Twelve Messerschmitts Beaten Off

THREE BROUGHT DOWN

Fine Feat By Four French Aircraft

SPECTACULAR AEROBATICS

United Press Association—Copyright. (Received January 14, 10.10 p.m.)

LONDON, Jan. 13.

A French second-lieutenant and three sergeants piloted four 'planes which engaged 12 Messerschmitts and brought down three. The Germans were flying at a great height and suddenly swooped on the Frenchmen, who were escorting a reconnaissance home from a photographic mission.

The battle, which occurred at 10,000 feet, was a series of spectacular aerobatics.

One Messerschmitt was shot down in flames, the second went into a spin, and the third was forced down to an altitude of 2500 feet and raced across the German lines before being shot down from behind.

Defence fighter patrols shot down an enemy 'plane off the south coast of Scotland. A later message states that the engagement occurred over the sea near the Firth of Forth, which has proved an uncomfortable area for the Nazis, at least six being shot down and others badly hit there during air battles since the outbreak of the war.

The British Air Ministry announces that Coastal Command machines attacked three enemy destroyers off Horn-reefs (25 miles off the coast of Jutland) on January 11, when bombs were seen to explode close to the destroyers. The 'planes suffered no damage.

CASUALTIES BY AIR.—Typical French thoroughness is seen in this picture of the method adopted by the French Air Force to carry urgent cases by air. Special nurses are trained to look after the patients in transit.

R.A.F. RUNS GAUNTLET OF NAZI DEFENCES IN FLIGHT TO VIENNA AND PRAGUE

ONE THOUSAND MILES COVERED IN PAMPHLET RAID

NINE-HOUR TRIP ABOVE THE BLIZZARD

United Press Association—Copyright. (Received January 14, 9.10 p.m.)

LONDON, Jan. 13.

The Air Ministry announced that the R.A.F. last night carried out an extensive reconnaissance of Austria, Bohemia, north-west and eastern Germany, and the security patrols continued all over the Heligoland Bight. All our aircraft returned safely to their bases.

It was the greatest survey flight of the war. A minimum estimate is that the machines covered at least 1000 miles and were obliged to fly at tremendous heights and endure extreme cold over snowbound Central Europe.

The flight was comparable to a trans-Atlantic flight from Newfoundland, with the additional strain of running the gauntlet of the Nazi defences.

It is believed that two units participated. The achievement contrasts vividly with the Nazi claims to a reconnaissance over Britain, which was merely a shallow penetration of the coastal areas.

It is reported that the machines began from France and dropped leaflets over Vienna and Prague.

The evening newspapers enthusiastically record the flight, and reports from the pilots received later claim great attention, states a British Official Wireless message. The flight occupied about nine hours, and, in spite of the low temperatures, later reports state that the crews suffered little from the cold, one pilot saying: "If anything, we were a little too warm."

The flight, which so far is the outstanding leaflet raid of the war, started from French aerodromes and the first town sighted by the pilots was one brilliantly lit somewhere on the Swiss border. Passing into eastern Germany, the aircraft split into two sections, one bound for Vienna and the other for Prague. A pilot who dropped leaflets over Prague said, "The German defences were endless miles of black velvet, but the Austrian towns could be picked out by the lighting."

The difference in the efficiency of the blackout between Germany on the one hand and Austria and Bohemia on the other, was especially noticeable, many members of the aircraft crews remarking upon the ease with which the Austrian towns were picked up by the lighting. One pilot said: "We could even see the headlights of cars moving along the roads."

Homeward Flight

Vienna was easily identified by the lights and river, and the aircraft, having dropped their leaflets, turned for home.

On the way this section passed over a large town, believed to be Linz, and set a course for Frankfurt. The only event on the journey home was when one aircraft passed through a searchlight beam. The course was quickly altered and the machines were far away before the anti-aircraft guns could open fire.

Equally uneventful was the journey of the Prague section, one pilot saying: "We were expecting things to happen all the time. They never did and we were not fired at."

Munich Cautious

This section noticed that Munich was fairly well lit on the outward journey but was well blacked out when they returned.

The engines of the aeroplanes behaved extremely well. "We could have gone on for another five days," was how one pilot put it.

Later details of the flight show that the machines from the west landed undamaged at a base behind the Maginot Line at 2 a.m. after reconnoitering Eastern Germany. Others from England reconnoitered North-West Germany, while the patrol was maintained over the Heligoland Bight.

A pilot who dropped leaflets over Prague said, "The German defences were endless miles of black velvet, but the Austrian towns could be picked out by the lighting."

The bomber was apparently under control until a few feet above the sea. After the crash one man was seen to climb out of the aeroplane into a rubber boat and the British fighter pilot wireless his position to the base. A Coastal Command launch went out and for nearly two hours searched the area in 10-mile sweeps, following the tide direction.

The launch captain explained the difficulty of spotting a thing as small as a man in broken water. Although a seaplane was also sent to search, visibility was too bad to keep contact with the launch.

Swimming Backstroke

Suddenly a black speck was seen three-quarters of a mile away. This proved to be the German pilot, who was lying on his back and was endeavouring to swim backstroke with his arms. He was in full flying kit and the only way to get him into the launch was for one of the crew to get into the water and tie ropes round him and for a derrick to haul him in.

A sergeant at once volunteered and, throwing off his boots, entered the water. He quickly fastened up the German, who was hauled aboard, followed by the sergeant.

Describing the rescue, the launch captain said: "The German officer was near extreme exhaustion, but we soon had him tucked in my bunk below deck. One of the crew gave him his trousers and we fitted him out with a sweater and thick woolen socks. He was most grateful for six cups of hot tea, which he swallowed one after the other."

He said he was trying to swim to England, 20 miles away. He told us his observer, who had been wounded in the fight, had also been in the water, so we went out searching for him for another hour without success.

"Then we started back home with our prisoner fast asleep. We wireless for him for an ambulance, which was waiting to take him to hospital."

"Time Is Not On Our Side"

BRITISH M.P.'S VIEW

Speech In Defence Of Mr Hore Belisha

PREMIER CRITICISED

United Press Association—Copyright. (Received Jan. 14, 9.10 p.m.)

LONDON, Jan. 13.

Mr T. L. Horabin, M.P., declared at Launceston, Cornwall, that he trembled to think what would happen if Mr Chamberlain, Sir Horace Wilson, and the "brass hats" ran the war among them.

He said there was evidence that he won Mr Chamberlain must go. He alleged that there had been misleading propaganda from the Ministry of Information, and denied that time was on Britain's side.

He said there was evidence that Germany would have an air force of from 30,000 to 40,000 'planes by next spring.

He believed that the late War Minister (Mr L. Hore-Belisha) was not given a chance to answer his critics but was sacked on the demand of the generals and his subordinates.

Mr Chamberlain, he said, was surrounding himself with "yes men."

