WILL HAY JOINS THE FORCE

'Ask A Policeman" And A "Jones Family" Film

The well-known British comedian Will Hay, ably hindered by Moore Marriott and Graham Moffatt, has blundered through many Public Services. In the G.B.D. attraction 'Ask a Policeman," which comes to day, the three do their best to ruin the local rural constabulary and also make an hilarious digression into what they imagine to be the realm of the supernatural.

As members of the police force in a village that has had no crime for ten years five weeks and four days, they years live weeks and four days, they are faced with the necessity to justify their by no means miserable existence. To do this they endeavour, blissfully unconscious of the fact that the village is a hot-bed of smuggling, to create an artificial "crime wave." They soon find that there is a real one in full swing.

Although Will Hay and Graham Moffatt are definitely sceptical, Moore Marriott believe it to such a point that he even tells the Chief Constable that when he saw "it" he ost his hair and all his teeth fell out in a night!

In a wildly hilarious sequence, the three blundering policemen try frantically to escape in their car from the galloping horses and the ghastly driver. The sight of this apparent visitation from another world injects drama into the comedy and leads to a thrilling and nilarious climax.

A DOUBLE FEATURE PROGRAMME

'The Devil Is Driving," "Lady From Nowhere"

Now showing at the Mayfair Theatre is "The Devil is Drivig," a thrilling and spectacular film which points a warning to reckless car drivers. Richard Dix and Joan Perry fill the leading roles.

Richard Dix, as usual, gives one of his finest performances as the young lawyer who perjures testinony in defence of a wealthy young wastrel charged with manslaughter. He wins acquittal for the drunken river, but eventually has cause to

This situation develops when Dix is elected district attorney and finds himself faced with the job of prose-cuting the very same boy for killing a girl in another motor accident. When the defence uses the same tactics of corruption and collusion practised by himself as a defending attorney, Dix solves the problem by baring the entire history of the first trial and exposing his own perjury
The second attraction is "Lady From Nowhere," an exciting melo-drama with romance and comedy, and starring Mary Astor, supported by Thurston Hall and Charles Quigy. It concerns the serio-comic dventures of Polly, a manicurist, ho acts as an uninvited witness to a gangland nurder. Completing the programme is chapter nine of the serial, "The Oregon Trail."

scores with the murderer of his young colleague.

All who are looking for a blend of thrilling detective drama and human comedy can be recommendred to see the picture—the combina-tion of Edgar Wallace and Will Fyffe ensures that the popular taste is well catered for. The plans are at J. R. Ross's. Phone 2678.

Regent CLAUDETTE COLBERT IN A GAY FILM

"Zaza" Is Now At The Regent

With a swish of her frou-frou skirts and a twinkle in her mischievous eye, "Zaza," the darling of the French music halls, will become the darling of the audience with the fartheritation of the surface. with the first showing of mount's new picture of the name which commences at the Regent Theatre, Napier. Claudette Colbert, in the title role, displays all the daring charm, sparkling wit and heartfelt pathos hich have made "Zaza" one of the est-loved characters ever to appear

Cukor unrolls a gay, gaudy, clam-ouring picture of this delightful era —with its pearl-buttoned dandies hanging around the stage doors, its hansom cabs, its gas-lit boulevards and its naughty champagne suppers

Herbert Marshall, Miss Colbert's new leading man, is cast as a char acter his fans will be glad to see him play—the infatuated but irresolute "Dufresne," the man of prominence, who has to choose between his uncontrollable love for "Zaza" and his place in society.

Holding up the comic end is Bert
Lahr, who is the perfect "Cascart" -complete right down to the barber stage gags of the good old days. Helen Westley maintains her repu-tation as one of the ablest character actresses of the screen in her role of "Anais," Miss Colbert's tippling and eccentric foster-mother. LOBSTER SALAD

Take 1 medium-sized lobster, 2 good lettuce, 2 hard-boiled eggs (sliced), 1 bunch watercress, cucumer. 1 gill mayonnaise dressing.

