LONDON, July 30.
Draught police action was the immediate result of the passage of the Prevention of Violence Bill. Eight foreigners were immediately ordered to leave the country, seven of whom refused to go and were forcibly sent from the country.
Several suspects left the Dublin from Liverpool by steamer under a strong police guard.
The ferry service to France consisted of two sections to cope with the crowds of Englishmen leaving London.
They were remarkably farewell scenes, several women being seen to weep.

The official newspaper "Il Resto del Carlino" has today taken a milder tone than usual, but it has not been the Italian papers.
It is the first time since the outbreak of the war that the Italian press has been so friendly to Germany.
The paper says that the Italian Government is not in a position to take any action against Germany.
The paper also says that the Italian Government is not in a position to take any action against Germany.

AFTERNOON WEDDING ON SATURDAY
Tucker—Morley
EMPIRE GOWN OF EMBROIDERED SATIN
Maid in Gold Chiffon

A pretty wedding was celebrated in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Hawke's Bay, on Saturday afternoon when William Mackenzie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Mackenzie, was united in holy matrimony with Miss Elizabeth Morley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. James Mackenzie, of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. W. Tucker, also of Wainman. The Rev. Stuart C. Francis officiated, and Miss A. Cook presided at the altar. After the ceremony Miss Mackenzie departed as a solo.

The church was attractively decorated with festooned pines, spruce trees, and ferns, and the bride wore a beautiful gown of cream embroidered satin, the skirt, which flared down to the floor, being of a soft blue. Her beautiful engagement ring, with a brilliant-cut diamond, being fitted in a ring of gold.

The bride wore a hat of green and white, and the bridesmaids wore blue. The bride was escorted by her father, and the bridesmaids by their fathers.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Wm. W. Tucker, also of Wainman, was present, and the groom's father, Mr. Wm. James Mackenzie, also of Wainman.

'Buna' Replacing Rubber

SYNTHETIC PRODUCT

Has Qualities Not Found In The Original

GERMAN OUTPUT

Synthetic rubber is being made in large quantities in Germany, and is being used to replace natural rubber in many industries. The German output of synthetic rubber is being used in the production of tires, hoses, and other rubber goods. The synthetic rubber is made from petroleum products and has many of the same properties as natural rubber, but it is more resistant to heat and cold.
