LAST DESPERATE HOURS IN BATTLE OF FLANDERS

Allied Air Force Drops Bombs On Germans And Food And Water For The Besieged

> United Press Association-Copyright. (Received June 3, 9.10 p.m.

LONDON, June 3.

The Germans are concentrating 15 divisions for the final assault on the Dunkirk area, where the last of the British forces are still fighting sternly. The French troops are standing shoulder to shoulder, sharing the final desperate hours as the Battle of Flanders draws to an end.

Reports from French military circles say that the line is still held, but the Germans are making furious efforts to storm the fortified zone.

Allied 'planes continue their ceaseless combats overhead and are also dropping food and water to the troops bivouacked along the Dunkirk sand dunes,

The embarkation continues in orderly fashion from the beach, which is constantly under fire from German heavy artillery.

The German news agency claims that the British transport fleet off Dunkirk has been scattered or destroyed, and that several divisions were drowned in the Channel.

The front from the Somme to the Rhine is calm except for local exchanges of automatic arms along the Aisne and some artillery action east of the Moselle.

The French semi-official newspaper "Le Temps" expresses surprise at the suggestion that Italy will inevitably intervene on the side of Germany, adding: "All such views are merely suppositions.

ACTION AT DUNKIRK

(British Official Wireless) (Received June 3, 7.30 p.m.)

RUGBY, June 2.

Three American-built Hudson bombers went into action on Saturday off Dunkirk against 40 enemy aircraft about to attack transports bringing home men of the B.E.F. The Hudsons were on patrol when the flight-leader spotted what he called "a patch of sky black with Jerries.

The enemy formation was in three banks—a Junkers 87 and 88 ready to dive on the transports packed with troops, a string of Heinkel 111's above them, and high overhead a guard of Messerschmitt fighters. The Hudsons attacked at once and in a 13-minutes action three Junkers 87 dive bombers were shot down, two dived away out of control, and the rest of the formation were driven off. The Hudsons escaped without even a bullet hole. The pilot of one Hudson, a South African whose brother was shot down in France a few days ago, took on eight Junkers. He got two; one crashed into the smoking ruins of Hudsons but without success.

When the sky was clear again the Hudsons continued their patrols. Soon the flight-leader saw two drifting lifeboats full of troops. While one Hudson kept watch the others flew away and signalled two tugs, which were sent to the rescue, but before they arrived the Hudson pilot left on guard saw eight Nazi bombers come out of the cloud and get into position to bomb the lifeboats. He c limbed and flcw straight at the enemy and succeeded in driving them off.

"THE FIRST REBEL" ACTION DRAMA

John Wayne, Claire Trevor Featured

"The First Rebel" has the rare quality of universal appeal; all the entertainment ingredients of the outdoor action film, the historical epic and the romantic drama are included. The production is now at the State Theatre, Hastings.

Claire Trevor and John Wayne have the leading roles in this picturisation of Neil Swanson's bestseller "The First Rebel." The story concerns itself with the dramatic uprising of the Pennsylvania settlers against the British Army approxi mately 15 years before the fateful revolution of 1776. When indifferent army officials failed to heed the protests that crooked traders were supplying Indians with munitions, which in turn were being used in savage raids, the desperate from tiersmen openly revolted.

James Smith, portrayed by Wayne, was elected leader of the "rebels." With his faithful followers, he tried to expose the illicit traffic of the traders, but the arrogant of from in charge of Fort Loutraffic of the traders, but the arrogant officer in charge of Fort Loudon ignored the charges. Through the treachery of Callendar, leader of the unprincipled traders, a warrant was issued for his arrest. From this point on the tattered frontiersmen were obliged to take up arms against the British garrison.

Outstanding characterisations are contributed by George Sanders as the arrogant British officer; Brian Donlevy, as Callendar, treacherous trader; Wilfrid Lawson, tavern-keeper and father of Claire Trevor; Robert Barrat, as an understanding magistrate; John F. Hamilton, as a frontiersman, and Moroni Olsen, Chill Wills and Eddie Quillan.

"Sword of Honour," the second feature, is the most ambitious military picture ever turned out of a British studio. Geoffrey Toone, Sally Gray and Dorothy Dickson are starred.

