Pilots' Lengthy Patrols

Machines' Good Behaviour

United Press Association-Copyright. (Received April 3, 1.30 a.m.)

LONDON, April 2. The Royal Air Force reports that recent patrols to Borkum, Norderney, and Sylt reveal the nuisance and the value of these almost nightly flights. The pilots see the lights of the seaplane bases going out immediately they approach, and a strict blackout is enforced as long as the patrol remains in the vicinity.

The resistance varies. Sometimes the British face fierce anti-aircraft fire, with regiments of searchlights sticking up like bayonets. Sometimes only a few guns and searchlights come into action.

British Official Wireless. (Received April 2, 12.45 p.m.)

RUGBY, April 1.

The "New York Times" indicates that the most recent "call-up" poll of public opinion concerning support for the Allies or Germany in the present conflict demonstrates that, during the six months since the last poll was taken, American public opinion, then predominantly pro-Ally in sentiment, is now even more so.

Eighty-four per cent. of those suestioned wish for an Allied victory, while the small group favouring Germany has been reduced from of to 1 per cent.

Factors mentioned as increasing the volume of support for the Allies were a growing dislike for Germany's war tactics, the German treatment of Poland and the growing realisation that England and France are fighting for principles important to America.

The effects of the coal strike daily are becoming more notice able throughout Australia, chiefly through the progressive curtailment of railway and shipping services. Country and surburban train services are to be pruned in New South Wales next week-end. This course already has been taken in Victoria and Queensland.

The passenger shipping service between Sydney and Tasmania will cease shortly. Four thousand employees at the steelworks at Newcastle will become idle by to-night.

to-day received representatives of the Civil Aviation Section of the London Chamber of Commerce. A memorandum was submitted dealing with a number of points including the supply of civil transport aircraft, the development of new services both during and after the war, the provision of the necessary personnel, and the long-range planning of civil air routes.

The deputation drew attention to the importance of maintaining civil air transport services in the time of war, to the continuation of research work on air liners of the future, and, in view of the activity of other nations, to the necessity for taking the long view, in order that when the war ended British civil aviation might not find itself hopelessly outdistanced.

Replying to the deputation, Sir Kingsley Wood said that the policy of the Air Ministry was to support and encourage civil aviation within the limitations which had necessarily been imposed by the war. Empire services had been carried on without interruption, and New Zealand would this month be linked up with the Empire air routes by a weekly service. Flying-boat services to South Africa would also resume this week their pre-war frequency.

LONDON, April 1. The "Daily Telegraph's" Amsterdam correspondent states that page after page of advertisements in German newspapers disclose a serious shortage of all forms of skilled and unskilled labour throughout the Reich.

The advertisers are concerns vitally important in the war effort, like aeroplane works, munition works, shipyards, and even the Goering group of heavy industries.

A 72-hours week applies in many industries. Miners work in shifts of 11 to 12 hours, transport workers 14 to 16 hours daily. Overtime rates do not begin before 72 hours in the Laws preventing the employment of child labour in mines have been repealed. The tremendous strain on the workers has produced a great increase in accidents and diseases. Cancer and skin diseases thin the ranks of the workers in the production of petrol from lignite, while narcotic poisoning and nervous disorders are common in the production of staple fibres and synthetic fats.

United Press Association-Copyright. (Received Apri 2, 2.30 p.m.) WASHINGTON, April 2.

The only comment on the new trade restrictions is regret that Australia finds it necessary to restrain United States and other trade. It is regarded as part of a vast dislocation of world trade which will spread on account of the war, and eventually is likely to cause a grave international economic

The United States is unlikely to protest, first, because there is no discrimination, and secondly, because it is recognised that warring nations often consider severe measures imperative. Experts tentatively estimate the restrictions to affect 2 per cent. of the United States' exports. Australia was taking an additional 10 per cent. earlier. Officials recognise that the United States' total exports to Australia markedly increased as a result of the war. For example, in January it was valued at 9,652,000 dollars, compared with 3,451,000 dollars in the previous January, due to purchases of aeroplanes and munitions.

