Denial Of Deliberate Delay In Tokyo Talks

CONSULTATION ESSENTIAL

United Press Association—Copyright. (Received August 12, 1.45 a.m.) TOKYO, Aug. 11. The British Embassy issued a statement denying that the Government was deliberately delaying the dispatch of fresh instructions from London for the negotiations on the Tientsin dispute.

The issues are complex, requiring numerous consultations, says the statement.

A later London message from the Foreign Office states that the Four Chinese wanted in connection with the alleged assassination of a Japanese puppet official at Tientsin have been handed over.

A Tokyo message states that an official British statement says that the commander of the Tientsin and the British Consul have expressed regret for Minda's incident, which arose from the presence of British soldiers.

COURSING EXPLAINED

Plumpton or enclosure coursing, properly controlled, as it is in New Zealand, is one of the finest and most thrilling sports. Such big improvements have been made in the system of training and coursing the hares that nowadays the risk of killing the hare before it reaches the escape is reduced to a minimum.

The culling of the wild hares is accomplished by means of long nets, which are erected at right angles to a wire setting boundary fence. It is into this enclosure that the hares are driven by a long line of "beaters".

Men crouched near the nets easily secure the hares once they have been entrapped. They are then brought to the coursing enclosure, which is a field generally about 500 yards long and 200 yards wide.

The narrow end is fenced from the rest to make a home paddock for the hares, where artificial or natural food is provided. For some weeks the hares are allowed to wander in and out of the home paddock until they are familiar with the ground.

The home paddock, which extends the full width of the ground, is secure from the entry of any dog, but allows the hares to enter freely when coursed.

In front of the "escape" a bank is erected to hamper further the greyhounds and to facilitate the escape of the hares into the sanctuary of the home paddock. However, before the hares are coursed by greyhounds they are regularly driven through the "escape" by sheep dogs or greyhounds muzzled.

Preparation of the Hares For the Actual Coursing

On the actual day upon which coursing is to take place the hares early in the day are locked in the home paddock, where they are easily driven into long boxes, each in a single compartment. The hares are then taken to the end paddock away from the "escape".

The dogs entered for the Waterloo Cup or any other coursing event compete against each other in pairs as in an ordinary knock-out tournament. When the particular two dogs that are coursed are harnessed in the slips a single hare is released and given about a 100 yards start. The two dogs are then released together by pulling a cord, and the course is on.

The dogs generally overhurl the hare before it reaches the "escape", but its marvellous turning ability causes the dogs to overturn it. Again and again the hare saves itself by lightning turns, each time getting nearer to the escape, until it finally darts under the absorbing bank, and the puffing greyhounds return to their owners. Needless to say, the object of the club is to get the home hare safely, as the value of a trained hare is considerable.

The dog which obtains the most points in a course is declared the winner, and the points are added as follows:

SPEED, estimated as one, two or three points, according to the degree of superiority shown. THE TURN, one point. THE GO-BY, two points, or if running to the outer side three points. THE WINDING, half a point. THE TRIP, one point. THE KILL, two points or is a decreasing scale according to the degree of merit displayed.