Take out the meat from body and claws of the lobster and cut into nice-sized pieces. Cut and shred the lettuce and divide the watercress. Mix lettuce, cress, lobster meat, and egg slices with the mayonnaise and put them in a salad bowt. Decorate with a little endive (if procurable) sliced cucumber, and the claws of the lobster.

Divide the cheese into tiny portions and roll them into egg shapes with the butter pats. Cleanse the lettuce leaves, drain them well, and shake off loose moisture. Dress them with French dressing and arrange a few eggs on each leaf. The eggs look more attractive if smeared wegtable salads.

RECENT GISBORNE A Quiet Evening Wedding

RIDDELL—ROSS

Home To Be Made In Waipukurau

A pretty wedding was solemnised quietly in St. Mary's Catholic Church, Lowe Street, Gisborne, recently, when Emily Christina, younger daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Mead, Gisborne, was married to Thomas Joseph, son of Mrs. Corkery and the late Mr. T. Corkery, Gisborne. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Fahey.

The bride, who was escorted by the Rev. Mr Montieth officiating. On Saturday afternoon, the day Barnabas's Church, Mount Ede the Rev. Mr Montieth officiating.

The bride, who was escorted by her brother-in-law (Mr. F. E. Wallen), wore a frock of ivory cob-web lace, exquisite in its simple elegance. The bride, who was given away by Mr S. A. Marris, Wellington, wore a model frock of delphinium wore a model frock of delphinium blue and gold marocain with elbow sleeves. The frock was fitting and featured a pleated panel at the back and a V neckline, and was worn stiffly-whisked egg-whites. BRITISH BROADCASTING IN WAR-TIME

One Transmitter "Somewhere In England"

NO HELP TO ENEMY

British broadcasting after the proclamation of war with Germany underwent a great and immediate change. "This is the B.B.C. Home Service" became the opening announcement wherever one might be in Great Britain, instead of being able to select the programme that appealed most from one of the many regional transmitting stations.

One of the first questions asked by many persons was:
"Why should only one transmitter and one programme be allowed? The official answer to this was that it was necessary in order not to give navigational assistance to enemy aircraft, which could fly direct on the beam to the transmitting station.

All that the man in the street knows is that he has to tune his receiver to the Northern Regional wavelength. What he hears may come from that station, or from any one of the other eight transmitters.

There has also been considerable rriticism of the programme quality. The B.B.C. faces the task of pleasing as many as possible, for a part of the time, at any rate. Activities regime, have come thanks for the of the B.B.C. are no longer centred in Broadcasting House, but secrecy is maintained as to where those who provide the programmes have migrated.

are against the National Socialist regime, have come thanks for the B.B.C. broadcasts in German.

In connection with these overseas broadcasts, out of a batch of 63 letters received recently beginning.

"Somewhere in England"

This accounts largely for the dearth of the high-class concerts and entertainment which the payer of a ten-shilling annual licence has hitherto looked on as his right. The best orchestras were located in Lon-don, the best artists were there, too, on, the best artists were there, too, or could easily come there. It is less easy to gather the performers necessary to fill a programme "somewhere in England" (writes a London correspondent of the "Christian Science Monitor").

The items seem to alternate with news bullstins and grampohone recommends.

The items seem to alternate with news bulletins and gramophone records. These latter, it is true, are so good nowadays that, unless one knows, it is hard to say whether or not it is the real thing. But all this is being gradually put right, though many still yearn for their accustomed ration of good music.

Monitoring the World The B.B.C. now has a Monitoring Department which operates round the clock. One shift comprises ten monitors, and five sub-editors in addition to wireless engineers, short-hand writers and typists. Some-where in England, in a hut on a hill-top sit 10 men in front of their powerful and selective receivers with headphones on their ears. They collect material which may be use-ful from foreign stations all over the world. Everything which is the world. Everything which is transmitted from the many German the world. Everything which is transmitted from the many German and other short-wave stations is taken down in shorthand, translated and sifted for details which might be of use to the various Government departments.