"POISON PEN" IS A FINE DRAMA

Flora Robson In Great Role

The queer mind that finds an outlet for its repressions in writing scurrilous, unsigned letters has provided much material for headlines of late. Now it has reached the screen. In "Poison Pen," opening tomorrow at the Cosy Theatre, Hastings, one sees the havoc caused by h letters in a tranquil English

The power of the poison is almost nearny; there are characters in this story strong enough to dismiss the letters when they receive them but even they cannot resist doubt and suspicion when a coincidence ends support to the accusations. Then again, the writer sometimes builds the letters on facts capable of an innocent explanation, knowing that it is so easy for frail humans this story whose strength and skilful presentation provide absorbing en-tertainment on what might have been, with less careful treatment, an unpleasant subject. The occasions on which we see this great artiste on the screen are all too few. When they occur, they mark a red letter day for the patrons of super lative acting. "Fire Over England," "Poison Pen" and "Wuthering "Poison Pen" and "Wuthering Heights" would be a proud record for any player.

Robert Newton and Belle Chrys-Robert Newton and Belle Chrystall are perfect in their study of a humble couple whose lives are entirely wrecked by calumny. The village, atmosphere is realistic to a degree, its people live and move convincingly; on this point considerable credit is due to Edward Chapman for his ganial village store. man for his genial village store-keeper who meets a tragic end through the "Poison Pen."

Current Attraction. A striking picture for lovers of the 'horror' brand of entertainment, 'The Man They Could Not Hang,' with Boris Karloff featured, con-cludes to-day. On the same pro-gramme is a grand Joe E. Brown comedy, "Beware Spooks!" with the comedian appearing as a hapless land, more than two hundred of Hollywood's most talented young-sters combine to present what is said to be one of the most exciting and entertaining musifilms of the year.

"Babes In Arms" is set in the period that saw the passing of vaudeville, and concerns those happy-go-lucky headliners and their children who saw that world totter and crumble about them when motion pictures shoved their two-a-day into discard. But mostly it deals with the children of these performers, who save the day when they crash Broadway by the very talent that made the names of their fathers, who save the day when they crash Broadway by the very talent that made the names of their fath rash Broadway by the very talent that made the names of their fathers and mothers household words. The adult members of the cast are Charles Wininger, Guy Kibbee, Grace Hayes, Rand Brooks, and a host of old-time vaude villians. Mickey plays the son of a famous vaudeville team who, born backstage at the Palace Theatre, inherits all his father's talent plus a modern viewpoint. 'CAREER." A STORY OF THE SLUMP

With Tim Holt And Ace In "Swift Vengeance"

The influences which a philosophical country storekeeper exerts on the progress of two young romances in his community is threaded into the dramatic story of "Career," featuring Anne Shirley and Edward Ellis, which opens to morrow at the State Theatre, Napier.

"Career" is set in a small Iowa town in 1931. Woven throughout the film is the romance of Miss Shirley, a banker's daughter, and Archer, son of the sympathetic merchant. When the boy's career comes in conflict with their love affair, the two must make a decision the two must make a decision which is a sacrifice on the part of both, and it is the kindly merchant's homely advice that helps ease the pain.

Counterpointing this romance is that between Alice Eden, as the daughter of the town drunk, and Maurice Murphy, son of a wealthy banker who objects to the affair. How the storekeeper smoothes their problem and on incidently saves his problem and co-incidently saves hitownsmen from going to the wall at a result of the bank crisis provide oments of sheer drama and heart moments of sheer drama and hearttugging suspense.

The loyalty and devotion between a man and his faithful dog results in a thrill-laden action drama, "Swift Vengeance," the second feature, starring Tim Holt in title role, Virginia Weidler, Janet Shaw and Ace, the Wonder Dog.

