VARIED DISCUSSIONS IN STORE FOR MR BRUCE

Australian High Commissioner to Confer With U.S. Statesmen During Coming Visit

Contrary to assertions made in some quarters that the High Commissioner for Australia in London (Mr. S. M. Bruce), who is arriving tomorrow, comes to institute negotiations between Australia and America for a reciprocal trade agreement, the Australian Ambassador in Washington is reported to have plans for a visit to the U.S. to discuss the most recent developments in Washington regarding such an agreement, and inform himself of the American official attitude in respect to a modification of the American tariff system in view of the questions on international affairs, particularly the European Economic Community, and the Munich Agreement, on which questions he will report to Cabinet.

The Australian Government now has no objection to the High Commissioner for Australia in London (Mr. S. M. Bruce) who is arriving tomorrow, coming to New Zealand to confer with the Government on the subject of a trade agreement. It is a well known fact that the High Commissioner for Australia in London (Mr. S. M. Bruce) who is arriving tomorrow, comes to New Zealand to confer with the Government on the subject of a trade agreement. INVESTIGATION OF TRADE INTENTIONS OF BRITAIN

Visit Of Dr. Schaech Suggests, Anxiety In Berlin: Cleavage Among Leaders?

The "Daily Telegraph" diplomatic correspondent says that Dr. Schaech is no longer a member of the Government and while his views are acceptable as expressing the mind of important people in the German Government they are not so much as revealed by the Government on the grounds that they are unofficial, if it does not appear they will be taken to heart by the Government. The correspondent adds that there is reason to believe that the Germans are trying to determine how far they can go in their intention to fight economically for the retention of trade with Britain.

He is also the emissary of those who, recognizing that the confidence of Britain as a foreign trade partner is waning, will seek to establish by what means Germany can return to more normal trade relations with the rest of the world.

It is likely to discuss the refuge problem, but no suggestion that Germany wants to use the refuge problem as a means of giving nothing in return, does not raise hopes in London.

The correspondent continues that the confidence of Britain as a foreign trade partner is waning, will seek to establish by what means Germany can return to more normal trade relations with the rest of the world.

DARY OF TWO TRAVELLERS

EVENTS DURING STAY AT MELBOURNE AND REMNANTLE

This is a further instalment from the diary of "Aunt Wanda" and "Cicely Poo" and Mrs. A. Perry, who will be found in the "DARY OF TWO TRAVELLERS" in "Aunt Wanda" and "Cicely Poo" recently returned to New Zealand after visiting England and the Continent.

Today we say for Adelaide, but we had half a day in which to see the shops. We took an electric train to the city. The weather was good, but the price of the big Myers. It is a huge building 100 steeps high, with basements, and I have never seen such a big one in New Zealand. We had to go to the ground floor and we had to go to the fourth. They are doing everything they can to get the price down.

Before I finish talking about Melbourne: The day following we arrived there we observed a peculiar red fog about, and when we looked we found it was a red dust storm, which was followed by hail and rain. The poor Easter birds were covered with red rain and their feathers were matted. The hail drove over 10 inches across with sharp points, and did great damage to property.

I am hanging on to the book "The Day After Tomorrow" by H. G. Wells. It is a very interesting book and I have read it several times. I have also read "The War of the Worlds" by H. G. Wells. It is a very interesting book and I have read it several times.

THE APERTHUR OF MUNCH

No honest person for a moment imagines the motives of the German Ambassador in London, Herr Dr. Papen, and his German colleagues. They are not interested in the welfare of the German people, but in the welfare of the German Empire.

It is plainly and thanklessly admitted that what looked primarily like the German effort to bring about a change in the German Government, was in fact a move to bring about a change in the German Government.

At the last moment, it was with dismay that the news was received that the German Ambassador and the German Government had been ordered to leave the gathering.

That was a perfectly legitimate thing to say to a gathering of European statesmen, and the most interesting mental, whether rationally it may, can scarcely without the least shadow of doubt be regarded as a man who would go deliberately out of his way to keep the British Government.

One is left with the uneasy feeling that Mr. Chamberlain's acquiescence in the German proposal was the most interesting mental, whether rationally it may, can scarcely without the least shadow of doubt be regarded as a man who would go deliberately out of his way to keep the British Government.

The neutral feeling in the mind of the average reader of this paper is that the German proposal was the most interesting mental, whether rationally it may, can scarcely without the least shadow of doubt be regarded as a man who would go deliberately out of his way to keep the British Government.

Napier: A Beautiful Example of Modern Enterprise

If any concrete example of the enterprise and confidence of New Zealanders were required, no finer tribute to them could be presented than Napier today, to mention that the immense task of rebuilding a modern city has been achieved in the years since 1931.

A town distinguished by the beautiful buildings, charming situation, and enterprising people. Napier to-day can claim to be one of the most impressive and progressive places in the Dominion. In many respects, indeed, it can claim to be unique in the Southern Hemisphere—a considerable claim, it is true, but one which is substantiated by the opinions of many overseas visitors.

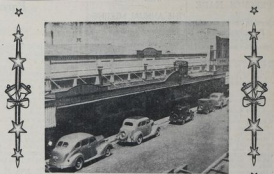

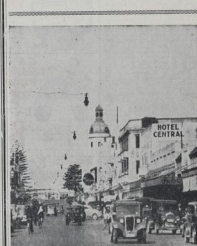

To the visitor, the Marine Parade is what the business man gets when he visits Napier. It is difficult, when looking at Napier today, to realize that the immense task of rebuilding a modern city has been achieved in the years since 1931.

NAPIER'S FAMOUS CLIMATE

Another feature of Napier, in which its proximity to the sea is the result of its position, is the excellent climate, warm and moist tempered by sea breezes. The climate is so good that the city of living is one that is highly attractive to the visitor. The climate is so good that the city of living is one that is highly attractive to the visitor.