Flood of Words Caught
Some 150 news bulletins per day are listened to and transcribed, the total running into about 250,000 words. If an important speech or report is coming through, the listener can transfer it to a dictaphone record which can be sent direct by teleprint or messenger to the Government official who should receive it. The Germans have a similar service as they sometimes quote from British broadcasts, and on one occasion even checked an inaccurate translation by the B.B.C.

A department in British broadcasting which has undergone a great expansion deals with broadcasting in foreign languages. Newsbulletins now go out in 16 tongues other than English. These are Arabic, French, German, Italian, Spanish for Spain and separately for Latin-America, Portuguese for Portugal and for Brazil, Afrikaans for South Africa, Czech, Greek, Magyar for Hungary, Polish, Rumanian, Sebro-Croat, and Turkish.

They Like the News

there seems to have been some sort of gentlemen's agreement on the subject. "I won't jam you, if you don't jam me." It is obviously a game two can play, and presumably Germany has decided that the propaganda value of radio was too great for it to run the risk of it being destroyed by jamming.

UNSOLVED PROBLEMS

All this political "fiddling while Rome is burning" is beginning to get on the nerves of the New Zealand people. Yesterday in this column we heaved a metaphorical sigh of relief because the Left-Right trouble in the Labour Party seemed to have been smoothed over. Great things are astir, and no one wished a perpetuation of intro-party squabbling while stern work remains to be done. Yet to-day the situation seems to be as bad as ever it was. Mr Lee does not wish it to be understood that he will in future and at all times agree to the findings of the National Labour Executive, and says that he apologised for one specific misdemeanour. Mr Savage at once comments to the effect that although he was not at the meeting he understood that Mr Lee had so promised, and goes on to refer to "a member who tries to destroy the selected leader of the party . . . and who will go so far as to attack that leader during an illness."

There is bad blood here yet. The Labour Party is not by any means a happy family. Very likely to-morrow there will be a reply from Mr Lee, followed by one from Mr Savage, and so on until the linen is in tatters on the political clothesline and the war has progressed another stage towards its final culmination.

As citizens of the Dominion we must protest against this sorry exhibition of personal animosities. It is all so footling and pettifogging when it is seen against the background of the tremendous sacrifices which are being asked of the best young blood of the country. So far as Labour Right and Labour Left are concerned, the average citizen, in the light of this ridiculous controversy, is justified in saying: "A plague on both your houses"

There is another unsolved problem—that of Mr Scrimgeour. An exchange of letters is published as between Mr W. W. Mulholland and the Prime Minister on the subject of the Broadcasting Controller's attitude to and remarks about the farmers. The letters might as well never have been written. It is written all over them and between the lines of them that the two men concerned are utterly at loggerheads on the question at issue. In the offing, there still remains the challenge to Mr Scrimgeour issued some weeks ago in answer to his bombastic offer to go before a Judge of the Supreme Court to settle the issue.

The Controller of Commercial Broadcasting, so far as the matter has been reported, has not had the courtesy even to reply to the challenge. In his well-known hedging fashion, he has dragged barrel-loads of red herrings across the trail and has been content to sit back in the security of his soft job and to allow the Prime Minister to fight his battles for him. It is more than time that the Prime Minister should realise that the people of the country have not an unlimited supply of patience, and that an official inquiry in the ordinary way should be instituted to find out definitely whether or no Mr Scrimgeour said what he is alleged to have said in defamation of the farmers of the Dominion.