Replete with adventure, romance and comedy, "Swift Vengeance" revolves around a young officer who has trained his shepherd dog to perform uncanny police duties. His success in capturing several crooks with the aid of his clever canine, however, meets with the department's disapproval, and eventually he is suspended from active service. When Holt, guided by his fourlegged companion, rounds up a dangerous gang of criminals, risking his life as well as that of his sweet. gerous gang of criminals, risking his life as well as that of his sweet-heart, his superiors accept the idea of using dogs in police work. WHOLE-HEARTED SUPPORT FOR JOINT APPEAL

Many Dancers Gather At The Assembly Hall In Hastings

Still further evidence of the wholehearted support which the public are giving to the joint appeal at present being made by the Red Cross Society and St. John Ambulance Association in aid of the Sick and Wounded Fund was seen in Hastings last evening, when several hundred dancers were present at a most successful ball held in the Assembly Hall.

Those who were responsible for the arrangements—and there were a very great number who helped—spared no effort to make the dance outstandingly successful. The chairman, Mr T. E. O'Dowd, and the secretary, Miss Pat Wood, were splendid workers, and they received much valuable assistance from committee members and many others.

ance from committee members and many others.

The decorations began long before one entered the hall. Flags and pennants in all colours were arranged in streamer fashion on the balcony and large clusters of bamboo foliage were placed at the sides of the stairs. In the hall were long streamers of New Zealand fern and bright paper flowers intermingled with tiny coloured lights, these stretching from a central red cross-banner out to the walls. Here were red crosses set at intervals between jardinieres of bamboo foliage, and at one end of the hall, beneath the patrictic bunting which was arranged along the balcony, was the badge of the St. John Ambulance Association. Fringed paper lamp shades in all colours encased the main lights.

Mrs T. O'Dowd and Mr J. B. Wilson had arranged the hall decorations and were assisted in the execution by several helpers.

On either side of the stage was a large Union Jack and along the front were various small palms. From the stage Lew Munro's Orchestra played a varied programme of dance tunes. Extras were played by Mr J. Mullany and his band.

A very delicious supper had been arranged by Mrs T. Hill and herhelpers and this was set on tables attractively decorated with bowls of red berries and tiny red flowers with foliage. Mrs Vaughan and several assistants had arranged these decorations and overhead were long streamers of ferns and bright paper bows, matching those in the main hall.

PAM'S LETTER

Dear Boys and Girls,-

To-day is my very last day with you, and this is my farewell letter to the Playtime Club. The tiny secret is that I am a married LADY now and I'm such a very busy person these days (almost as busy as when I was looking after all you little people) that I find there is little time left to devote to all my boys and girls. You were really a full-time job, though I do not know if you ever realised it; but the job of learning to cook, keep the house in order, and generally to be a model housewife, is rather a bewildering one. The only way I can hope to make a success of it is to waive the "next-in-importance task" and concentrate on my selected duties.

At first, I thought that taking my farewell of you all would be rather difficult, but it is not going to be so bad

You see, you are all still Playmates, the Page is still alive, and I am leaving you all in capable hands. I know you will like the future "Pam" and that you will do all you can to help her in keeping the club a big success.

It is hopeless to attempt to tell you how much I have loved being with you and knowing so many of you personally. Just remember that I shall always think of you and will read the paper every Tuesday morning with greater

THE BOOKSHOP BOY

Part V.

Jimmie's eyes widened, and his chin fell.

"I'm Jimmie Arnold," he faltered. "Oh, are you? Then I've something to tell you-some bad news," said the policeman. "Mr Bender asked that you be informed and he wishes to see you. The Bookshop was broken into last night. Much damage was done and a large quantity of stock, the cash register and safe were stolen." safe were stolen."

Jimmie groaned deep down within his throat, but before he could speak, Uncle Ben's big blue car drew up alongside the kerbstone and Bill sprang out and ran across to him.

"Why, Jimmie!" he gasped, looking from Jimmie to the man in uniform and hoek again and noting form, and back again, and noting that the boy was very distressed,

"What's wrong now?"

"Anything amiss?" asked Uncle Ben, shuffling out of the car. "I hope all's well with Jimmie, con-

"He's O.K.," said the policeman good naturedly. "I've had the unpleasant duty of breaking some disturbing news to him. Naturally, he's —"

"He wants to see me," said Jimmie thickly—"I guess my day at Swallow Bay will have to be an other Sunday."

"Oh, no," said the policeman. "You'll be able to go along later this morning. I'll have to take you to the shop, to the hospital, and then to the station."

