By the General Officer and Chancellor and the British Prime Minister, have a further meeting today and are agreed in recognizing that the question of Anglo-German relations is of the first importance for the two countries and for Europe.

We regard the agreement signed last night and the Anglo-German Trade Agreement as evidence of the desire of our two people never to go to war with one another again.

We use no longer the method of consultation which has been adopted to deal with any other questions but any concern our two countries, all we are determined to continue our efforts to remove possible sources of differences and to continue to ensure the peace of Europe.