The point of this brief dissertation is that there is an undoubted lack of firmness, directness, and honest dealing in the case of these domestic squabbles and that what is needed above everything else in the country at the moment is the type of leadership governed by conscience and will, which goes straight for its goal without hesitation and without fear of personal consequences. The kind of argumentations that are going on savour more of the small-town controversies of a half-developed township than the considered deliberations of a responsible Government of one of his Majesty's Dominions. The Ministers of the Crown could be better employed in guiding the people as to their duty in the present crisis. The household washing can wait. It might even be postponed

Service

Training For National

Approximately 120 young New Zealand women went into camp under canvas at Tauherenikau race ourse yesterday for a short of training for services in time of national emergency.

The camp was originally planned to celebrate the Dominion's Centen ary, and arrangements were well in hand to give 600 Dominion and overseas girl guides an unforget table holiday, when war was de clared.

Since then the camp has been re organised on a more war-minded basis, with a view to training the older guides and leaders of companies in services which will be useful to their country as well as to themselves, should they ever called upon to play a more active part in serving their country in time of war. In England, the guide training has proved a ready passport into any field of work. To everyone of the women's auxiliary services, Red Cross and A.R.P., recruits who have had guide training are welcomed Sun for their efficiency, adaptability and sense of discipline.

"OUR WAR EFFORTS SHOULD BE OF MAXIMUM STRENGTH," SAYS DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

RUIN FACES EVERYTHING FOR WHICH THE DEMOCRACIES HAVE FOUGHT IF TOTALITARIANISM WINS

AUCKLAND, Jan. 16.

"It is absolutely necessary for the sake of the world and for humanity that our efforts should be of maximum strength. We, as a people, should dedicate ourselves to the task of doing what we can to achieve success for the forces of democracy what we can to achieve success for the forces of democracy throughout the world," said the Deputy Prime Minister (the Hon. P. Fraser) in his speech at the civic reception tendered to him in Auckland on his first visit after his return from his wartime visit to England on behalf of the Dominion.

Mr Fraser emphasised what he had said on an earlier occasion, that the British people were showing no sign of war hate or even of animosity against the mass of the German hate or even of animosity against the mass of the German people, nor were they showing elation or joy in the war.

They were setting themselves calmly, deliberately, and wholeheartedly to a task which involved the whole nation. No one, from the highest in the fighting forces, would not thank God if the war might end to-morrow, but only if it ended in a way that would ensure world peace for the future.

Admittedly, it was hard for the New Zealand people to realise after their Christmas celebrations that the whole world was threatened and their Christmas celebrations that the whole world was threatened and the whole world was threatened and the world was threatened was thr that the lives of their brothers, sisters, and relatives in England were menaced every day. There was no part of Britain upon which death might not descend from the air.

Structure which, with all its short-ters, and relatives in England were comings, we believe to be the best in the world, together with all the hoped-for opportunities for our children, would be crushed to ruin.

might not descend from the air.

His experience had made him realise more than ever, Mr Fraser continued, how wonderful was the spiritual and moral force at work in Great Britain and in New Zealand.

No country had upheld democracy more strongly than this Dominion at Geneva. The High Commissioner (Mr W. J. Jordan) had stood out on every possible occasion against aggression and aggressors and in support of democratic principles and the rights of small nations. When a final stand had to be made, New Zealand had not hesitated, because the stand was in a cause which the Government, with the support of the whole propole had advected for Government, with the support of the whole people, had advocated for years. Thus New Zealand had been the first Dominion to enter the war with the Methor Country to this cr with the Mother Country.

Our Future.

Our Future.

"On the level of national things, we must not forget that our future is bound up with that of Britain and the British Commonwealth," said Mr Fraser in appealing for a maximum war effort. "If Britain went down, what would become of us? Our principal market for primary produce, on which our standard of living depends to such a large extent, would be gone, and there is something worse than that. Let us calmly face facts. If certain countries were invaded to-day, would their possessions in the Pacific be left intact? That would be our fate. We should be lucky if we got even an opportunity. like some people in Poland, of being shifted somewhere else.

Britain have suggested the terms on which peace could be achieved, but there has been no response. Those which we are fighting are out for domination.

Peace Possibilities.