"The police station!" exclaimed

"The police station!" exclaimed "Yes, but don't look so scared, "Yes, but don't look so scared, young fellow," said the policeman smiling. "You'll only have to answer a few necessary questions, that's all. Come along. We'll have to be going."

"I'll drive you in my car," said

Uncle Ben, and when they were on their way to the bookshop he leaned towards the uniformed man, who was sitting next to him—"Anyone suspected?"

"Can't say yet," was the quiet reply. "There are several detectives on the case."

At the shop Jimmie learned that.

At the shop Jimmie learned that the robbery was discovered by a passer-by at six o'clock that morn-

"And you're positive you locked the shop door?"

"Quite. I—I gave my key to Mr Bender's nephew, Ralph Bender, on our way out of the hospital. He said he'd be here before me on Monday morning —"

"Oh, did he? And where is this Ralph Bender now?"

RIVAL DICTATORS

The old, familiar childhood game called "King of the Castle," generally played on the sand-dunes where the falling was soft and easy, consisted of the enthusiastic and individual endeavours of rival contestants to push everyone else from a chosen vantage point and to hold it against all-comers. Then, as now, there was no room at the top. There was a standing place for only one. There could be no two "kings." Signor Mussolini cannot have learned that game.

To elucidate that cryptic remark, let us look at the situation in Europe. For months now, the Italian dictator has been hurling forth threats and defiance, tucking up his sleeves and generally indulging in the goose-stepping strutting and posturing that go with his own estimate of his importance in the scheme of things. He has been held in check by various considerations, but there has been little doubt as to his lust for battle and the re-creation of the marching legions of Rome which once bestrode the known world as conquerors.

Mussolini, fortunately for the cause of the Allies so far, has never possessed the influence over the Italian people which Hitler has, with uncanny power, obtained over the people of Germany, although he has concentrated for some time past in rousing the enthusiasm of the younger fry on his side (thereby taking a leaf out of Hitler's book). His comparative lack of influence has to do with the fact that Italy is an intensely Catholic country and that the people of his own generation are apprehensive of anything that looks even remotely like a departure from the faith.

Mussolini has carefully "tried the ice" as he has stepped cautiously forward into the frigidities of religious prejudice, and a few weeks ago defied the Pope's "index expurgatorius" by setting free a banned book for publication. It is not too much to conjecture that most of the people of his own age in Italy regard with apprehension Mussolini's military swaggerings within the precincts of the temple of the Vatican. But Mussolini is an ambitious man, and it is a bitter pill he has to swallow when he sees a fellow dictator swinging to the top of the other end of the Rome-Berlin axis and leaving him in comparative obscurity. And so he thinks of going to war. The reasons for his probable action will need a good deal of explaining away. If these reasons were probed to their roots, it is more than likely that it would be found that Mussolini's megalomania cannot abide the thought of Hitler's spurious successes. Dictators can never be humble.

Mingling braggadocio with cunning, Mussolini has bided his time so that, following his notorious German pattern, he may strike at the weak spot, or engage his enemy when the enemy is already battling for dear life. That is another little way that dictators have, and Mussolini (although he would hate so to be told) is proving an apt pupil of the Nazi Fuhrer. Moreover, he must do something to justify himself in the eyes of the youthful followers whom he has sedulously worked up to a pitch of patriotic fury. The truth would seem to be that his team of young colts is getting out of hand and that he must give them their heads or his own cherished prestige will suffer.

As was said in an official British report yesterday, Italy has known for a long time of the readiness of both Britain and France to enter into negotiations on all outstanding questions, but has steadfastly refused to negotiate. If, as now seems more than likely, Italy enters the war on the side of Germany, it will be for reasons that have even less justification than those of Germany. Once more the weight of the responsibility for slaughter and devastation will rest upon the shoulders of one man, in whose field boots few of us would care to march.

POST OF NEWSPAPER

for June and subsequent months.

TAUPO, June 1.

Over 500 delegates attended a special one-day conference of the New Zealand Labour Party in the Town Hall to-day.

The conference was called to discuss a joint statement on the war policy issued by the National Council of the New Zealand Federation of Labour and the National Executive of the New Zealand Labour Party, and for the purposes of endorsing the action of the Government up to the present time and of giving the Government a free hand in the prosecution of New Zealand's war effort in the future.