WELLINGTON WELCOME ACHILLES

Striking Pageantry In The City Streets

PRIME MINISTER'S TRIBUTE

By Telegraph—Press Association WELLINGTON, April 2.

Looking fit and well and obviously in the best of spirits, 400 officers and ratings of H.M.S. Achilles arrived by train to-day from Auckland to receive the welcome Wellington had prepared for New Zealand's naval heroes. The party arrived shortly after 7.30, and Captain Parry and the officers were met by the Mayor (Mr T. C. A. Hislop) and representatives of the Army, Navy, and Air Force.

Special quarters had been provided for the visitors on the waterfront. After breakfast the men paraded at 10.30 and each received a card admitting him to luncheon at the Exhibition restaurant, a dinner this evening, and a dance at the Exhibition to-night. A special souvenir pass entitling the bearer to ride free of charge on trams and buses was also

Not since the days of the last war has Wellington witnessed such scenes of enthusiasm as those which greeted the men as they marched through the city to Cambridge Terrace, where the official reception was held. Early in the morning coloured bunting appeared here and there on buildings, but it was not till about an hour before the time of the procession that the city really showed signs of awakening to the significance of the occasion. In that short time the streets were transformed from the usual everyday thoroughfares to avenues of gaiety and colour. Watchers at windows and walls threw multi-coloured streamers, which fell in swirling masses to the streets, where the ends were eagerly grasped by pedestrians lining the route. Streamers and ribbons were stretched from hand to hand across the street, thus forming a barrier, through which the procession was compelled to pass on its triumphal way.

By the time the heroes of the River Plate battle came into the central streets the buildings were connected by hundreds of thousands of tiny links, each designed to add homage and tribute to New Zealand's men of the hour.

As the men marched smartly through the lines of people thunderous cheering rose from all sides, and if there was a fleeting thought in the minds of some of the grim purpose behind this march, it was momentarily overshadowed by the memory of an exploit which signified a duty well and nobly done. Bronze, smiling and trim in the traditional uniforms of the British Navy, they encompassed the practical gesture of a Dominion's willingness to take its full share in the battle arena of an empire at war.

The whole field of economic warfare is being thoroughly surveyed with a view to stopping such gaps in the blockade of Germany as continue.

The measures taken in regard to one of these gaps were revealed in last week's announcement of the secure of ships in the Pacific while en route for Vladivostock with value eventually for Germany.

The Balkan countries also still represent a source of enemy supplies, and it may be assumed that, when consultations with the British Ministers in these countries take place in London early this month, this question, as well as political issues, will be fully examined.

Public attention in London and elsewhere has, however, been mainly directed towards Germany's continuing trade with the Northern European countries, and action to tighten up the blockade there has already been taken. "ANDY HARDY GETS SPRING FEVER

Latest In A Popular Series

"Andy Hardy Gets Spring Fever," now at the Regent Theatre, Hastings, demonstrates that the Hardy Family series grow stronger with each picture. Never before has the family appeared more human, more appealing. In this latest of the Hardy saga the family gets a taste of romance and drama. The Judge, portrayed by Lewis Stone, becomes involved in a crooked promotion stunt which threatens the savings of the Hardys as well as of their friends. The irrepressible Andy, naturally none other than Mickey Rooney, quarrels with his girl friend Polly Benedict, and falls in love with his beautiful dramatics teacher. The latter role is played by a newcomer, Helen Gilbert, who shows definite ability.

To win the esteem of his teacher Andy writes a play for his class show and wins the leading role in it. The young teacher in a moment of The young teacher in a moment of loneliness listens to Andy's boyish declaration of love and finds herself declaration of love and finds herself suddenly being asked in marriage by the lad. The Judge, despite his own worries, tries to talk Andy out of his infatuation, but the latter won't listen. Finally, on the day of the play, the Judge turns a wise trick which saves all the money mulcted by the promoters and Andy discovers that his teacher is engaged to someone else. Only then does he come to his senses to realise that Polly is still, as always, his girl.

