STREETS OF MADRID STILL A BATTLEFIELD

Republicans Continue To Fight Communists

CIVILIANS ARE STARVING

United Press Association—Copyright. (Received March 12, 1935.)

Despite a Republican claim that the Communists have retreated to isolated districts, there still remains in the fashionable northern quarter of Madrid the remnants of the military and police forces of the Government. Communists are machine-gunning the streets, where the movement of troops is impossible.

Republicans are machine-gunning the streets, where the movement of troops is impossible. The Republicans attacked the office of the newspaper "A Bata" in the afternoon of March 11. They have based the second job of disarming the Communists. Civilians are starving. Many were shot on the outskirts of the city while attempting to flee.

Republican artillery bombarded the Communist headquarters, which were called for talks by telephone. The defenders yielded after an hour's fighting. The Republicans then recaptured the Salamanca quarter and recovered the trenches in the sacred north-western district.

Three fighting columns in the central Peninsula commenced. A Valencia message says that the Franco Government has arrested 1000 Communist leaders. A Nationalist report says that the Communist Government has arrested 1000 Communist leaders. A Nationalist report says that the Communist Government has arrested 1000 Communist leaders.