"The most that we can say is that peace will be discussed as soon as it can be discussed as soon as to an a reasonable and fair basis, but when a man or a nation makes a desert and calls it peace, decent people cannot accept such a solution.

"I am confident that the faith and belief of the decent people of the world will result in a great victory, not for any country or for the Allies, but for humanity—a victory that will make the world a place worthy of the generations of the future." (Cheers).

Intense heat from the fierce flames blistered the paint of buildings on each side of the store. Half-an-hour after the alarm was given the effects of the great quantity of water were becoming apparent, and volumes of smoke were replacing high-flung flames. IMPARTIAL OBSERVATIONS

Heartening Reactions To War Conditions

CONTRAST IN GERMANY

Oswald Garrison Villard, the distinguished American writer and editor, recently arrived in London after a four weeks' visit to Germany, Austria, and Czechoslovakia. Mr Villard, who is a grandson of William Lloyd Garrison and was born in Germany, speaks German fluently. He had exceptional opportunities during his visit for studying life and assessing opinion in the Reich under war conditions.

Mr Villard was at one time editor of the New York "Evening Post" and also editor and part proprietor of the New York "Nation." He is a Radical Liberal in politics and has been a strong supporter of world peace. Universally respected as he is in his own country, Mr Villard's opinion carries weight, and is indeed heartening at the present time. Below is an article contributed by him, in which he strikingly contrasts Nazi Germany with life in England.

I have every hope that this vigilment's malignity, hate and vituperation—not only against England and every other nation that blocks its way, but also against so many of its own citizens—is to enter a new, a wholesome, a free world; is to experience an exaltation of the spirit.

Here men can smile even under the strain of a terrible war. Here they look you straight in the eyes with nothing to conceal or apologise for.

Here they talk to you about their hopes, their fears, their aspirations, their desires, without looking behind them to see if they are being overheard. Here they criticise their Government, if they so wish, and close no doors for fear of a Gestapo. Here they have a still free, if not unfettered, Press, and here they the looking tell you that, much as they hate the the strain of a terrible war. Here they conceal or apologise for.

Justice Acmitted

I have not found a man or a woman enthusiastic for the warno more than in Germany; and, thank Heaven, I have found none who have professed admiration for it as war. I have encountered many who hate the whole institution, dread the outcome of it all, and feel that the blunders of their own Governments in the past have helped to ernments in the past have helped to bring it on. But I have met none who did not admit the complete, the essential justice of the Allied cause, whether they believed in war methods or not.

The serious dissensions of 1914 are nowhere in evidence; it is as early a united front as it could possibly be, granting the existence of conscientious objection to ware and international authority with the power to enforce its decisions. Of course, there are clashes of opinion; of course, there are disagreements; of course, there will be views of every varying shade: but conscientious objection to war; and that, again, is the magnificent Engthat united front, without heroics lish tradition. or self-adulation, is still calmly saying that this war must be won if Europe is to be saved, if it is to be a place of habitation of free men.

There has been no referendum of the British people on this war, as I wish there might always be in every

One Man's Viewpoint

In Berlin I was eagerly asked what was the spirit of the British people, and nothing I told them impressed my hearers more than the story of the quiet young man who sat next to me on the top of a 'bus parks, and of balloons on guard, as exquisite when beneath blue skies as jewels in a rajah's raiment. The majesty of London at night in a darkness unparalleled since the days of Shakespeare will always live with me, for then the mystery of the greatest of capitals is at its basely. just before I left for Germany.

I had asked him the rank of an bad that you should see it now." I explained that it was not a new city to me, but that I was deeply grieved that war had come to it again.

Very quietly and simply he replied: "Well, it had to come. You see, I am a young man. I shall probably have to go and may not come back. But there is no use going on in this way. I don't want to live in a Europe like the one we all who say that men shall be free. come back. But there is no use going on in this way. I don't want to live in a Europe like the one we have lived in for the last five years. How can a young man like myself build a home and found a family if build a home and found a family if bu's told every six months he must he's told every six months he must be ready to go to war?"