Fay Holden and Sara Haden, as the restraining Mother and Aunt Milly, turn in their usual heart-warming characterisations, Cecilia warming characterisations, Cecilia Parker wins sympathy as Marian Hardy, and Ann Rutherford once again personifies the "sweet sixteen" type of girl who has played a part in every boy's adolescent years. Terry Kilburn is a newcomer to the Hardy ranks, and is excellent as the little boy who worships Andy Hardy much to the latter's Andy Hardy, much to the latter's

It is here that the pulse-pounding drama of the story reaches spectacular heights, with McLaglen whirled about in a maelstorm of love, gripping remorse, terror and bewilderment until his ordeal is eased with a supreme sacrifice.

An unconscious touch of humour brightened the proceedings at a farewell to soldiers in a Taranaki tural district recently, when one of the principal speakers expressed the hope that the recipient of a pre-sentation would soon be back again safe among them as a sergeant-major. This provoked laughter from the large attendance, in which the speaker joined, when he real-ised that the soldier he was addressing was going away with the rank of captain.

Both Young and Miss Steham a respective ranch manager and a automobile will travel on a graduation of the cost will be expected.

Both Young and Miss Sothern show what they can do with meaty roles and entertainment-packed situations in this story which, although placed against eye-striking and picturesque backgrounds of the cattle country, is decidedly not a Western in the accepted sense, but is an original and highly modern story of four people placed in dramatic juxtaposition.

ACTION DRAMA OF TIMBER TRADE

Jack Holt In "Roaring Timber"

With a star-studded cast headed by Jack Holt, Grace Bradley, Ray-mond Hatton and Ruth Donnelly, "Roaring Timber," spectacular ac-tion-drama of the big timber coun-try, is now showing at the Mayfair ry, is now showing at the Mayfair

It is replete with good performances, moves at a thrill-a-minute pace, and, thanks to the hilarious antics of Hatton and Miss Donnelly, who are two of Hollywood's ablest f laughs.

Holt is cast as a logging boss, the hardest-driving superintendent in the whole north woods, who faces the job of getting out an enormous volume of timber in record time in order to fulfil a contract.

How Holt does this, and how he meets the climax toward which the story sweeps, proves great screen fare. Vivid spectacle highlights the whole; a dam breaks, with thousands of logs rushing to sea; there is a forest fire sequence, with Holt and his workmen dynamiting whole acres to halt the blaze.

In the second feature, Jean Ar thur's captivating charm sparkles anew when she appears with Joel McCrea in Columbia's "Adventure anew when she appears with Joen McCrea in Columbia's "Adventure in Manhattan." Their diverting adventures run the range of high comedy and gripping melodrama with an engaging romance deftly entwined on the surprise-packet plot.

"Conspiracy," Is A Story Of Dictatorships

Giving a vivid glimpse of what tife is like in the totalitarian coun tries to-day, "Conspiracy" is now showing at the State Theatre, Napier, with Allan Lane, Linda Hayes, and Robert Barrat in the leads. The plot of this exciting adven-

Lane, as the radio operator aboard the ship, is speedily involved in the affair. He escapes from the vessel and swims ashore, only to find himself a fugitive from both sides seeking his life. A mysterious girl takes him in charge and endeavours to get him safely out of the country, and this leads to the thrilling series of adventures in which the pair are pursued by the police, try to escape by sea and fail, make a bold dash for the radio station at the harbour and summon aid for their final dash

How Reno became America's divorce capital is brilliantly told as the background of RKO Radio's newest offering, "Reno," co-starring Richard Dix and Gail Patrick, which will be the second feature.

The story of the Nevada city's transformation from a rough-and tumble mining town to its present prosperity comprises the picturesque canvas against which is painted the engrossing human story of the two tars, and what happened to their

OFFICIAL OPENING TO-DAY

With the advent of Miss Doris Goldsbury, Y.W.C.A. secretary, the newly established Y.W.C.A. in Na-pier will develop a programme along many varied lines.

The essential principle upon which the Y.W.C.A. bases all its work is to the Y.W.C.A. bases all its work is to ascertain the real interests of the girls themselves, and to build the programme around those interests.

Many girls enjoy most an evening of mixed entertainment, games, and folk dancing and singing and talk, and experience proves that girls who belong to such "club" groups develop a spirit of camaraderie that lasts through the years, and they learn at the same time val-

All these things are the material of citizenship training.

