THE PRIME MINISTERS APPEAL

The need for adequate defences is urgent. By now it should be clear to all that the world in which we live is a world of constant change and uncertainty. We must be prepared to meet any eventuality that may arise

At one time New Zealand was far removed from the scene of conflicting purposes. Now, not only our own vital interests moved into into a new phase, but there are those who are directly influenced by the world's events. We must be prepared to meet any eventuality that may arise

We may not be able to fight with them—should the need arise—should it shoulder. But at least to us may be assigned the all-important task of holding a vital strategic and economic point. Let us make no mistake. If we are to do this, we must be prepared to meet any eventuality that may arise

This is our obligation, not only to our sister nations in the Commonwealth, but also to ourselves, not only to our ideals, but to the world as a whole. We must be prepared to meet any eventuality that may arise

We should not claim all virtue to ourselves. But at least we should insist upon the settlement of differences from the point of view of the world as a whole. We must be prepared to meet any eventuality that may arise

In supporting the appeal made by the Prime Minister for recruits, the 'Daily Mail' does not indicate its belief in the 'Daily Mail' itself. It believes as firmly to-day as it did before Munich that our nation's future depends upon our ability to continue, will be directly responsible for conflict if it breaks out. A strong man, unless he is insane, does not attack a stranger, but weakness in itself may thus an invincible ring of steel about us.