That, I assured people in Germany, is just the spirit in which England went into the war. Those are the words used to me by porters, taxicab drivers, waiters—indeed, all the workers I have had time and opportunity to meet. My chamber-maid says cheerfully: "We'll have to go on till we get rid of that man."

Underneath. I know, the currents of the spirit run fast. Under the mask of calm self-control that has set the Englishman apart for centuries, feelings are deep and deeply stirred. Under the emotions of these men and women lies the passion for justice—and the passion for justice—and the passion for justice. I believe, is stronger in this country than in any other.

My great fear for England is lest the war weaken that passion, lest the zeal for individual liberty, which set the Englishman apart for cen-

Four Heavy Drums Fall From A Lorry In Hastings

Startling Events

Pedestrians Victims Of The Morass: Accidents Averted

A startling series of events followed in quick succession when four heavy drums of tar fell from the tray of a motor-truck at the intersection of Heretaunga and Russell Streets, Hastings, yesterday afternoon. Two of the drums collapsed upon impact with the road surface, and the other two trundled across the footpath, scattering pedestrians in their path.

A "Daily Mail" reporter about to use a pedestrian crossing hurdled one of the on-coming drums, and escaped what might have been serious injury. The noise of the falling drums warned other pedestrians of the danger, but squirting tar sprayed several people unfortunate enough to be close to the scene.

Unconscious of Danger

I have every hope that this vigilant guarding of the rights of the Englishman will continue, for they are the rights of man. Never was there a period in the world's history when it was more necessary to stress those rights and to preserve them in the face of those who declare that the individual has no rights whatever that the State is Unconscious of Danger With 88 gallons of liquid tar dis-tributed about a comparatively small area in a busy street, events were likely to happen quickly, and they did. Unconscious of the dan-ger that lay in their path, the drivers of several cars steered their wildly skidding vehicles through the belong to minorities or majorities.

It is a sign of wisdom and of health that, in this emergency, debate as to what shall be the ideals and aims beyond the actual winning of the war goes on apace. This is the time to plan ahead, not when the war passions have risen to great heights and the losses and sacrifices may have become immeasurable, as between 1914 and 1918.

It is worthy of the best tradition She was given treatment at a near-by chemist's shop.

The second victim was a girl cyclist who observed the tar too late, steered into the middle of the black area, and fell heavily when the wheels skidded from under her. She crawled from the area, much of the same appearance as victim No. 1.

By this time the clinging liquid had become distributed over a fairly wide area, and the footpath was rapidly become like the road.

Flooded Gutter Tar filled the gutter, flowing on in a relentless stream while pedestrians lifted bicycles and removed cars from its path. By means of sacks placed in the channel about a hundred yards from the scene of the accident the tar was stemmed.

EXCELLENT MURDER COMEDY

FINE PRODUCTION

"I Killed the Count," which was presented by the J. C. Williamson's New London Dramatic Company at the Municipal Theatre, Hastings, last night, is excellent entertainment.

The plot has something of originality. Four people confess to having shot Count Victor Mattoni. They are the father in-law of the murdered man, (Lord Sorrington), the wife of the murdered man (Louise Rogers), an American and matri-monial successor to the murdered Good-bye, London! I take back to man (Bernard Froy), and a lift man to the murdered man who also has a past and is called plain Mullet Which of them killed the Count and I shall see the puzzled, adventurous faces of children being evacuated into—for them—the unknown, with what, if anything should be done about it is the problem which faces Divisional Inspector Davidson and his assistant from the Hendon Police their British mothers shedding but scant, decorous tears.

I shall behold, whenever I please, College, Detective Raines.
In this rests the humour of the the faces of British youth in uniform; handsome, clear-eyed, cheery—wholesome, wholesome, wholesome. Too fine to lose; too fine to play. It is the humour of contradictory paradoxical situations.