With all groups of young people singing is popular, and this general interest sometimes develops into the formation of a choir or glee club. Musical interests may also lead to a series of recitals and lecturettes to develop an appreciation of the great

The Sunday afternoon tea time is also an opportunity for friendly social intercourse of which girls away from home will be glad to avail themselves.

Vast Selling Programme And A New Production Drive

The war has embarked the United States on the largest ship-selling programme in its history, says the "Christian

Since the beginning of the hostilities 114 American-built vessels have been sold to foreign Governments or foreign corporations, and these range all the way from a tiny lumber schooner, disposed of to Canadian interests, to the 15,000-ton liner President Fillmore, which now plies the hazardous European seas under the flag of the Netherlands.

Four rinks from the Waipawa Bowling Club paid a visit during the week-end to the Omarunui and Bluff Hill Clubs. The outing was an unqualified success, and a most enjoyable day was spent by all.

Playing on the Omarunui green in the morning, the visitors were successful in winning two games, losing one, the other being drawn. Their afternoon's venture was not so successful, however, the Bluff Hill teams winning three of the four games. The United States Maritime Commission, contrary to some opinion expressed in Congress, view these and possible further sales as an asset to American shipping prospects. They see the Merchant Marine ridding itself of numerous old, slow-moving vessels which would likely end up in the junk heap in a few years. They consider this weeding out of less efficient bottoms as a healthy prelude to the large-scale shipbuilding programme which is now under way and by which 500 new, modernised vessels will be constructed at the rate of 50 a year for the next 10 years.

The position in which the Merchant Marine finds itself to-day is considerably different from that at the opening of the World War, Maritime Commission officials point out. In 1914 the United States had only 30 ocean-going ships of 2000 tons or over. Large stores of sumplies be. Those who made the visit were royally entertained by the members of both clubs, and a cordial invitation was extended to them to make return visits next season, when the Waipawa Club could repay in some measure the hospitality extended to Endeavours are being made to arrange for a similar visit to two of the Hastings clubs over the next week-end, and any Waipawa players desirous of making the trip are requested to hand in their names either to the president (Mr. Murray) or the secretary (Mr. Kingston) without delay, so that arrangements can be finalised.

An invitation has been extended to the members of the Waipukurau Club to pay a visit to Waipawa on Saturday next, April 6, to play a friendly game, and eight full rinks will be making the trip. During the afternoon an opportunity will be taken of handing over the Dillon Shield which has been won this year by the Waipukurau Club. In 1914 the United States had only 93 ocean-going ships of 2000 tons or over. Large stores of supplies became ruined in freight yards because of the lack of ships.

When the present war began the United States had 335 ships of 2000 tons or over. Although many of them are slow and costly to operate they probably could have been used. they probably could have been used profitably had not the Neutrality Act, barring American commerce and travel from stipulated combat zones, had the effect of docking about 90 United States passenger and cargo ships. The Commission thus welcomes the sale of these ships to Allied and neutral countries which need them to make up for tonnage lost by naval warfare. New Production

The eight ships, which have been sold to the Societe Maritime Andersoise of Antwerp, will ply between New York and Belgian, French and English ports. The ships, largest of which is the President Harding, have been in service for 20 years. The United States Lines will represent the Belgian purchasers in the United States.

The "Essener Zeitung" said:
"One would assume that in emotional war times, neutral nations, which, especially like Belgium, are in a critical centre of conflict, would strictly avoid everything which could stir up doubts about their neutral position. Without regard for this, the Belgian Government found New Production

The masks, resembling the composer so strikingly as to be unmistakable, have been lacquered black, with the wild locks of hair bright red. Collectors believe that some Indian maskmaker must have seen a mask of Beethoven somewhere, and copied it. On Saturday afternoon a lorry owned and driven by Mr M. Hunt, Taradale, went over the bank on the Mohaka Hill, rolling about 40 feet and turning over twice before com-

The vehicle was loaded with empty oil drums, and was travelling from Wairoa to Napier when the lorry left the road, plunging down the hillside.