TERRIFIC TEMPEST RAGES OVER EUROPE, KILLING MANY AND WRECKING TRAINS AND SHIPS

OVERHEATED STOVES LEAD TO TRAGIC FIRES IN RUMANIA: BULGARIAN POLICEMAN FIGHTS FAMISHED WOLVES

United Press Association—Copyright. (Received January 14, 8.30 p.m.)

LONDON, Jan. 13.

Europe is suffering from severe cold, with blizzards reaching 132 miles an hour and temperatures of 74 degrees below freezing.

A blizzard that has swept the Balkan peninsula for two days immobilised transport and broke all records for low temperatures. The fate of five snowed-up trains is still unknown.

A German air liner from Athens to Sofia was blown off its course and landed at Belgrade. Two high school girls at Sofia were found frozen to death near the city.

A policeman in south Bulgaria escaped a pack of wolves only after shooting seven.

The ice on the Danube is 14 inches thick and the temperature 64 degrees below freezing. In Bessarabia, where there are many pitiful scenes, many people have been frozen to death. Many are also homeless through setting fire to their houses by over-heating stoves.

The railways are running skeleton services though oil trains, particularly those to Germany, continue. Frozen brakes caused one train to bolt, killing four.

A terrific tempest rages in the Black Sea. The Italian steamer Arabica went aground at Constanza, where shipping is imprisoned by ice. Two Greek ships are reported to have been lost. A Rumanian steamer, the Bucuresti, has wirelessed that she is aground in Greek waters.

Train Fatality

An icy, 100-miles-an-hour gale that is sweeping North Italy hurled a goods train from a viaduct to the road below, killing the driver and many others.

Hundreds were injured in a gale which tore a tanker from its moorings at Venice and sank it. Many houses have been unroofed. Storms interrupted train services as far south as Naples.

U.S.A. IMPRESSED

Chamberlain Policy Wins Approval

United Press Association—Copyright. (Received Jan. 14, 9.45 p.m.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.

"The freedom of expression in Britain after four months of war is amazing compared with France to-day or the United States in the last war," states the London correspondent of the "New York Times."

"Recently published articles blamed Mr Chamberlain's appeasement policy for the outbreak of the war; letters in the newspapers dwell more on Britain's than on Germany's faults; Left Wing publications even debate whether the war merits support."

The correspondent adds that Mr Chamberlain seems to be rejuvenated. "He is in full command without a formidable rival, and is more strongly supported than when he was striving for peace at Munich. He is now as determined to defeat Hitler as he was previously to conciliate him."

"His strength lies in the fact that in both policies he represented the major currents of British opinion."

GOVERNOR'S HOME IN FLAMES

Fortunate Escape Of Duke Of Abercorn

United Press Association—Copyright. (Received Jan. 14, 10 p.m.)

LONDON, Jan. 13.

The Governor of Northern Ireland (the Duke of Abercorn) escaped, with the Duchess and their grandchildren, in night attire from a fire at his residence, Barons Court, Newton Stewart.

The north side of the mansion, containing the sleeping quarters, was extensively damaged.

Russian Version

A Russian communique recounts the activities of scouting parties and infantry units with artillery fire on all fronts. Moscow official circles deny substantial changes on the Finnish front and declare that the past three weeks' operations, during which the Finns claimed to have annihilated three divisions, were confined to reconnaissance and small infantry action. They admit that the cold has facilitated the Finns' position, but say that they failed to profit thereby. The Finns nowhere reached the Soviet frontier.

The claim about wiping out the 44th Division, they say, is fantastic. The division had only 10,000 men and lost only 900.

Russian bombers on Friday raided Turku, the Finnish port at the southern end of the Gulf of Bothnia, for four hours, setting fire to two houses and injuring one woman.

Several groups of Soviet parachutists, each 50 strong, attempted to land behind the Mannerheim Line on the southern front, but were annihilated.

Despite bad weather, the Finnish Air Force carried out a series of daring leaflet raids on Russian bases in the Baltic and on Leningrad. The Russian Army appears to be practically immobilised.

The Air Commissar (M. Kaganovitch) has been transferred to an unspecified post and replaced by M. Shakhurin.

BRADMAN REACHES 1000 FOR SEASON

United Press Association—Copyright. (Received Jan. 14, 9.30 p.m.)

SYDNEY, Jan. 14.

In a Sheffield Shield cricket match against South Australia, New South Wales in the first innings made 270 (M. Cohen 74, McCabe 59, Barnes 34, R. Siggers 45; bowling, Grimmett took 6 for 118, Klose 3 for 21). South Australia in their first made 254.

Bradman (not out 24) has now reached a thousand runs in this season's Sheffield Shield matches.

A unique feature of yesterday's play was that the whole New South Wales side except one were out either leg-before or stumped by Walker.

NEW WARSHIPS THAT PAY FOR OWN KEEP

LINERS CONVERTIBLE INTO AIRCRAFT-CARRIERS

Part Of American Navy Plans

United Press Association—Copyright. (Received Jan. 14, 9.10 p.m.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.

The United States Maritime Commission is calling tenders before the end of the month for two 15,000-ton passenger liners, primarily for the trans-Pacific trade, but which could speedily be converted into aircraft carriers, with 700 feet of flying decks and accommodation for 75 'planes. They will have a tunnel arrangement similar to that of aircraft carriers, a speed of over 30 knots, and gun emplacements permitting armament similar to the most modern carriers.

The vessels, which are described as "warships earning maintenance in peace-time," would be operated by the President Lines and would be the most luxuriously-fitted ships seen in the Pacific.

The Director of Naval Operations (Admiral Stark) told the House Naval Affairs Committee that the Navy would ask Congressional authority to build a new type of 14-inch super cruisers over 10,000 tons for an unexplained reason, but it is believed to be designed to counter commerce raiders similar to the Graf Spee. They will probably be 20,000-tonners.

Defence Vote

The House passed a 264,000,000 dollar defence appropriation, which is 7,000,000 dollars under President Roosevelt's estimate.

It includes the following: War Department, 116,218,000 dollars.

Navy, 154,082,000 dollars. Federal Bureau of Investigation, 1,475,000 dollars.

It also allows for 518 additional Navy 'planes, plus the maintenance and operation of 200 'planes on the neutrality patrol, the commissioning of 64 old destroyers, putting 36 of these into Class I in readiness.

China War To Be Tapered Off

United Press Association—Copyright. (Received January 14, 7.45 p.m.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.

A message from the Tokyo correspondent of the United Press of America states that strong pressure is being exerted on the former Premier (Prince Konoys) to form a Government to succeed General Abe. In the event of Prince Konoys's refusal, the Emperor will probably summon General Sugiyama or the War Minister (General Hata).

The immediate task of the new Government will be to implement the Army's programme, tapering off the war in China and sponsoring Wang Ching-wei's Government, the proclamation of which may be further delayed.

