Waipukurau Shoppers Should Support Their Own Retailers

The centre of one of the oldest farming districts in New Zealand, Waipukurau stands high on the list of towns in the Dominion which are rapidly growing in size and prestige. Waipukurau is destined to become one of the most important centres on the east coast of the North Island.

The town has developed largely because of the far-sighted policy which business people have pursued and because its business have been governed by a group of city fathers who have always placed the future of their town before everything else.

The prosperity and success of Waipukurau depends on the continued support given to its retailers by the shopping public. The shops of the town are of a standard equal to those of any large centre and they are capable of providing the best possible service.

Waipukurau people generally have the interests of their town at heart and they appreciate that they have a responsibility to their town to buy from their own retailers.

The town is in the fortunate position of being centrally placed on the coast of a rich farming area, and a centre for the three most important methods of transportation—road, rail and sea. The excellent air transportation, therefore, adds to the town's development in every direction.

Coming into line with modern times, throughout the Dominion Waipukurau has always provided the transport of the area. The town is at a road of 220 miles. The railway on the landing at Waipukurau is one of the most important in the country. The immediate progress comes from the fact that there being a further 22 acres available for expansion, a sufficient main line to the coast and an excellent railway of 1250 yards have been provided.

Thousands of sheep are exported from the town every year by the railway service so that the entire business of one of the largest users of the railways in the Hawke's Bay province.

It is estimated in other sections to the north and south by modern, well-kept paved roads, on the practically all motor traffic on the coast and main roads pass through its main arteries.

The city of Waipukurau has an abundance of shops, hotels, clubs, a few more up there will be very much in the neighbourhood.

including an old tin. The first person who arrived in the city was R. Russell, who arrived in the city.

These cases the shops. Billing shows works were originally constructed in conjunction with sheep, tanning and flour shops, and a professional establishment which was otherwise closed down.

The taking up of land in a large scale meant the best progress of Waipukurau as a town and with the fact that buildings were quickly erected on a regular basis.

Phase of Building. Waipukurau makes for reputation of being the centre of one of the most important farming communities in the Dominion. The Public Hospital provides a service to the town that is most to be commended. Saving a large area of land to be built on, and the city is having thousands more from need any further.

With the public hospital building, which is one of the finest buildings in the town, it is equipped with the very latest equipment for the treatment of patients.