Fortunately, Mr Hunt and the ther occupant, Mr Lavery, West-nore, received only minor injuries. Mr Lavery was admitted to the Wairoa Hospital suffering from facial and other injuries while Mr Hunt's injuries were treated by Dr C. M. Debden-Wilkins. Military Manoeuvres

On Monday evening A Company of the First Hawke's Bay Regiment carried out military manoeuvres on Napier foreshore between Raffles and Edwards Streets, the action taking the form of a re-enactment of the retreat from Anzac. They were assisted by Napier Boys' High School cadets, under Mr C. J. Bagley, and No. 15 Platoon of the machine-gun section.

No rounds were fired because of the exercises being held in the Napier Borough. However, a Verey flare which showed up the sea with a phosphorescent green, and moment-arily lit up the men on the beach in startling relief, was fired.

TAKING UP THE BURDEN

To be Prime Minister of New Zealand at a time of Imperial and international crisis is no sinecure. The burden of that heavy office has already weighed down one good man to the grave. But it is the British tradition that when there is a gap in the ranks there is always someone ready and willing to step into the breach.

General has appointed the Hon. P. Fraser to the onerous task of leading the country for the present was no surprise. It was the logical outcome of past events. Just recently there may have been some qualms and doubts about the succession, but the straight-out attitude adopted by the Labour Conference ridded the Dominion for the time being at least of a knotty and difficult problem.

Mr Fraser, of all the members of his party, is best qualified to take over the reins of office. As a man he compels the admiration of his fellow citizens, and as an administrator he has more than once proved his sterling worth. His work for health and education alone qualifies him for the high office which he has now assumed, and it is most likely that the temporary nature of his appointment will become a permanency when the party makes its final decision.

Mr Fraser is a quiet and canny Scot, with none of the oratorical tricks and flourishes of others who would fain see their own ambitions realised, whatever the cost of their realisation might be to the country. His personal character appeals to all sections of the people, whatever their political views, and his knowledge of parliamentary procedure has been proved during many a doughty battle on the floor of the

Moreover, Mr Fraser is the only member of Cabinet who has seen at first hand just what is being done in Europe by the Allies. He has visited the actual scenes of battle and has observed for himself the nature of the gigantic task confronting the Empire. During a war, it is essential that we should have a man to guide our deliberations who has actual, practical experience behind him. In this regard there could be and there should be no other choice than Mr Fraser.

Whether he can wield the same authority over the followers of the Labour persuasion remains to be seen, but there can be no doubt that he possesses all the qualities necessary to become a real leader. He is a man whose judgment is always cool and calculated and who is not easily hoodwinked by pretence or sham.

The time is serious, and Mr Fraser may rest assured that the sympathy, co-operation, and help of all the people will be behind him in his effort to carry forward New Zealand's part in the present struggle to a successful conclusion. Whatever he may have said or thought of the last war, he has made it abundantly clear that in the case of the present war he is all for its thorough prosecution, realising that if disaster should befall the Allies, then everything is lost in the

It is devoutly to be hoped that the arrangements which have been made for the carrying on of the country's business will be endorsed by the Labour Party and that an end may be brought to the bickerings which have already threatened the welfare of the Dominion. Every citizen will wish Mr

CHRISTCHURCH FRAUD WAIROA TO THE CASE IN PROGRESS

Alleged "Victims" Tell Of Transactions With Two Defendants

By Telegraph—Press Association

CHRISTCHURCH, April 2. The hearing of fraud charges against Alan Donald Park and Stephen Arthur Williamson was continued in the Magistrate's Court to-day.

John Adams Buchanan, a retired linotype operator, said that Park called at his house and offered him a directorship in a parking station. He was expected to put in £100, and he paid Park two sums, one of £55, and one of £25, which witness drew from the Post Office Savings Bank. For the remainder he raised a £20 loan. He also handed Park 60 shares in the Wilson Cement Co. When he decided to raise the loan he told Park not to sell the shares, and tried to get the scrip back, but could get no satisfaction. Eventually he resigned his directorship. He had received no return at all.

his solicitor's hands.

Elizabeth Marjorie Neave, spinster, of Halswell, said she had known Park for some years, having met him when he called at her home on insurance business. In October, 1938, Park called and told her of A. D. Park Ltd., and said he had money in the company. She understood him to say that he had bought a section in Lichfield Street to establish a chain-testing and parking station.