The main feature of the morning's proceedings was a long address by the Prime Minister (the Hon. P. Fraser), who, it is stated, was given an enthusiastic ovation. By an overwhelming majority, stated officially to be nine to one, the conference approved of the joint statement.

Opposition to the statement, which was comparatively small, was officially stated to concern the possible future developments. On the question of the policy which the Government had pursued up to the present there was general agreement.

There was an attendance of 506; delegates representing 47 Labour CONSERVATION OF representation committees, 152 unions and 256 branches. The national president (Mr J. Roberts) presided.

Others on the platform included the Prime Minister (the Hon. P. Fraser) and other members of Cabinet. Most of the Labour members of Parliament attended as branch

It was officially stated that there were many expressions of opinion that the Government, having been elected by a large majority of the people, was competent to carry on the war effort without taking into Cabinet any members of the Opposition.

The conference concluded with a vote of complete confidence in the Prime Minister and the Government.

Farm Workers Enlisting

ACTION WANTED

By Telegraph-Press Association. MASTERTON, June 3.

The most decided opinion that immediate action should be taken to prevent undue drain of trained and experienced men from farming and other essential industries was expressed by Sir William Perry in a "As a farmer and employer of a number of men I realise the serious position that this country is moving into with regard to the farm labour problem," he said. "As a member of the No. 1 Military Service Board in the last war I have had considerable experience of this question.

Men necessary for carrying on the production of the country are enlisting because they resent the odium of being classed as conscripts. Many of them fill in their papers as labourers. If steps are not taken immediately to alter this state of affairs there will be considerable slackening in production.

"There are very few men off Pub-lic Works who would be worth while employing on an up-to-date farm, more especially as it is key men in many instances who are en-listing. I suggest that immediate action be taken to ensure that necessary men in farming and other industries should not be allowed to go out of the country."

SOUTHERN CONTINENT OF ANTARCTICA

BYRD'S FINDINGS

"Millions Of Years" Needed

Provided there is not another glacial period the Antarctic will become habitable again. Rear-Admiral Richard E. Byrd, who made this statement to a "Christian Science Monitor" correspondent prior to embarking for Boston, via New York, by the Santa Elena, added that "naturally, it will be a question of some millions of years."

The explorer declared that, as a result of his expeditions since 1928, he was able to affirm that the far southern continent used to be tropical, with a ring of mountains in the neighbourhood of the South Pole and others around the coast. It was not possible to prove human exist-ence there, however.

On his first polar expedition 12 years ago, he appreciated that the Antarctic lands were passing through the glacial age and that the ice was slowly diminishing, though, even to-day, there is a thickness of 5000 feet at the Pole and from one to four thousand at the coast. This was proved by radio depth detectors. But the Admiral found proof of much greater glacial activity in centuries gone by.

Shepherds Said Less Ice He had talked to the shepherds of the far south of Chile on the same subject. They told him that the mountain ice and snow is less today than a generation ago. As the ice diminished in the Antarctic regions, so the temperature would gradually rise through the centuries and possibly the Humboldt Current would be less cold. Sub-tropical parts of Chile and Peru owe their temperate climate to this current. Rather than alarm west coast South Americans about their future climate, Admiral Byrd reverted to

Ready Response In Auckland To A Humanitarian Appeal

By Telegraph—Press Association AUCKLAND, June 3.

There was a ready response to a request by the Mayor (Sir Ernest Davis) that all those citizens who were prepared to provide homes for refugee children from England or the war zones should register their names at the Town Hall. A special office was opened this afternoon for the receipt of names to be entered on the register, and when the office closed for the day homes had been offered to 48 children. The purpose of the register is to ascertain the number of children whom the citizens of Auckland would be able to assist either by providing them with temporary or permanent homes or by permanently adopting them. The Government is now considering the possibility of bringing orphan children of the Allies to New Zealand, and should a scheme of this nature be adopted, it is hoped that there will be sufficient homes in Auckland or the province ready to receive the children allotted to this area. The Mayor headed the list with an undertaking to provide a home for two orphan children, and several of those who also added their names to the register expressed their willingness to care for two children. Early in the day a communication was received from the secretary of the Manurewa Children's Home to the effect that his board would be pleased to offer accommodation for 10 children under the age of eight years.

