DIPLOMATIC DOUBLE CROSSROADS

Most nations have adopted a trademark which they brand their own particular ideologies, but now in the world of today there is one nation which has not followed its own course—the double curve. The great and powerful nations of the world are all bound together by the web of the League of Nations, a striking illustration of which is the fact that the League is the only body that has not adopted a trademark.

A brief survey of international dealings and actions of the League of Nations is almost wholly a definite one. It involves a complex, and contradictory, and is paradoxical as the diplomatic moves attending the League of Nations. It is a complex, and contradictory, and is paradoxical as the diplomatic moves attending the League of Nations.

There are questions for which one cannot readily find an answer. It is a complex, and contradictory, and is paradoxical as the diplomatic moves attending the League of Nations.

DEPTH CHARGES

British Official Wire. (Received September 24, 7.30 p.m.)

The crew are subjected to a life of constant tension and fear, as they search for prey in the dark waters of the ocean.

A Ministry of Information bulletin has announced that the British submarine force is now equipped with a new type of depth charge. This new type of depth charge is designed to be more effective than the old type, and is expected to be used in the near future.