Agreed to Invest Money

Agreed to Invest Money

She was taken to see the section in Lichfield Street, and, after a time, she agreed to invest money in the concern, and gave Park £50 in notes, which she had drawn from the Post Office. She also invested £50 in the Top Hat Company, paying £50 to Park personally, for which he promised her 75 fully paid shares.

In March, 1939, after a great deal of persuasion, Miss Neave said she invested a further £50 in A. D. Park Ltd. The interest was to be 6 percent. At Park's request the cheque was made payable to him personally. Later she paid a further cheque for £50 to the company. The total amount paid by her for shares was £200. In May, 1939, Park approached her about becoming a director of A. D. Park Ltd. She was very unwilling, but agreed to be a director temporarily while another director, Mr Gibb, was ill.

Further Investments

Further Investments She was told she would have to invest further money, and would receive £3 a week. To invest this further money she agreed to sell 100 D.I.C. preference shares and 100 shares in Beath and Company. When she became a director she was introduced to Williamson, who seemed to be "Lord High Everything."

She signed cheques, usually blank, for the company. These were usually brought to her by Gordon Williamson, a son of the accused, or by the first the could get back £6 previously paid to witness on an inversional paper, so that he could get back £6 previously paid to witness on an inversional paper, so that he could get back £6 previously paid to witness on an inversional paper, so that he could get back £6 previously paid to witness on an inversional paper, so that he could get back £6 previously paid to witness on an inversional paper, so that he could get back £6 previously paid to witness on an inversional paper, so that he could get back £6 previously paid to witness on an inversional paper, so that he could get back £6 previously paid to witness on an inversional paper, so that he could get back £6 previously paid to witness on an inversional paper, so that he could get back £6 previously paid to witness on an inversional paper authorising witness to paper authorising witn

Witness thought that the money was to be invested in a pie cart business. He had heard nothing since of the £110 for which the debenture was supposed to have been sold. Nothing had been returned to him.

Some time in May, 1938, he had called at Francevitch's house with Williamson, whom he introduced as a share salesman for A. D. Park, Ltd.

Williamson eventually got Franicevitch to put £100 into something. What it was he did not know. Witness got Franicevitch to sign a paper, so that he could get back £6

The Republican National Committee has issued a statement calling President Roosevelt's statement about Mr. Sumner Welles's mission to Europe "advance notice that the President contemplates the United States playing a major role in the settlement of the European quarrel."

Zealand wool as would be resold would be fine wool only.

Quality and Class.

Mr Christie said that wool so far released for resale by the United Kingdom had ranged from the finest quality fleece to lowest quality locks drawn from every part of New Zealand. It was impossible to determine what quality and class of wool during the war period would bring the highest price on a free and open market or which was in most demand, as only a small percentage of the world's production was at present being offered.

It was certain that any New Zealand wool would bring higher than the British Government purchasing price if offered in Canada or the United States in the present restricted quantity. Had the prices realised by the various classes of wool for the two years preceding the declaration of war been the deciding factor in determining the prices to be paid under the Government purchase, producers of fine Merino and halfbred wool would not be receiving nearly as much as they were at present. be receiving nearly as much as they were at present.

A further 28 German merchantmen at Trieste are expected to follow the Ankara.

It is believed that this attempt to relieve congestion on the railways to Germany is a direct result of Italian co-operation.

From the Army viewpoint, too, the result has not been completely satisfactory. The X-ray examination has certainly saved the country money in one direction. That is, it has avoided pensions for invalidity which would probably only become noticeable during the rigours of active service overseas.

On the other hand, it is stated that the delay in holding the X-ray examination has cost the Army Department money in another direction. The men discharged have been paid by the State for as long as they have been in camp. Again, they have to a degree set back their units' training programme, since the units' training programme, since the new men sent in to replace them have had to be brought up to the standard of proficiency reached by the men who have passed the X-ray

ANTI-AIRCRAFT WEAPONS

In the last war the air menace to the United Kingdom was mastered, says Mr J. M. Mr Spaight has been principal assistant secretary at the Air Ministry since 1934.

of 1915-18, a defence which "started from scratch," Mr Spaight says that since then the attack has been strengthened enormously and the weight of bombs which could be dropped is far beyond anything imagined in 1918.