The reason for the change is believed to be caused by the difficulties General Abe has experienced in improving relations with the United States.

A later cable states that Emperor Hirohito has commanded Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai to form a Cabinet.

MICE ON RUAPEHU

The presence of large numbers of mice at altitudes exceeding 6000ft. on Mount Ruapehu surprised a number of members of the Ruapehu Ski Club who spent the holiday season at the club's hut on the mountain. Even at 7300ft. mice were found on rocky outcrops surrounded by snow, apparently having hibernated there during the winter. It was found that the mice entered the hut whenever the door was left open, and no fewer than 50 of them were trapped during the visit.

A Sale Of Flock Rams TENNIS FINALS PLAYED AT WAIPUKURAU CLUB

Singles Titles Won By Mrs Milburn And N. R. C. Wilson

"Daily Mail" Special Service

Attention is drawn to the advertisement of Messrs. Cullinane Bros., Dannevirke, who have decided to hold an annual sale of their 13-year Southdown flock rams on their property at Oringi on January 31. They commenced breeding in 1922, starting with selected sheep, and have supported all ram fairs, for a number of years with eminent success. Their rams have always commanded exceptionally spirited bidding and have topped the various fairs on many occasions. It is owing to increased breeding demand that they have decided to hold their own sales, and will be offering 120 Southdown rams without reserve at their first sale.

Buyers of Southdowns are recommended to note this fixture, as this season's offering is outstanding in quality and conformation. Messrs. Williams and Kettle Ltd. and N.Z. Loan and Mercantile Agency Co. are the auctioneers.

MODERN METHODS OF PRODUCTION ENGLISH ORDNANCE FACTORIES VISIT DESCRIBED

Manufacture Of The Bren Gun

It is not unusual to hear the claim that this or that factory is fitted with the latest machinery, and it is therefore refreshing to find that at works which are turning out stores for the fighting services, while they have modern plant in plenty, an important contribution is being made by old and trusted friends which refuse to be ousted by new gadgets. For instance, in the carpenters' shop of a royal ordnance factory of the Ministry of Supply which I visited to-day (writes a correspondent of "The Times") they proudly pointed out a machine which has been reverently treated in the service of the nation for 85 years. It is a five-spindle reaming machine, but it is referred to as "the bird cage," which is what it looks like.

Respected Veteran

Everybody in the shop has the deep respect, even affection, for this veteran, which stems from his work and between wars has gone on working and "never falling down on the job." But it is not sentiment which explains this long reign in a factory where so many machines are new. The reason is that nothing better is even to-day available. "It never lets us down," they stated in the shop, "and although attempts have been made nothing else has ever been produced."

In other parts of this vast factory one found skilled engineers who were equally enthusiastic about the new machinery. They can measure in the main machine shop more than 1000 machine tools are in use by day and night machining components of the Bren gun. More than 3000 operations go to the making of the 172 parts from which this intricate and efficient weapon is assembled, and the expenditure of care, patience, and skill could not be higher.

Bren Gun Tests

But although meticulous care is taken to ensure accuracy, long and arduous tests are needed to produce a Bren gun, and there is a section where the gauges themselves undergo rigorous examination. The new gauges can measure to within three millionths of an inch.

The Bren gun and other small arms begin to take shape in the smithy, a dark cavern lit brightly by the flames of gas-fueled furnaces. Firmly clamped in long tongs the glowing metal is swung beneath a two-ton hammer, which soon knocks it into shape. But this is not the end of the process. The metal will undergo heat treatment together.

Hardening Methods

For several hours they will be heated in a large gas-fired furnace; then, the forgings are removed in a charging machine, which travels along to a tank of oil and drops its load into the oil, from which shoot flames and afterwards dense clouds of smoke. Now is the hardening process the end, yet further heating is necessary before the steel is as tough as it must be to stand up to the stress to which guns are subjected.

These rough shapes are then passed from machine to machine, and come beneath the edge of a hundred and one cutting tools. Even stainless steel, a necessary material in one part of the gun is carefully dealt with by these tools, and the accuracy achieved is such that complete interchangeability of parts is certain by the time they reach the assembly shop. In this hardening process the end, yet further heating is necessary before the steel is as tough as it must be to stand up to the stress to which guns are subjected.

Tests For Endurance

In the assembly shop we saw Bren guns being run in by machine, so that they shall be ready for immediate use when issued to the troops. On the ranges we watched Bren guns undergoing endurance trials; the gunners blaze away ceaselessly "until something goes." Valuable information is gained in this way. At another point, with a line of sparrow-perched cheekily and calm on the high wall at one end, we saw guns of various sorts and parts being tested for accuracy. Targets were fired at, but it was pointed out that the aim is not to register bulls but to discover how accurately the gun can be adjusted, and what adjustments are necessary. The British Expeditionary Force went to France fully equipped with a Bren gun, and it may be taken for granted that they were thoroughly efficient and reliable weapons.

BUSINESS GIRLS' INTER-
HOUSE CARNIVAL
AT WAIROA

High Standard Of Physical Culture: Large Crowd
Attracted

Womanhood at its best, significant for the health and beauty displayed through fine physical development attained following more than two months of assiduous training, impressed the large crowd that witnessed the Wairoa business girls' first interhouse carnival on Saturday. Attracting an estimated attendance of 700 spectators to the afternoon session and almost 1000 to the evening session, the event was attended by a triumphant success that exceeded all expectations.

The weather, however, was not kind, and when steady rain set in shortly after the opening of the second session it came as a disappointment to the competitors and the organisers, especially since the prospects in this respect on Friday night were particularly bright. Encouragingly enough, the spirit of enthusiasm that had been manifested since the introduction of the campaign at Wairoa was well maintained by both the girls and the supporters; the organisation was complete and the programme of events held the interest of the crowd right to the finale.

Setting a surprisingly high standard of physical culture, Frasertown won the Wairoa championship for the Zakris and Zakris Cup, with Gillespie's as runners-up. The Athletic Club's cup for the Napier teams' best aggregate went to Henry Williams and Sons, Ltd.

Altogether, seven Wairoa teams took part and 100 girls from Napier interhouse teams who gave special exhibitions added to the impressiveness of the carnival, which was a tribute to the officials' splendid efforts.

The competing teams and their captains were as follows:—Andersen's (Miss M. Buchanan), Gillespie's (Miss J. Smith), Osler's (Miss M. Mortensen), Takitimu (Miss Morland), Moore's (Miss E. Moloney), McGoldrick's (Miss M. Harvey), Frasertown (Miss J. Unwin).

The Napier teams who participated but who did not compete for the Wairoa championship were:—The Hawke's Bay Motor Co. Ltd., Henry Williams and Sons Ltd., Hawke's Bay "Daily Mail" Ultimate Radio, Hawke's Bay Farmers Co-op. Assn., Bestall's Ltd., and Monarch Motors Ltd.