The Acting Acting was uniformly good while never reaching the impressive. Ex-ception must be made of Mr Harvey Adams, who presented the Division al Inspector. His was a singly fin ished performance.

The rest of the company fulfilled the requirements of their parts. There was the American actress, oud, plausible, yet of dubious repu ation, the camera salesman, with grandiose schemes of salesmanshi which somehow did not materialise the over blue-blooded Viscount with a deep-rooted sense of honour, the loquacious manager of flats, the lift man of criminal record (but also with a soul), the gushing, theatrical detective fresh from Hendon Police College, and Polly, the maid whom no murder can peturb.

All these were well done. The Production

PETROL RATIONING MAY AGAIN BE INTRODUCED

End Of This Month Rumoured As Probable Date For Resumption

Early introduction of restrictions on the sale of motor spirit is predicted. In the absence of any official statement, the view is held that unrestricted sales, which have been made since December 1, will probably cease at the end of January, if not before, when most motorists will have ended their Keen speculation exists as to whether the restrictions, when they are reimposed, will be more severe than those ruling from early in September until the end of November. It is rumoured that private motorists will be allowed only eight gallons a month, in the case of small cars, and 12 gallons a month for larger cars, to permit a corresponding increase in the case of commercial vehicles.

Control of petrol sales was assumed by the Government on the outbreak of war. Under the Oil Fuel Regulations, after a brief period of grace during which owners of private cars were allowed to purchase only two gallons at a time, the sale of petrol to private motorists was forbidden. However, provision was made for the issuing of sion was made for the issuing of licences to motorists whose cars were essential.

The arrival from overseas of ample bulk supplies of petrol made possible a modification of the restrictions on September 11. Private motorists were required to apply at part of free for country issued in post offices for coupons, issued in sets numbered from 1 to 48, a cer-tain number of which were available for use each month. Private owners were limited to 10 gallons a month. Increase Made.

SUPPORT FOR

HEAVY TRAFFIC AT WAIROA

Prospects For Future Are Bright

"Daily Mail" Special Service. WAIROA.

The consistent support that has been given to the railway service is reflected in the traffic returns released for the period of four weeks ending January 6, in which the total revenue of £4827 is shown.

"The returns are very encouraging, especially in view of this district being not so fortunately situated as other centres where road competition has been reduced greatly," the stationmaster (Mr T. H. Forster) told the "Daily Mail" yesterday.

"There is every prospect of greatly enhanced activity at Wairoa station from now on. Apart from the stock season, which is now with us. general goods traffic gives indica-tions of increasing. In addition, with the approach of Carnival week, the passenger side of the sta-tion will be kept particularly busy," Mr Forster added.

Month's Figures

The detailed returns are:—
Outwards — Passengers 2655, cattle 100, sheep 2063, timber 31 tons, other goods 1561 tons.

Revenue: Passengers £1339, other goods £1121, parcels £44, miscellaneous £42, total £2546.
Inwards. — Cattle 30, sheep 1649, timber 19 tons, other goods 1054 tons.

Revenue. — Parcels £73, other goods £2208, total £2281.

"The fact must not be overlooked," explained Mr Forster, "that the period under review covered the Christmas and New Year holiday season during which goods traffic is at a standstill for a considerable working of the town in the men who were leaving for training, and who would afterwards serve their country overseas. He was sure they would uphold the traditions of the country and Empire, and he wished them "God speed" and a safe return.

A combined Napier band played a stirring march as the men entered the carriages, and as the train drew out from the station the band played "Tipperary." There was enthusiastic cheering from the crowd, while the engines whistled their salute.

UNUSUAL CASE AT HASTINGS

After-Hours Trading

ASSISTING IN AN OFFENCE

An unusual case was heard in the Hastings Magistrate's Court yesterday morning, when William Maha was charged with aiding and assisting another person in the commission of an offence, that of procuring liquor after hours. The defendant, who pleaded not guilty, was convicted by the Magistrate (Mr J. Miller, S.M.) and fined £1 (costs 12/-).