But the defence has been stiffened, too, probably to a still greater degree. The development of wireless telephony aids the bomber, but it aids the interceptor still more. It was only in the summer of 1918 that wireless control of defending aircraft began to be used. The system was not actually in operation while the raiding was in progress.

Now it is practicable, from the operational room on the ground, to switch a powerful concentration of fighters in the briefest space of time against any given bombing formation and thus to make it possible for the defence to have the necessary superiority at the decisive point. The means of detecting and reporting the approach and movements of hostile aircraft have also been improved almost beyond recognition. Night flying, flying in bad visibility, blind landing after a patrol have all been perfected by practice, aided by the adoption of devices unknown 20 years ago. The task of the interceptor pilots has been made much easier, and the bringing of the raider to action much less a matter of chance.

Britain's Position

If the full fury of the German air attack is directed against this country—the writer concludes—can we "take it?" Most assuredly we can. HASTINGS NEEDS 100 MORE HOUSES

Acute Shortage Of Dwellings Causes Concern

ESTATE AGENTS' VIEWS

Well over 100 persons want to become tenants of houses

m Hastings, but none are available.

This fact was made known to a reporter of the "Daily Mail" following inquiries in the town yesterday. All land agents approached were apprehensive as to the prospects concerning accommodation in the future; all reported having endless inquiries for homes to let-"But we have none," was the parting shot in each instance.

To build more flats, introduce more congenial boarding residences, and encourage private enterprise in the construction of new houses, were the salient suggestions advanced in providing a solution to the problem.

"During the past few years the population of Hastings has increased by more than 2000 and instead of the position of accommodation improving or even keeping in line with the progress of the town it has become worse," declared one land agent. Of about 10 boarding-houses originally built in Hastings there were no more than five in use today. The town was very much in need of a well-appointed boarding residence for bank and office clerks and school teachers.

"When I came to Hastings six years ago there were 15 to 25 houses available constantly for rental," he added. This was the time when wages were in most cases low and in consequence two families living in one dwelling was not uncommon.

Position Not Improved
In spite of the construction of

In spite of the construction of many Government homes and men going overseas the position, in his experience, had not improved recently. "Large numbers of would be tenants are now getting desperate and look upon the land agents as hopeless."

Continuing, the agent contended that too many houses to-day were inadequately built. In his opinion the Government would be well advised to lend money to private enterprise, but before doing so ascertain that the houses be built according to specifications. The class of house being erected to-day was in most instances unsubstantial and in view of this he contended that it was necessary to "stiffen up" the building regulations.

"We cannot say we have come to the limit of house construction. I believe that within five years the public will demand built-in refrigerators and possibly a central-heating."

Inquiry For Sales

On account of the acute shortage of rental houses in the town there was a definite inquiry for sale, advised another estate agent. Where many people rented a house previously they were buying to-day, for home-seekers wanting to pay from £1/5/- to £1/15/- for a week's rental were confronted with endless difficulties. He knew of at least 20 persons who wished to occupy separate dwellings immediately.

"What we want in Hastings besides houses are more flats," he added.

One business man in Hastings considered himself particularly lucky when he secured a suitable place in which to live late last week after waiting patiently for four months. During that period he had scrutinised newspapers closely and only two homes, unsuitable for his purpose, were advertised for rental.

Mr Henderson explained that though only one member of the brigade had been called up for military service, it was expected that before long there would be a fairly serious depletion in the ranks of the younger members. It was useless the brigade taking on new young members, as they would be called up in turn, and the training they had been given in the fire-fighting service would be lost to the brigade.