Following warm sunshine in the morning, skies became overcast when the teams assembled at Alexandra Park in Marine Parade, but crowds lined the main route to see the procession of Wairoa teams make its way to Lambton Square, marshalled by Mr. N. Russell. The Wairoa Municipal Band provided the music, and it is doubtful whether a single spectator was unimpressed by the excellence of uniformity and precision of movement of the girls.

Attractive Uniforms.
A highlight was provided by the attractiveness of the uniforms, which showed much thought to detail. Great difficulty in the judging of the costumes was experienced by the judges, who said they would have done credit to teams from much larger towns.

The march past the saluting base at Lambton Square was taken by the president of the Wairoa Amateur Athletic and Cycling Club (Mr. T. le C. Powdrell) and the girls received a great ovation.

Splendid Displays.
This was only a forerunner to splendid displays of physical drill and marching exhibitions. The standard in these sections was far higher than usual for a town's initial effort. In addition, a particularly fine mass display of rhythmic drill was performed by 100 well-trained girls.

Enthusiasm ran high when the teams staged the novelty events, including ball games and skipping, and the balloon race was responsible for peals of laughter from the on-lookers.

Undeterred by threatening clouds, greater numbers filled Lambton Square in the evening, when the carnival assumed a striking turn of colour with the powerful floodlights illuminating the area. Furthermore, the inclusion of the six teams from Napier in the second parade accentuated the brilliance of the spectacle.

Shortly after the start of the evening programme, steady rain set in and developed into a downpour, and conditions were exceptionally unpleasant. Still, all but two of the scheduled events were completed.

"Firmly Established."
"The day's performances proved conclusively that interhouse displays are already firmly established in Wairoa," commented the promoter (Mr. A. D. Lynch). "The winning team, which will represent Wairoa at the North Island championships at Napier next Saturday, can be assured that the standard of work will be up to that required," he added.

The Award List
The judges' awards and the various points won were:—
Greatest aggregate of points, champion team (Zakris and Zakris Cup): Frasertown, 127 points; 1; Gillespie's, 122 points; 2; McGoldrick's, 117 points; 3.

Best captain (Ultimate Radio Cup): Miss M. Harvey (McGoldrick's), 1; Miss J. Unwin (Frasertown), 2; Miss Morland (Takitimu), 3.

O'Grady competition (W. A. Crerar Cup): Miss J. Ingoe.
Ball games: Frasertown and Andersen's (16 points), equal 1; Takitimu (9 points), 3.

Andersen's won the over and tunnel and Frasertown won the over and under.
Skipping relay: Andersen's 1, Frasertown 2, Takitimu 3.
Balloon novelty: Andersen's 1, Takitimu 2, Gillespie's 3.

Napier team's best aggregate (Athletic Club's Cup): Henry Williams and Sons.
Trophies Presented
In spite of rain the carnival had been a great success, said Mr. Powdrell in presenting the trophies at the conclusion. On behalf of the Wairoa Amateur Athletic and Cycling Club he extended thanks to all who had assisted in the promotion.

NAPIER WEDDING OF WIDESPREAD

Falvey—Hagen

TRAINED GOWN OF MAGNOLIA SATIN

Bridesmaid In Blue

St. Patrick's Church, Napier, was the scene of an interesting wedding last week, when Evelyn Annabella (Eva), daughter of Mr. S. Hagen and the late Mrs. Hagen, Wairoa, was married to William Francis, only son of Mr. W. J. and the late Mrs. Falvey, Napier.

The altar was beautifully decorated with bowls of agapanthus, gladioli, and hydrangeas, in pink and blue shades, while the guest pews were adorned with white satin ribbon and posies in pastel shades. The decorations were carried out by the bridegroom's cousins.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. C. W. Casey, S.M., and Miss Scott presided at the organ.

During the signing of the register, a sacred solo, "Just for To-day," was sung by Miss Alberta Bousfield, Wanganui, cousin of the bridegroom.

The bride, who was escorted to the altar by her brother, Mr. D. Hagen, Wairoa, wore a graceful gown of magnolia bridal satin, fashioned on slim-fitting lines. The bodice, which was slightly shirred at the shoulders and high waist line in front, featured a high neck-line, clasped in front with a spray of orange blossom. The long sleeves were shirred at the shoulder line, and formed points over the wrists.

The skirt fell from the high pointed waist line at the back to form an oval train, which was trimmed with tiny sprays of orange blossom. The veil of cut parchment tulle was caught to head with a halo of silver orchids, and fell to form a second train. A bouquet of regale and water lilies in cream and pink shades, with trailing asparagus fern and tiny satin bows, completed the bridal toilette.

Silk Taffeta
In attendance as bridesmaid was Miss Freda Houston, Auckland, wearing a dainty frock of delphinium blue silk taffeta, the skirt being fully flared, while the bodice was trimmed with rucking at the neck-line, and off-the-shoulder sleeves formed by two-tiered frills. It was also adorned with shoulder straps of velvet flowers, and a velvet sash was worn on the head, and a bouquet of blue delphiniums with trailing asparagus and blue bows was carried.

The duties of best man were carried out by Mr. J. Foley, cousin of the bridegroom.

The reception was held at Blythes' Tea Rooms, where a floral theme in pink shades was carried out on the tables, the special feature being the beautiful two-tiered square wedding cake, the gift of a friend of the bride, Mrs. Adams, Christchurch. The decorations on the cake included tiny aeroplanes, as a tribute to the bridegroom, who is on the permanent staff at Wigram Aerodrome.

The guests were received by Mrs. D. Hagen, sister-in-law of the bride, assisted by Miss M. Falvey, aunt of the bridegroom. Mrs. Hagen was wearing a frock of blue and white floral sheer, and a white hat, and Miss Falvey wore a two-piece ensemble of navy satin-backed rosinne and a blue tagel hat with touches of cyclamen. Both carried posies of pink shaded carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Falvey left by train for the south, the bride travelling in a two-piece suit of green summer-weight tweed, small brown hat and matching accessories. She also carried a rust-coloured coat.

Their future home will be in Christchurch.

THE "DIFFERENT" ARMY

MORE THOUGHT GIVEN TO INDIVIDUALS BRITISH CHANGES

Human Aspect Has Been Reorganised

It is a remarkable different British Army from that which from 1914 to 1918 confronted the Germans on the Western Front...

Apparently the British High Command in London has recognised that in the last war there was overmuch of the impersonal and that in this war, if Britain is to win, more thought must be given to the men as individuals...

Radical Changes

In the last war brave young subalterns, just out of school, led their platoons against formidable objectives, knowing nothing of the relation their desperate little battle had to the operation as a whole...

Now an effort is being made to change that radically. It is one of the objects of the British High Command that everyone, down to section commanders and privates, shall know what he is about...