LONDON, Jnue 1.

The decision of the employees of the Westfield Freezing Co. to work as usual to-day instead of observing the day as the King's Birthday holiday was only partially honoured by a section of the workers.

After a brief meeting at the 10 o'clock "smoko," the slaughtermen decided to cease work for the day. This action resulted in the workers in the offal department being rendered idle, and by 11 a.m. both departments were closed down. Over 100 men and youths were involved in the stoppage of work.

Operations were commenced at the usual hour in all departments at the works, but about eight slaughtermen did not attend for work.

An official of the workers' union stated to-night that the meeting of the slaughtermen was not an official one and was called by the men themselves. The president of the works branch of the union was not present.

Commenting on their decision several of the slaughtermen alleged by "GENEROUS OFFER that they had been misinformed by the Government's representative (Mr Hunter) at Friday's meeting He had given them to understand that all race meetings, including to day's Ellerslie meeting, were to be cancelled.

A patriotic rally on the lines of the "win the war" rallies held in Australia is to be staged in the Municipal Theatre at Hastings on the evening of June 26. The first of its kind in Hastings, it is expected that the rally will attract a crowd which will easily fill the theatre.

Preliminary organisation for the event is under way, and a programme is being framed that will give an excellent night's entertainment to all who attend, and at the same time will return a tidy sum to the provincial patriotic funds. Local personalities are to lead community singing which will include all the popular war songs. INTO HUGE WORKSHOP

QUALIFYING ROUNDS Heroism On The Home Front As War Machine Toils For Victory

There are two faces of France—of a nation at war and of a nation at work—and in the sum of human endeavour and sacrifice there is no difference between them. "On ne passe pas" is as much the battle-cry of the workshop as it is of the Maginot Line, as challenging in the throb and roar of the factories as in the mighty fortresses of the east, and now, after six months of extraordinary difficulty, French industry, transformed into a gigantic war machine, is in full blast for victory (writes a special correspondent of "The Times"). Much has still to be done before the peak is reached, for military needs were never so complex nor insistent, but every day the rhythm quickens, and already the output of arms surpasses the highest hopes.

Women and youths, and men above military age- the price of the last War may be seen in the comparative scarcity of these older men-are heroically toiling, day and night, weekdays and Sundays, to turn out guns and shells, aeroplanes, and tanks in numbers hitherto undreamed of. No one knew that there would be six months' breathing space in which to build and organise. One of the incongruities of the war is to see the steel foundries of Lorraine lighting the night sky for miles around almost within hearing of gunfire.

all this activity had to be mobilised without losing sight of military needs or—a burning question just now— of the next harvest.

A Year Not Wasted

A Year Not Wasted

No true appreciation of the French industrial achievement is possible without going back to September, when, almost overnight, 6,000,000 men were called to the Colours. Mobilisation has been likened to a kick in an ant-hill, none the less dislocating in this instance because many people saw it coming in the year after Munich. That year had not been wasted. Each factory, like each soldier, had received its calling-up papers well in advance, and within a few days the Ministry of Armaments came into work, and so, very significant now, is the improvement in social conditions of railwaymen. France has certainly kept the right man in the right place as Minister of Armanants

War Footing

The industrial framework was there, but during those early days of disorganisation, when men in their thousands downed tools to join their thousands downed tools to Join their regiments, it needed a magnificent response from those left behind to get the factories on a war footing. The exemption of specialists in France is in no way comparable with the English system; the immediate call is to the armed forces and exemptions come after.

Not a minute was lost. State soldiers who, without being demo-and private factories working for national defence were extended and adapted, and under the menace of classes as they are released from adapted, and under the menace of air attack a vast system of decentralisation was arranged with nothing less than the doubling of existing means of production as its objective.

In three months new workshops were created in the south and the west that normally would take 18 months to build, and the labour for all this activity had to be mobilised female labour will be obligatory. female labour will be obligatory. Already more than 300,000 women from the towns and the countryside are engaged in making munitions and aeroplane wings; their work-shops are the image of a France united in arms and united at work. Factory Secrets

Naturally, little may be written about the secrets of the armament factories; they have cost more than one spy his life on the Belgian border. The workshops are well spread under a system of regional organisation, and most of them are turning out any arts without the first of the state of t ing out parts rather than the fin ished article.

