ARTIFICIAL FIBRE CAN NEVER SUPPLANT WOOL

British Expert Certain That Substitutes Will Prove A Failure

"I have made the deliberate statement that the wool fibre will never be supplanted by any artificial fibre. The synthetic chemist is to be commended if possible. I have no hesitation in stating that I can conceive any attempt of this kind for a few months in the laboratory."

These definite statements were made in Melbourne by Mr. A. T. Barker, ex-Professor of Textile Industries of the University of London, a man who has had an wide experience of artificial fibres as anyone in England.

"Having witnessed everything that the synthetic chemist has done for the introduction of these fibres, I have seen and used the synthetic fibre in garments, in carpets, in dusters, in draperies, in curtains, in upholstery, in coverings for motor cars, and in many other articles of domestic and industrial use."

"After going through the many and various combinations of wool fibres and the synthetic product, I can say that the wool fibre is superior to the synthetic product in every respect. The wool fibre is stronger, more elastic, more resistant to wear, and more resistant to staining than the synthetic product."

"A high quality leno-weave fabric made of wool fibres and synthetic fibres is superior to any other fabric made of wool fibres and synthetic fibres. It is stronger, more elastic, more resistant to wear, and more resistant to staining than any other fabric made of wool fibres and synthetic fibres."

"The wool fibre is superior to the synthetic product in every respect. The wool fibre is stronger, more elastic, more resistant to wear, and more resistant to staining than the synthetic product."

WAS DISCLAIMER FOR POLITICAL REASONS? RESOLUTION URGING GOVERNMENT TO DEAL WITH DOCTORS

ELECTRICAL WORKERS' UNION COMMENTS ON ELECTRICIANS' ASSOCIATION

"I should like to clear up the controversy that has arisen concerning a resolution passed by the New Zealand Federation of Electrical Association in its annual meeting of the Wellington Electrical Workers' Industrial Union at the Hotel at Napier on Saturday. May 11, 1939. Mr. W. Moon, Hastings, secretary of the branch, to the "Daily Mail" newspaper.

The resolution in question criticized the British Medical Association and urged the Government to deal with the doctors as with strikers, and was subsequently disclaimed by the New Zealand Federation of Electrical Association newspaper advertisements from headquarters of the association in Wellington.

"First, let it be clearly understood that the New Zealand Federation of Electrical Association is in no way specially connected with, or representative of the electrical trade of the Dominion," continued Mr. Moon, "and it should not be confused with the Electrical Workers' Industrial Union of New Zealand, which is under the Industrial Conciliation and Arbitration Act has the sole right to propose to represent the workers in this industry."

"Any person employed in electrical trades, such as the usual electrician, fitter, wireman, and motor workers, housewiring, and so on, is a member of the Electrical Workers' Industrial Union, and not of the Electrical Association. The latter is a political organization, and its members are not entitled to be members of the Electrical Workers' Industrial Union. Therefore the statement which appeared in the "Daily Mail" on Saturday, May 11, 1939, that the Electrical Association had been disclaimed by the Electrical Workers' Industrial Union is entirely untrue."

"The meeting at which the resolution was passed was attended by 100 members but had been advertised as being attended by 200 members. Therefore the statement which appeared in the "Daily Mail" on Saturday, May 11, 1939, that the Electrical Association had been disclaimed by the Electrical Workers' Industrial Union is entirely untrue."