Thus the desire for intelligent participation of all grades and ranks necessarily calls for a degree of democratisation in the British Army. That army, like the United States Army, has included the caste system...

"Out of Place" System

Such a system may be and probably is suitable for a relatively small and professional peace-time army, but in a war which calls out most of the able-bodied males of a country...

The caste system in the British Army has been far more rigid than in the American forces because Britain has castes in a way unknown to the United States.

That does not imply any harshness or even excessive stiffness in the attitude of the officers towards the men. In fact, one of the outstanding impressions this correspondent has received in more than two weeks on the British front is the cordial relations existing between the officers and men of the regular army...

There is no trace of Prussianism. The officers speak affectionately of their men and their attitude seems that of elder brothers.

Ban Removed

In the direction of democratisation two more concrete steps have been taken. One is the removal of the ban on officers associating with enlisted men off duty.

the ban on officers associating with enlisted men off duty. In the last war such a step would have been inconceivable.

There is some shaking of heads among officers here as to how the latter will work. Some officers say enlisted men resent taking orders from men of their own class and that they prefer obeying officers of higher social grade...

But the new regulations surely will result in a much larger number of educated and hence socially superior young men entering the army as privates, receiving the actual training of warfare and gradually entering the officers' ranks.

No "Stuffed" Shirts The personalities of the higher officers commanding the British forces, both in England and here, are in keeping with this new move to humanise the army.

One can take the three generals who are at the top of all Britain's military forces on land, two of whom he has had occasion to meet. The three are Viscount General Gort, Commander-in-Chief of the British Expeditionary Force; Sir Edmund Ironside, Chief of the Imperial General Staff; and General Sir Walter Kirke, Inspector-General of the Home Forces.

They are relatively young for such high military posts, the eldest, General Kirke, being 60. Every one is what is known as a "soldier's soldier." Every one has had a most varied military experience, including service on the Western Front in the last war, in which all three distinguished themselves.

General Gort's record is especially one to appeal to the soldier in the firing line, for he won his Victoria Cross and other decorations for heroism while only a junior officer in the World War. To see him going about among his troops on front-line inspection tours confirms the first impression that here is a man of action, a man with an eye for essentials with little concern for formality.

A BRIDAL GOWN OF TINTED LACE AND SATIN

Three 'Maids Attend

The wedding took place at St. Mary's Anglican Church, Hawera, on January 3 of Joan Dorothy, eldest daughter of Mr and Mrs J. G. Lippingwell, Princes Street, Hawera, to Leo Gordon, son of Mr and Mrs L. A. Sigley, Hastings.

Entering the church with her father, the bride wore a magnolia tinted satin and lace gown. The front was gauged and piped, with lace inset to form a coatee effect, to the top to match the front of the gown, and then tight-fitting, with satin-covered buttons from elbow to wrist.

Green Net and Velvet.

The bride was attended by her cousin as chief bridesmaid, and two smaller bridesmaids, Miss Nora Parker, "Opeke," Ararata, wore green net over a matching taffeta frock which had full puff sleeves and a high neckline finished with a Peter Pan collar.

A Jolly Reception.

A reception was held in the Carlton Tea Rooms. Mrs Lippingwell wore a navy blue and white floral striped sash and a navy edge-to-edge self striped sheer coat. A navy and white summer felt hat and all navy accessories were worn.

When Mr and Mrs L. G. Sigley left by car on their honeymoon the bride wore a navy pin-striped tailored costume, cream satin blouse, navy hat, shoes and accessories. The honeymoon was spent at Rotorua.

WOMEN OF THE RED ARMY

Communist women were included in the Russian army forces sent into Poland in the Soviet invasion from the east, states a correspondent in an overseas exchange.

They have separate quarters and wear two types of uniforms—one of regular Red Army style and the other with a skirt. The women flyers are said to perform their duties of flying bombing machines and bombing and machine-gunning under war conditions as competently as their military brothers.

Capable Girls

The correspondent was driven about the streets of Brest-Litovsk by a smiling girl of about 19 who wore a regular uniform and an army cap fitting neatly over her shingled hair.

PROBABLE TACTICS OF THE NAZI AIR ATTACKS

Offensive Strategy Reviewed And The Strength Of British Defences

So far this war has afforded no examples of bombing tactics as employed against well-organised defences. Threats in the German Press and the apparent desire of the enemy to seize air bases in the Low Countries naturally arouse interest in the methods which may be used.

First of all must be realised the distinction between day bombing and night bombing. The difference in conditions demands different methods. Until a short time ago it was held that formation flying by night was out of the question because of the risk of collisions.

In the main it is probable that bombers will work singly at night, the machines of a squadron starting off with a few minutes' interval between each.

The only protection on which the raiders can rely is evasion in the darkness. Their machine-guns are all but useless. For this reason, they are likely to avoid clear nights. They want clouds to hide them, with plenty of breaks through which they can look. When a balloon barrage is guarding the target there will be no inclination for the bombers to come down low.

Value of Searchlights.

By night the defence relies on the searchlights, and the searchlights rely on the sound-locators. If the bomber is caught in the beams it should invariably fall an easy prey to the fighter patrols, which would attack out of the darkness.

The crew in the bombers will certainly keep their parachutes handy. Clouds, however, are not a complete protection to the night bomber. The sound-locators can still help the personnel in the training of the searchlights and they can point out the spot above which the unseen raider is moving.

Years before the war a bomber pilot explained how he had flown on direction and height, but when aiming at their target they must fly straight and level. That should give the fighter a good chance to score hits. Though the guns will greatly help the defence by day, the fighters will still remain the most dangerous enemy of the raiders.

Naturally it is often suggested that the raid might have an escort of fighter machines to engage the defenders. A good deal depends on the distance between the target and the starting-point of the raid.

Long-range fighters can be produced, but it is obvious that a designer cannot turn out a long-range fighter equal in performance and fighting power to one designed purely for fighting without the complication of extra tanks. Therefore in air combat the defending fighters should be superior to the bombers'.

The latter, however, might delay the defenders and hold them at bay for a time while the bombers forged ahead.

Numbers, however, enter into consideration. It is difficult to imagine that the raiders could be escorted by fighters equal in number to those at the command of the defence.

Escort Difficulties. In the case of a raid on Great Britain, there would be enough fighter aircraft available to tackle both the escort and the convoy of bombers.

If Germany were to command air bases in the Low Countries the distance to be covered by a raid would be very much reduced. Even so the German escorts, though they would throttle down on the journeys in and out, would have to open their throttles full when fighting, and if they were short-range fighters they would have only a small margin of petrol to get them home.

Again, they could hardly equal the number of defenders, and hitherto there is nothing to suggest that they could hold their own against the British Spitfires and Hurricanes. It may be that if Germany decides to attack Great Britain by air she may adopt the tactics of sending wave after wave of squadrons, say a dozen machines at a time, by day, trusting that some at least will get into position to drop bombs.