THE FISCAL POLICY OF GERMANY CRITICISED

The People Must Earn More To Meet War Costs, Says Herr Funk

A speech which Dr. Funk, Minister of Economic Affairs and President of the Reichsbank, delivered before the Advisory Council of the Reichsbank, seems to have fluttered the Nazi dovecotes, says "The Times." A brief summary of it was issued by the German News Agency, but there was no sign of it to be found in the German newspapers next day. Neutral correspondents in Berlin were extremely surprised when they were told at the Government Press Bureau that they must not interpret the speech as evidence of a conflict between the financial and economic policies of the Government, since they had so far had no opportunity of reading the full text. The passage in the speech which led to a hasty corrective being issued by the Press Bureau seems to have contained a sharp warning that the fiscal measures which were being employed to finance war expenditure were likely to defeat their own objects if persisted in. In giving this warning, Funk is reported to have spoken with a frankness worthy of

The second point was that the Treasury was making a great mistake in taxing certain profits which really existed only on paper. He was referring to the situation of retailers who, owing to the recent strict rationing of commodities, had been led to sell out practically their whole stock. In theory this represents an ideal turnover, but in practice it simply means that they have realised their working capital. If this is to be taxed as if it were gross earnings it means that they will not be able to renew their stock.

By stimulating use of improved methods of production and marketing, it is also expected that the farmer will be placed in a better position to with stand the readjustments anticipated

The committee's programme consists basically of the stimulation of ordinary peacetime farm activities. For instance, it will work for intensified drought prevention, keeping feed on the farm, guarding against coop failures by diversification and crop failures by diversification and other means, improved breeding of stock, reduction of wastage, such as badly balanced feeding and the feeding of poor animals, less over-cultivation with its consequent loss of vation with its consequent loss of

It is hoped that prices of implement parts especially may be reduced in this

A call was received by the Napier Fire Brigade at 9.25 p.m., and two engines were dispatched to the scene. The shed, a very old building, was already well alight and little could be done to check the flames. When the blaze subsided it was seen that the car had been completely destroyed.

It is understood that the owner of the vehicle was Mr W. Williams, a well-known Napier cyclist and sportsman. No particulars as to insurances were available last night.

POLES AT DANUBE VILLAGE

Winter Accommodation

For the first time in its history the exclusive summer resort of Leanyfalu, just outside Budapest city, has not slumbered during the winter months. This winter the holiday chalets of Maiden's Village—to translate the name Leanyfalu—have offered shelter through the cold weeks, not to vacationists, but to those other modern "away-fromhomes"—refugees.

It was early in October that a camp came into being at Leany-falu when the need arose for sheltering Polish refugees who were then flocking into the country in unexpected numbers. Leanyfalu is a beautiful village near the banks of the Danube. the Danube

The first "settlers" were looked upon with a kind of awe by those who came later. They were supposed to know everything, and were asked for advice. In a short time they formed committees and elected a president. Figures released yesterday by the stationmaster at Napier (Mr C. H. Among the maidens in work at Hastings at present I note that Tideway bears a well forward appearance and it is obvious that the H.B.J.C. president, Mr G. D. Jumper Resumes

The Hastings mentor, Jim Price, has had a lot of trouble with Fossicker since the tall Hunting Song gelding hurt himself at Felding in the spring, but the injured tendon has responded to his treatment and his charge is again among the daily workers at Hastings while he jumped the other morning. Fossicker has done a lot of road and hill work in the past month or two and he leaves the impression that he is forward enough to play a prominent part in the decision of the hurdles races at the Hawke's Bay meeting next week.

Flying Spy is the best performed youngster in the Bay this season and, while she falls below the requirements of the big two-year-old events, there is no gainsaying the fact that she is extremely useful in handicap events. This Hunting Song filly is a good weight-carrier and, despite her solid imposts, she will be found well in the picture at the Hawke's Bay meeting, her brilliance at the barrier being a great factor in her favour. Flying Spy is bred from Lady Spy, who showed good form a few seasons back both on the flat and over hurdles. A message from Albany reports that Governor Lehman to-day signed a Bill legalising pari mutuel betting and outlawing bookmakers throughout the whole State.

It is estimated to yield 5,000,000 dollars in revenue annually. The Bill makes effective a constitutional amendment approved last year. It provides for a 10 per cent. tax on all bets, equal proportions going to the State and to the racing ssociations. Gold Vaals is very well at present, but Proud Fox now meets him on 7lbs. better terms and will be bet-ter suited by the shorter journey.
