Giant Battleships Approved For Construction

15,000 TON VESSELS

(Received March 29, 12:35 a.m.)
WASHINGTON, March 28.

It is announced that President Roosevelt has approved plans for the construction of two 15,000-ton battleships. Approval was given on the basis of information that foreign Powers are laying down vessels exceeding 10,000 tons.

The new battleships will be streamlined, 800 ft in length—130 ft longer than the six 10,000-ton class at present under construction. The beam will be 108 ft, ensuring easy transit through the Panama Canal.

They will be equipped with three-gun turrets, and will have increased armor plating, greater fuel capacity allowing a wider radius of action, increased batteries of anti-aircraft guns, all of which is responsive to the increased tonnage of the ships.

It is estimated that the cost is from $5,000,000 to 10,000,000 dollars each.

The "New York Times" comments that the construction is interpreted in informed quarters to mean that the United States Government has accepted the challenge which Japan is holding three 8,000-ton battleships.

It is true that Japan has established 15-mile restricted zones around the ships.

The London "Daily Telegraph" Warsaw correspondent writes that the German Ambassador visited the Polish Minister for Foreign Affairs (Colonel Beck), and that Beck has announced that Poland has the intention of departing from the principles of the five-year non-aggression pact which was signed in 1934.

This is interpreted in some quarters as meaning that Poland will not act on an anti-German attitude.

Meanwhile, the German Foreign Office, through its "Telegraphische Correspondenz," signs Poland that opposition to German wishes may be dangerous.

If it refers ostentatiously to the "barbaric geographical position of the State."

Heavy German troops moved from the Polish frontier last night between the German-Polish frontier.

There is great tension in Danzig. It is feared that local Nationalist forces may be organized with an outbreak from Berlin.

Meanwhile, Warsaw is making an effort to prevent the Nationalist and German demonstration in any part of the city.

BRITAIN'S ANTI-AGGRESSION PLAN

Despite Mr Chamberlain's optimistic hints and even more optimistic reticence by him it is fairly clear that Britain is proceeding with a course of policy which is aimed at the aggressive in the future. Mr Chamberlain, perhaps rightly, has refused to give any indication of the measures which are being considered at present, but his ultimate intention is clear.

It may now be said that Britain's first plan—that of excluding Germany with a group of anti-aggression Powers—has failed. It is true that this plan has failed, but it is not true that the plan is abandoned. It is true that the plan is being revised, but it is not true that the plan is abandoned.

His friendship with Chamberlain, and his fear of a German upsurge in the Polish frontier, possibly a general invasion—that an attempt is being made to bring about a general agreement in the future. However, it does give more indication of the plan than the general statement that it is being considered.

Meanwhile, both Britain and Germany have been extremely active in the world's press. In the past few days, there has been a great deal of talk about the plan, and it is clear that the plan is being considered.

Germany, like Poland, is walking away at the present time. It is not willing to be bound by any plan which would give it the right to be free to do as it pleases. It is not willing to be bound by any plan which would give it the right to be free to do as it pleases.

Germany's desire for a common frontier with Poland is based on a plan to build the greatest possible canal in the diplomatic game. It is not willing to be bound by any plan which would give it the right to be free to do as it pleases.

There has been much talk of a meeting with the British Prime Minister, but it is clear that the meeting is not likely to take place. It is not likely to take place.