It must needs be that when a state of national emergency exists and when opinions are sharply divided on matters of policy which are regarded as being essential, many strong statements are made on one side or the other which, in their turn, are interpreted by various individuals as personal attacks.

A Minister of the Crown, for example, may be commended to-day and criticised to-morrow. There is nothing inconsistent about that if the Minister himself is not consistent. For the most part it is consistency of policy that is sought for, and individuals as such, whatever their status may be, come into the question only as the vehicles by which the policy is enunciated.

A man, that is to say, may be an excellent golfer, bowler, hiking, business, or any other kind of colleague and yet a stern political or philosophical opponent.

Some recent and current controversies may be taken as cases in point. We may disagree with Mr Savage because he has made no definite declaration on the question of conscription, but that is no reason why we should not agree with him that Mr Lee's personal attack on him is neither fair nor just.

We may believe that the young men of the Methodist Bible Class movement—that strong minority with such strong pacifist views—are excellent fellows with high consciences and with every right to their own opinions—while we most emphatically disagree with their opinions and regard them as completely mistaken.

Again, in general terms it may be pointed out, in regard to the fit young man's duty at the present time, that it is not right that some should bear the whole burden of the risks and hardships of active service.

The average, honourable newspaper seeks to be fair in its dealings with and references to public causes, and is concerned with policies rather than with persons.

Personalities come into the argument only in this way: If a man starts out in one way and then "changes his coat," no commentator can honestly agree with him all the way if the commentator himself is consistent.

BENEFITS UNDER THE LABOUR RULE

Probability Of Trouble In Future Is Denied

PRIME MINISTER'S TALK

Benefits resulting under the Labour Government's regime were stressed by the Prime Minister (the Rt. Hon. M. J. Savage) last night in another of his weekly talks over the air.

Making particular reference to the Social Security Act, and the increases in trade unionism, as well as other actions of the Government in recent years, Mr. Savage stressed also the need for maintaining production, rather than limiting it. He replied also to "prophets" whose predictions of trouble in the future he discounted.

"Of course, we know there are bad times ahead," said Mr. Savage. "People have been saying this for the past four years, but so far everything is all right, and people are still happy—that is, so far as they can be, living in the shadow of war."

"There was a prediction of unemployment early in the New Year, but on looking up the advertising columns in the Saturday Evening Post I find columns of 'Situations Vacant' and they cover all sorts of occupations. It is a record at this time of the year."

"So I would say, beware of false prophets, and I would classify them as being among the enemies of the nation."

Increased Unionism.

"Trade unionists will not have forgotten that because of legislation introduced, trade union membership has increased from 7000 to well over a quarter of a million."

"This strengthens the principle of collective bargaining."

"We have a better chance to get justice when acting in conjunction with Britain and her allies, rather than alone. In any case, it is more businesslike in contracts of a business nature."

"During the term of this Government, the restoration of wage cuts and other increases resulted from action on their part—an increase of just on eleven millions a year. The commercial life of this country has expanded, but some people say it cannot last."

Speeding-up of Production.

"That is true—unless production is maintained. Merely raising wages will not speed up production, although it will provide an incentive to increased production. It is well to realise that when we limit production, as wage earners and employers we are limiting our standard of life. Of course, it is clear from the figures available that production has been increasing, and therefore people are entitled to feel secure—but would the prophets have it so? There is very little room for difference of opinion."

"Some production may have its pitfalls but secondary production has improved tremendously. Factory production in 1939 amounted to

WIND AND RAIN SWEEP PROVINCE IN WEEK-END

Orchards And Property Damaged By Easterly Gale: Crops Will Benefit

A heavy rain driven by an easterly gale swept Hawke's Bay on Saturday night and early yesterday morning, bringing relief to pastures and crops, but at the same time inflicting damage to gardens, orchards, and property. From intermittent showers on Saturday evening, a storm developed towards midnight, continuing for several hours.

Fallen foliage on roads, flattened flower beds, and broken hoardings and gates yesterday provided evidence of the force of the wind. The gale was more of a steady than intermittent nature, but its force at exposed places was sufficient to uproot small trees.

A fair amount of damage was caused to orchards, but growers' losses were fractional compared with what they might have had the storm occurred a fortnight later. A good deal of fruit was damaged by rubbing and bruising.

Gravenstein apples suffered in some localities, and fallen fruit littered the ground in several orchards. Other damage included broken branches, but this was negligible.

Rain-soaked poplars were easy prey to the wind, and their leaves and branches covered many roads and paddocks. Falling trees and branches caused dislocation in power supplies in districts about Hastings, and in some instances electricity was not available until noon yesterday.

Power Affected

The short-circuiting of lines of a Hastings feeder, caused by lashing trees, resulted in a cut-out switch operating several times, and Pukitoki, Korokipo and Pakowhai being without power for varying periods. All available servicemen of the Hawke's Bay Electric Power Board were brought on duty immediately the trouble began, and all services were restored by noon yesterday.

Wireless aeriads suffered considerably, and insecure masts were laid low in many towns. A high pole erected on top of a bank divided at Hastings was bent in the form of a loop, supported by several stay-wires.

Phenomenon in Church

What is regarded in the light of a phenomenon startled many people at morning service in St. Joseph's Church, Hastings. In a lull in the wind a sudden gust struck the high wooden building, rocking it as in an earthquake. Being that an earthquake was occurring, women screamed and two fainted, while several had to be assisted to leave the building.

Campers spent an unenviable night securing their tents against the high wind, and at the same time trying to protect themselves from the driving deluge. At Windsor Park Hastings, several camping motorists forsook their tents for other more secure shelter. Campers at Clifton were threatened with flooding, and one party in this vicinity had a narrow escape when a falling branch struck their tent. The rainfall at Napier yesterday was .81 inches, while at Hastings .87 inches was recorded. An inch of rain fell at Otane yesterday.

Napier Streets Flooded

Light rain began to fall in Napier at about 6 p.m. on Saturday, becoming heavier soon after 8 o'clock. Waterbodies overflowed in Emerson Street, and the roads became almost impassable for pedestrians.

Water penetrated a number of shops in the business area, and in some cases the carpets were damaged, although no serious losses have been reported.

The downpour ceased after about half an hour, and only light rain was falling when theatre patrons left for home.

A strong wind lashed the town yesterday, making conditions unpleasant for holiday-makers and

CYCLONIC STORM AT AUCKLAND

SMALL CRAFT GALE VICTIMS HEAVY RAIN

Beaches strewn with wreckage

By Telegraph-Press Association.

AUCKLAND, Jan. 14.

Heavy rain squalls and a gale which reached its maximum velocity in the early hours of this morning of 72 miles an hour were experienced throughout the province during the passage of a cyclonic storm. High seas swept beaches on the harbour during the night, and over 20 yachts and launches were carried ashore. Most of the craft were damaged, and a number were reduced to broken shells.

