TOKYO DEMANDS BRITISH SUPPORT FOR "NEW ORDER IN CHINA"

United Press Association—Copyright.
(Received June 17, 1.45 p.m.)

Grave fears are entertained that a decisive battle will occur between the Japanese and the British Commonwealth in the near future, when the Japanese plan to march towards the British Commonwealth, ostensibly to honour the victims of the Chinese Revolution.

The British authorities are studying means of preventing the Japanese from advancing towards the British Commonwealth.

A letter from Tokyo states that the Japanese have conceived the idea of a "New Order" in China.

Residents in the British Commonwealth were awakened early this morning by an outbreak of firing from Japanese guns. The firing was a result of the Japanese desire to make the British Commonwealth a "New Order" in China.