Conducting the prosecution, Sergeant N, Straffon stated that with Constable Boate he had entered the bar of the Hasting. These they the bar of the Hastings thete after hours on December 12. There they found Maha, who was a lodger, drinking with another man. When questioned by the sergeant, the de-fendant stated that he had invited his friend in off the street to have a drink, but when the police officer produced his notebook he said: "Oh, mo; I asked him in to tea."

Maha in evidence said that he met his friend in a passage of the hotel and asked him to have a drink with him. He was not aware that he was committing an offence. The defendant was fined as stated.

The changes time brings! Half-a-century ago no one with any pre-tensions to respectability wiuld have dreamt of smoking in the street, and few clubs or private houses possess-ed smoke-rooms. Today as many pipes and cigarettes are smoked out 1, of doors as indoors, and every club and every large private residence rejoices in its smoke-room. But pub-lic taste is more fastidious than of lic taste is more fastidious than of old in the choice of tobacco, and the best brands now command the largest sale. This is especially noticeable in New Zealand where "toasted" has become so highly popular. Go where you will, you'll find the five famous toasted brands, Cut Plug No. 10 (Bullshead), Navy Cut No. 3 (Bulldog), Cavendish, Riverhead Gold and Desert Gold on sale. Mayor of Hastings (Mr G. A. Maddison) in his address to the 23 Hastings recruits who left yesterday to assist in filling the

Second Echelon of the Second New Zealand Expeditionary

There was no doubt about the cause for which the troops were going to fight, said Mr Maddison. If the war was not won, New Zealand, with the rest of the British Empire and her allies, would suffer the same humiliation, the same annihilation, and the same tyranny as Germany had imposed on Poland and Czechoslovakia. It was encumbent on all to do their duty. It would be a hard job, and the men would suffer hardships and privations, but it would nevertheless have its Priest) walked through the ranks and shook hands with the men. The Town Clerk (Mr Noel C. Harding) presented them with cigarettes. In their march to the station the troops were headed by the Hastings Citizens' Band, people lining the streets to cheer them on their way.

HAWKE'S BAY LOTS WILL

ATTRACT ATTENTION

Ashhurst Prospects Are Bright

(By MOTUROA.)

Yearling Sales will attract the interest of sportsmen from all parts of the Dominion as well as from Australia and, despite the many restrictions, there is a strong feeling that values will be fairly well maintained on last year's satisfactory standard. There may not be much demand for the less fashionable lots, but there are so many classically-bred youngsters catalogued that the aggregate of the Sale should be quite as enthusiastic over the 221 youngsters catalogued. The Hawke's

Bay yearlings this year, most of whom have been discussed in these columns recently, are quite the best draft the province has sent forward for many years. Their quality is outstanding and, thanks to the good winter and early spring, all are well forward. Hawke's Bay secured the top prices last January and there should again be very keen competition for our lings being sent forward to the Sales, and it would seem that the catalogue this year is likely to be remarkable for the quality, development, condition, and blood lines of the lots year and wide interest will be taken in the first of the stock of the Hawke's Bay sires Theio (by Tetratema) and St.

Boswells (by Solario) to go into the sale-ring.

trainers should give earnest consideration to the summer programme of the Poverty Bay Turf Club, for the meeting, which is held at Gisborne on February 10 and 12 is one which attracts attention. The splendid prize-money offered and the gen-erous concessions made in travelling expenses for visitors war-rant the support of owners and trainers and it should be noted that, on this occasion, the club intends to increase the prize-money in the open races each day by £10 for every horse over four. This should be generally appreciated and owners can show their appreciation by nominating generously, and noting the fact that entries for all events must be made with the secretary, Mr "Dick" Sceats, Gisborne, on Friday, January 19, at 8 p.m.