According to the meteorological office at Auckland, the cyclone was first located in Northern Australia a week ago, developing in intensity as it moved toward the Dominion.

Heavy Rainfall

After intermittent showers, the downpour developed at midday yesterday, 0.30m of rain falling in 20 minutes. In the 24 hours ended 9 a.m. to-day the rainfall was 3.32m, the highest recording in one day for some years.

Gales were experienced generally over the Auckland Province, the maximum gust in Auckland being 72 miles an hour, and the mean wind over some hours being 50 miles an hour.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW

Advice of his acceptance of an invitation officially to open the National Horticultural Week, 1940, and the National Centennial Flower Show at the Exhibition Buildings on January 30 was given by Sir Harry Battersby, High Commissioner for the United Kingdom, at a meeting in Wellington of the executive of the National Centennial Flower Show. Mrs. Knox Gilmer presided.

The New Zealand Railways notified its consent to the free transport, both ways, of exhibits. A similar concession has already been granted by the Union Steam Ship Company. The executive expressed its keen appreciation of these concessions.

For several hours, in spite of high seas, a group of members of the Kohimarama Yacht Club made valiant efforts to salvage more than half-a-dozen craft which had broken adrift. In some cases their efforts were successful, but there were other instances where nothing could be done to prevent the boats from breaking up on the rocks.

At Mission Bay and Kohimarama alone eight boats, mostly small yachts, went ashore. At Orakei Point, the 20ft yacht Valma was broken up, while a few hundred yards further along the waterfront a 20-foot launch was lost.

Gale's Force

An indication of the force of the gale was provided by a 15ft yacht which dragged a five hundred-weight mooring block for more than a quarter of a mile before being cast up on a beach.

Shops Flooded

The retaining wall along the Waterfront Road was damaged in several places, and several shops at Kohimarama, although on the opposite side of the road, were flooded by sea water to a depth of about six inches. In other parts of the city power poles and trees were blown down, and fruitgroves, especially at Avondale and the Henderson Valley and Tauranga suffered severely.

The Hon. Sir James Sandford, a member of the Legislative Assembly of South Australia, Mr. H. W. Hodgetts, a member of the Australian Board of Cricket Control, and Mr. G. McEwin, Adelaide, are on a holiday visit to the West Coast of the South Island.

ANOTHER CRICKET SERIES ENDED: INTERESTING PLAY

Letters to the Editor

The Conscription Issue

Sir,—In the welter of opinions expressed in your columns on conscription there appears a complete lack of understanding as to what conscription really means.

After all these hebeists, requests and other drivel regarding the rights of the individual, etc., what has really happened is a complete lack of understanding as to what conscription really means.

After all these hebeists, requests and other drivel regarding the rights of the individual, etc., what has really happened is a complete lack of understanding as to what conscription really means.

The speaker, Mr. Jim Piconne is loudly chanting the necessity of more and more production.

Is it not some right to ask those who appear to be governing it whether ten, thirty, or one hundred thousand men can leave these shores regardless of their occupations, or importance to the economic life of this Dominion? After four years of useless draining of the manpower of the country to the more useless pursuit of wasteful Public Works, are the primary industries to see another efflux of their trained men? Every farm hand who enlists is as great a loss to this country as a casualty in battle, and already our industries are hopelessly undermanned. Yet members of the Government are loudly chanting the necessity of more and more production.

It is a time for every Tom, Dick and Harry to be able to ask why, wherefore and how? Is service of that kind going to defeat twenty years of war-trained men? Presto! these little Nerops of another day!—I am, etc.,

Religious Address At Hastings

H. STRATFORD, Norsewood.

Work For Youths

Sir,—During the last war there were plenty of good men and boys in the places of our young shepherds and farm labourers generally, but not so this time. I am speaking especially about shepherds. I do not know if the general public and the Government realises the fact that all the back country which is held in big blocks because it is not suitable for subdivision will go out of occupation not in the distant future but at once if we have got no shepherds.

I suggest as a remedy that the shepherds' wages be substantially subsidised to encourage the young men under military age to take to shepherding and become producers, not consumers.

Seeing that about 95 per cent. of our sterling funds are derived directly from the products from the land, it seems to me absolutely wrong that an essential job that the man on the land is performing should be made into the Cinderella of the occupations available for a boy or girl leaving school—I am, etc.,

Napier Yachts To Race

WELLINGTON EVENTS

Kahurangi And Vulture

HOPES OF SUCCESS

Entered for several events at the Centennial yacht races at present being held in Wellington, the Kahurangi, a 27ft. Partiki boat, will leave Napier by rail to-morrow evening for the capital city.

She will race on Saturday and Monday next.

The crew, who are hopeful of carrying off some share of the cash prizes being offered for these events, comprise Messrs. N. Gillies (owner and skipper), Jim and John Piconne, G. Bonnor, J. Downey, K. Player, and J. Montepetro. Mr. Jim Piconne is sponsoring the trip.

The skipper, Mr. Gillies, is a well-known Napier boating enthusiast, having sailed yachts on the bay for many years.

Another Napier boat is entered in a race for the Idle Along class which is to be held to-day at Wellington. She is the Vulture, and her crew comprises Messrs. L. Wiig (skipper), R. Wiig, and G. Hartshaw.

"WHAT SHOULD WE BELIEVE?"

That it is of great importance that one should believe "the truth"—indeed a matter of life or death—was shown in the course of an address given in the United Hall, Hastings, on Sunday night on the question, "Does it Matter What We Believe?"

The speaker, Mr. A. F. Milne, showed that Jesus and the Apostles taught that it was necessary to believe "sound doctrine," which consisted of certain definite truths "concerning the Kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ."

To hold false ideas concerning God and His purpose—no matter how sincerely—was vain worship and was to be in the position of the idolator who made himself "idols according to his own understanding" and looked in vain to them for aid.

The sacrificial work of Christ, the nature of man, resurrection and judgment, the personal return of Christ to reign on earth, and such like matters were shown to be integral parts of "the truth" which Jesus said "made free" when known, belief in and obedience to which would result in Christ bestowing eternal life upon the believer when He returned to reign on earth.

MANAWATU'S STRONG CLAIM

WELLINGTON CUP Seven Representatives From Awapuni (By Moturoa). Of the twenty-nine acceptors for the Wellington Centennial Cup no fewer than seven are drawn from Awapuni stables and the representation is a remarkably good one.

First on the list is the veteran Catalogue, hero of the 1938 Melbourne Cup and three Winter Cups. A host of other victories make him one of the biggest winners racing in the Dominion today, and it does not seem as if the old fellow is past his best yet.

Beaupartir has been a little disappointing this season, but he has been racing against two really high-class three-year-olds in Beauville and Beatrice, and he has been performing solidly.

