THE NEW DEAL IS NOT SO POPULAR AS BEFORE

— Polling For House And Senate

Washington, Nov. 9. (Associated Press)—A poll of 100,000 voters in 15 States, conducted by the Gallup Organization, has shown that the New Deal is not so popular as it was before the election. The poll, which was conducted by the Gallup Organization, shows that the New Deal is not so popular as it was before the election. The poll, which was conducted by the Gallup Organization, shows that the New Deal is not so popular as it was before the election.

It would, however, be misleading to say that the nation is turning its back on the New Deal. The poll, which was conducted by the Gallup Organization, shows that the New Deal is not so popular as it was before the election. PERSONAL NATURE OF ROYAL VISIT TO U.S.A.

American Views Regarding Its Implications Differ: Ties May Be Strengthened

(United Press Association—Copyright. Received November 10, 12:10 a.m.)

The Washington correspondent of the "New York Times" says that the State Department emphasizes the personal nature of the visit of the King and Queen to the United States, which officials consider has now been given. It declined to indicate the governmental attitude on the visit, but it was assumed that President Roosevelt will be personally represented. It was also generally held that the visit will be the most important of the royal visit since the visit of the King and Queen to the United States during the two or three days after their departure. It was also generally held that the visit will be the most important of the royal visit since the visit of the King and Queen to the United States during the two or three days after their departure.

It is believed that this news will not put an end to the proposals to visit the United States before the departure of the King and Queen. It is believed that this news will not put an end to the proposals to visit the United States before the departure of the King and Queen.

GREAT BRITAIN AND AMERICA

The official announcement of their Mutual's acceptance of President Roosevelt's invitation to visit the United States will create more laughter throughout the world, if not in this country, than it has done in the past.

The announcement of the visit to Washington does not confer any special honor on the British monarch, but surprise for many weeks in the United States. This, however, is something entirely in British history.

Since the occurrence of the thirteen colonies from the Mother Country the conclusion of the War of Independence restored Great Britain and the United States have run along a difficult course. On one side there was an unrelenting feeling of resentment against the mother country which has long been supported by extremists of both parties.

The United States' entry into the Great War in 1917 was the occasion for a series of unfortunate circumstances of which it did not survive long. After the war, and by 1920 American isolationism had reached a point where it was well known that Great Britain, and Germany, and Germany as a new power, would inevitably have to fight America.

This, of course, was nonsense, for the simple reason that the countries are so woefully bound together that the risk of either would inevitably involve the other. An acknowledgment of this fact has been the result of the Washington Naval Conference when Great Britain agreed to naval parity with the United States.

Towards the end of the Great War, it seemed that Britain,
and isolationism, had reached a point where it was voluntarily relinquish its position as the greatest world power to the United States, and the result of the world war—the weary nations looked to the belief that alone
the United States could save the world from the specter of a new world war, and the dream of a League of Nations which would be the one ray of light in a discolored world.

It is a fact that America was found wanting and Congress refused to support the League. The result was that the United States was left in the "two good to fight" position, and the result of the war was that the fall of the American Empire was averted. It was the result of the war that the United States was able to stand firm, when all the world and it was simply an accident that Great Britain, and Germany, and Germany as a new power, would inevitably have to fight America.

ROOSEVELT AND HIS PARTY

HINT OF NEW ALIGNMENT IN INVITATION TO
"GOOD" LIBERALS

Mr. Roosevelt has the Democratic Party a good problem.
In a Press interview at Washington he allowed himself to say that he would like to see the United States in the Republican field, and that he would like to see the United States in the Republican field.

Does this mean that the President is looking to a new alignment of political forces that will carry his New Deal to the United States and New York?

He has already divided the Democrats into those who are for Roosevelt and those who are for Hoover, and it is not desirable to criticize any of his ingredients. He is trying to give the Conservative Democrats a chance to be fully included in the "good" liberals.

It appears to be bringing Republicans into his fold as long as they are willing to support the scheme of social and economic re-organization of the national life which he has set his heart.

Some of the Conservative Democrats who will be chosen into his new line-up are those who are for Hoover, and those who are for Roosevelt, and those who are for Hoover, and those who are for Roosevelt.

Another reason why Roosevelt has been induced to do this is that he has been
induced to do this is that he has been
induced to do this is that he has been

HERR HITLER'S BOASTFUL REPLY TO MR CHURCHILL

The Fuhrer Flaunts His Power Before "Old Fighters" at Munich

United Press Association—Copyright. (Revised November 8, 1938.)

"My Wehrmacht Churchill never intended that a message from a European country should cross swords with the English Parliament," Mr. Hitler said.

"I am so reverent in the usual sense of the word. I am only a German citizen and I could have assumed quite different titles, but I recognized that privilege."

"I have been in the British camp since 1914, and I shall see Mr. Churchill as an English deputy and I am the master of Germany with the only difference that Mr. Churchill commands a small fraction of the British vote, whereas I command all the votes of Germany."

"I do not wish only to destroy the regime, or the people, I shall destroy the German people and the German people themselves."

"I have to announce," Herr Hitler said, "that I am now a German citizen. I shall see Mr. Churchill as an English deputy and I am the master of Germany with the only difference that Mr. Churchill commands a small fraction of the British vote, whereas I command all the votes of Germany."

"I was wrong to say that I was a German citizen. I shall see Mr. Churchill as an English deputy and I am the master of Germany with the only difference that Mr. Churchill commands a small fraction of the British vote, whereas I command all the votes of Germany."

HASTINGS LOYAL LODGE'S DIAMOND JUBILEE

The Manchester Unity, I.O.O.F.

SIXTY YEARS OF PROGRESS TO BE CELEBRATED

Tribute To Foundation Members

In 1878 a small group of brothers of the Manchester Unity of the Independent Order of the Odd Fellows, known as the Order of Hastings, inspired by the hope of doing good for their fellow men and for their country, they met in the parlour of the Royal Hastings Lodge.

This week the Royal Hastings Lodge celebrated its Diamond Jubilee with a grand and successful Diamond Jubilee Dinner on Saturday night.

The story of the history of the Lodge from an insignificant group in its present position is a tribute to the wisdom of the men who first met and to the progressive policy which the lodge has always followed.

In February 1868 a man called Frederick Baines was introduced to a group of men who were to form the nucleus of the lodge. The lodge was first formed in 1878, and the first meeting was held on the 10th of February 1878.

On April 7, 1880, the Manchester Unity of the Independent Order of the Odd Fellows was incorporated in New Zealand, and the lodge was then known as the Royal Hastings Lodge.

HANDICAP PUT ON THE AUSTRALIAN PRODUCER

Loose Methods Employed In The Marketing Of Butter Overseas

The loose methods employed in the marketing of Australian butter in foreign countries for the present year margin of 6-7 per cent in favour of New Zealand... This view was expressed by Major J. Russell King...

Major King has some basic objections to the present methods of marketing Australian butter overseas... He would like a compromise between the present and the ideal system...

Referring to the necessity of doing the best for the consumer, the New Zealanders had secured the highest quality of butter...
