decided that in the matter of river control the Esk should receive first preference. "We are working on this matter poor'thas been sent to Wellington for consideration. The lands must be saved, and as soon as the report is submitted for consideration some definite steps will be taken."

Imagerous Driving.

Two charges were preferred against Lionel Robert Boyd, the first being for driving at a dangerous very of the Tangoio Valley and also paid close attention to the speedy manner in which the work of road reformation is being carried out. The road is now open to within two miles of the Devil's Elbow and a bulldozer working at that point is making great progress in the work of clearing the route. The road is in a shocking state and in places it gives the appearance that there has been no road there previously. The Ministerial party spent a lengthy period watching the work of this machine, and the expert manner in which the driver of the very is submitted for consideration some definite steps will be taken."

Local Team Wins The Contest For The Third Time In Succession

The final matches of the secondary schools quadrangular Rugby tournament were played at Rugby Park, Dannevirke, Wairarapa defeated Scots by 14-9 and Dannevirke beat Hutt by 22-12.

Neither match produced football of the standard seen in the Wairarapa-Dannevirke game on Saturday, but both proved good clean exhibitions of secondary school play.

The Dannevirke team were too fast and weighty for the Hutt team, and so won the tournament for the third time in

The first game between the two losers of Saturday's matches revealed greatly improved form by the Scots team. Details were as follows:

Details were as follows:—

Scots kicked off against the wind and good play by the forwards kept Wairarapa on the defensive. James and Brown made ground for Scots, but were driven back by a long kick by Patrick to inside the Scots twenty-five. From the line-out Jones, the Wairarapa half-back, went round on the blind side to score at the corner.

Once again Wairarapa attacked and from a defensive scrum the Scots centre was caught standing off-side. Patrick had no difficulty with a kick from straight in front. Wairarapa scored again when Patrick picked up smartly and sent on to Prior, who passed to Stuart. The latter made a great dash and scored in the corner.

Scots fought back with great determination and attacked strongly on the line. This time the Wairarapa wing was out of position and Watson put over an easy kick.

The half-time score was: Wairarapa 9, Scots 3.

SUBSIDY GIVEN

Mr Semple's Vigorous Advice

"I am giving you this subsidy. Now get your running shoes on and get on with it," said Mr Semple. "If you had not had as much trouble as you have had, I would not have given it to you."

This was the reply made to a deputation of Kaiwaka settlers by the Hon. R. Semple yesterday when they made a request for better access roads. The subsidy is referred to below.

The deputation was introduced by Mr E. L. Cullen, M.P., who pointed out the difficulties with which the settlers were confronted by the lack of access, stressing the serious posi settlers were confronted by the lack of access, stressing the serious position which would have to be faced should it be necessary to remove any sick or injured persons from the Kaiwaka district. The recent floods had increased the amount of work to be carried out by both the County Council and the Public Works Department, and as a result, little time could be spared for work on the Kaiwaka roads.

The first speaker for the deputation was Mr J. Burke, who explained that there were two roads going up in the direction of the railway line, the access road, which followed the line, and the top road, which passed along the hilltops. Two temporary bridges, one on each road, were at present giving trouble, and the suggestion was that both roads be linked and one permanent bridge utilised.

Its geographical situation is in itself an advantage. Waipawa lies on the main north-south route and has many ideal halting places for those who undertake long journeys.

As the natural centre of a large agricultural and pastoral district, Waipawa serves as the rallying place for farmers from a wide area; and not a little of its prosperity is due to the faithfulness of the surrounding settlers to their own natural shopping place.

In addition to the usual provisions for such games as cricket, tennis, football and so on, Waipawa provides excellent opportunity for fishing.

The river runs close by, and anglers know that if the Waipawa River cannot provide good sport, no river can. For many fishermen it has become the river by which others are judged.

Added to all this is the fact that the business houses of Waipawa are among the most efficient and up-to-date in the province.

A glance at this page will provide all the proof that is needed that Waipawa, in the business sense, is very much alive.

STAN REID'S CHARGE SHOWS HE IS NOT A DISCARD

Can He Repeat Remarkable Double?

BY MOTUROA

Edward de Mestere's William Tell gelding Archer won the first two Melbourne Cups, having 10.2 on the second occasion. He would probably have won his third cup, but this famous owner-trainer missed the nominations.

Archer's feat stood against all challengers from the years of 1861 and 1862 until 1934, when the golden-maned Peter Pan, who had been successful as a three-year-old two years before, carried his 9.10 home in a sea of mud to equal a 72-years-old record.

1938 may see Archer and Peter Pan joined by another great horse. That is last year's winner The Trump, who, on that occasion had been the first horse to achieve success in the Caulfield-Melbourne Cups double.

The Trump is a remarkable horse. He is a wonderful stayer and he can hold his own against the best class sprinters as he indicated at Caulfield at the beginning of the month. It was in the Moondah Plate and, after standing up the pacemaker, Manrico, a dozen lengths, he gathered up that smart gelding like a broken-down steeplechaser and won pulling up by two lengths.

Now The Trump gallops to the head of the quotations for the two Cups, and the 9.6 he has at Caulfield and the 9.4 at Flemington do not appear to be prohibitive weights after his easy victories in those races last year with 7.10 and 8.5.

all the more interesting.

YEW ZEALAND can claim a lot of quarters from which he gets his interest in The Trump and his programme for the 1938 spring racing, for he is trained by the former New Zealander, Stan Reid, a brother of the successful Hestings manner. of the successful Hastings mentor, Sid Reid.

Stan was a top-notcher among the riders of jumpers and one of his most important successes in the out of Luck

Furthermore, Ashley Reed, brother of the late Con and Roy Reed, rode The Trump to his two big victories and other triumphs last year and will again be associated with the Manfred gelding and the combination may again be hard to euchre.