The favourite, Brunhill (Phelps) began a little better than Yogi (Atkins) and led the colt by a good length in the three furlongs in 37.25.

Charles Hugo (Marsh) came away from Tidal Lass (Atkins) to win by three lengths, with Hincranzi (Mudford) three lengths further back at the end of six furlongs in 1.20.

From practically a standing start Centrepoise (Atkins), Hunting Moments (Campbell) and Bealeau (Stowe) hopped off at the mile peg. They took 25.45 for the first two, but got to the half-mile in 51.35 and the first five took 1.41.5.

Centrepoise, who was wide out coming into the straight, then began to leave his companions and he came down the straight on the bit to register 1.45.15 for the full distance, finishing six lengths ahead of the others.

Raeburn completes Awapuni's septette and is the third member of the McDonald string, the others being Centrepoise and Beaupartir. The young horse is still a hack, but he raced well enough in the Manawatu Cup to attract attention.

Thus, it can be seen that the Wellington Cup has a very strong Manawatu flavour, and though Old Bill is selected for the moment, any one of the six may prove a good second string to Awapuni's bow.

ASHHURST RACES MONDAY, JANUARY 22, (Anniversary Day)

CENTREPOISE IN BETTER FORM

SOLID MILE GALLOP AT HASTINGS ENDORSEMENT FIT (By Moturoa). A good mile went down to the credit of the Wellington Cup candidate Centrepoise at Hastings on Saturday morning and there was much merit in the performance as he had nothing to bring him home over the last quarter.

Myology (Hannaran) and Morgan (Power) had no trouble in coming home from the three furlongs in 40. Morgan is a six-year-old brown mare by Siegfried from Morgana and this half-brother to Disrarak and Fitzquex is trained by Bill Griffith.

Classical (B. Stowe) was doing just a little better than Kalka (Atkins) at the conclusion of their mile in 1.48.25, the first half-mile of which was run in 53.45.

Kobi, who seems to have made a good recovery from the slight knock he received at the beginning of the week, worked steadily over a couple of rounds, brushing up the straight each time.

Yogi in Good Nick Brunhill (Phelps) began a little better than Yogi (Atkins) and led the colt by a good length in the three furlongs in 37.25.

Charles Hugo (Marsh) came away from Tidal Lass (Atkins) to win by three lengths, with Hincranzi (Mudford) three lengths further back at the end of six furlongs in 1.20.

Centrepoise, who was wide out coming into the straight, then began to leave his companions and he came down the straight on the bit to register 1.45.15 for the full distance, finishing six lengths ahead of the others.

Raeburn completes Awapuni's septette and is the third member of the McDonald string, the others being Centrepoise and Beaupartir. The young horse is still a hack, but he raced well enough in the Manawatu Cup to attract attention.

Thus, it can be seen that the Wellington Cup has a very strong Manawatu flavour, and though Old Bill is selected for the moment, any one of the six may prove a good second string to Awapuni's bow.

Kathbella In The Wars

WILL MISS TRENTHAM Authoress Looks Very Well (By Moturoa). Mr. Frank Ormond's good Beau Pere-Royal Line mare Kathbella, who was booked for the later days of the Wellington meeting, bruised a foot on the trip down from Auckland and it has been found necessary to treat her to a spell.

This is particularly bad luck for the connections of the four-year-old mare as her Auckland form showed that she was right back to her best and she would have been certain to pay her way at Trentham.

She is now to be tuned up again for the South Auckland circuit beginning at Te Rapa.

One of the most improved horses at Hastings is the Peach Brandy—Elvaette gelding Clingstone, in Wallace Young's care. He has thickened out a lot in the past few weeks and is being brought along quietly in view of the autumn meetings.

Elvaette will be remembered as a smart hurdler a few seasons back and her son leaves the impression that he will be a really useful sort over the battens. He was schooled when George New had him and is a natural jumper.

Young is a patient trainer and he should do well with his charge.

Mr. G. G. Beaton's horse Soho has been given every chance to come right again and he is now a daily visitor to the tracks since he was used by the Clerk of the Course at the recent Hawke's Bay summer meeting.

The big Dane gelding shows no signs of his wind affliction in the light work that has been given him so far, but he is such a high class performer over hurdles that, on a fine day, he can hold his own with the best. He is a comparatively young horse and it will surprise if he does not add very substantially to his winning account this season.

Mixed fortunes have attended the Hastings trainer Sir Reid this season and, apart from losing Beauville, who has gone to race in Australia, his worst luck was when Ivar badly ricked his off hind leg while playing in the paddock.

The Beau Pere—High Art horse is back again at the stables, but his knee is still rather stiff, and he is to be blistered in the hope of getting him right again. Ivar has proved himself a top-class horse up to middle distances and he would need only to come solid again to win some good races.

Harold Griffith has Authoress back in real work again and the Deafie filly strips better now than she did before the N.Z. circuit, showing where her form was good enough to make her favourite for the N.Z. Oaks.

The distance bet her in that race, although there is no doubt about her galloping ability, Authoress was never really let down and so it should not take much to bring her to top form again, and it will surprise if she does not secure her share of successes at the coming meetings.

Modern Way injured herself after racing well at the Wellington spring meeting, but she appears to be quite right again now, though she still has an enlarged joint. This does not seem to affect her, however, and her recent work has been very pleasing.

Percy Wormald is not likely to overdo this well-bred mare, who is closely related to Pink Coat, and she should add to her winning account before very long.

Bryda is among the newly commissioned brigade at Hastings. This Cockpit—Merle mare executed a brilliant three furlongs the first time she was ever asked to gallop, but she never repeated that form and she has given no promise to date in her races. She is solidly enough built and she ought to do better if tried over the battens.

Although she has disappointed in her half a dozen races this season, the Deafie filly has been working particularly well and she may be just coming back to form. She was most promising last season, and she has only to come to her best to win her share of races.

Likes Soft Tracks. Girl Pat, who scored her first win at Otaki in November, has been turned out for a spell, as she is no good at all in the hard going. This beautifully-bred five-year-old daughter of Captain Bunsby and Prophet's Mark has been a big disappointment on the whole, but she seems more solid now than before and it is possible that she may come into her own with a bit of age.

Save for her one good race at Levin in the spring, Vascos failed to show anything like a winning form she displayed as a two-year-old last season and she is to be treated to a spell. She has grown fast and is a very big filly, so the let-up may prove to be the wisest course.

Weighted Out. Clarion Call did quite well on his Auckland trip and he won the New Year Hurdles race in brilliant fashion. However, as he had 12.9 in that event, his prospects in races now and until the good horses come out would be probable, and his connections have wisely decided to spell him until the late autumn. It is possible that he will have his next race in the Brighton Hurdles, but it is unfortunate that such a good horse has to be put away at present because of the weakness of the opposition.

Clarion Call needs a hard track to show his best form and th. conditions may not be altogether to his liking in the winter.