We went out into Normandy, across fields where women were ploughing, to a lonely brass foundry that is wholly occupied with making advance, and within a few days the Ministry of Armaments came into being charged with the tremendous task of finding ways and means to meet the requirements of the Ministry of War.

At its head is M. Raoul Dautry, now in the Cabinet a man of energy and instant decision, who, together with a reputation for getting things done, has outstanding qualities as an engineer and organiser. The great development of French railways since the last war is largely his work, and so, very significant now,

From Cars to Tanks

Again, the works of a well-known French motor-car are now entirely engaged in the manufacture of 'ight tanks and artillery tractors. But the solid steel armour that has al-ready proved its resistance to Ger-man shells is cast in one part of the country and the chassis in another These motor-car works have the more exciting task of making the engines and assembling the parts,

ALL IRISH ALL THE WAY

BALDRIC FAILS

"Daily Mail" Special Service.
AUCKLAND, June 3. AUCKLAND, June 3.

Baldric, the actual favourite for the Great Northern Steeplechase today voluntarily retired from the contest when a mile remained to be covered and it was left to his bracketmate, All Irish, a reputed non-stayer, to pull the punters out of the fire by making all his own running and winning hands down. It was an exceptionally good performance on the part of All Irish and the rest of the field was thrown into the shadows in the estimation of jumping enthusiasts. Indeed, before the race the field was voted by one expert as the worst since Royal Limond's year and the issue lends colour to the dictum.

Hirangi flattered his followers until Hirangi flattered his followers until they reached the flat for the run in, but he could not develop any pace in his pursuit of All Irish and in the end he was deprived of second place Forest Glow were the only others to complete the course.

The leaders over the first fence were Forest Glow, Enjoyment, Mahala and All Irish. The last-mentioned quickly took command and over the hill the first time he was six lengths ahead of Forest Glow, with eight lengths to Mahala. Then came Enjoyment, Hirangi and Bells of Bow, the others it wide intervals, and Baldric last.

At the water jump in front of the stands All Irish maintained his advantage from Forest Glow, Mahala, Hirangi and Enjoyment, in close order with Bells of Bow, Biform, Smiling Thru and Baldric at six lengths' intervals. Enjoyment at the first fence down the back the second time became the initial casualty.

came the initial casualty.

Over the hill the second time All Irish had an eight lengths' lead of Mahala, with Forest Glow and Hirangi at two lengths' intervals. Smiling Thru fell here. Running through the straight the second time Hirangi and Mahala were nearest to the leader and at the obstacle near the mile Baldric, who was still last, baulked. The order of the running as they entered the final circuit was All Irish Hirangi, Bells of Bow and Mahala, but Belis of Bow lost his rider on the hill at the second fence and this left All Irish, Hirangi and Mahala the only ones in the running.

As they approached the stone wall

As they approached the stone wall at the foot of the hill Hirangi was going well, but was not making up any leeway. All Irish took the last fence in the straight about three lengths clear of Hirangi, with Mahala on the other's quarters. All Irish then drew away to gain the verdict by eight lengths, with Hirangi, very tired, two lengths behind Mahala.

Acreman, Ugly Duckling and Kilcash handy.
Star Vaal retired and Acreman and Gaine's Choice entered the straight just ahead of Wildore, with Kilcash coming up on the outer. The lastnamed continued her run to beat Acreman by a length and a half. Gaine's Choice was two lengths further away. Next in order were Philemup, Wildore, Ugly Duckling, and Silverstick.

Although only four lined up for the Park Steeplechase, a splendid contest was staged. Dozie Boy fully deserved his success, for his jumping throughout was faultless. He gained lengths on most of his opponents at most fences and then he showed gameness to hang on solidly under pressure.

Small Boy jumped patchily and his bad efforts cost him many lengths. However, he ran a good race for a novice steeplechaser and he may yet make good at this game. He, nevertheless, has a lot to learn about steeplechasing.

Acron nearly dropped his rider over the double the first time, but Baker made a good recovery. This, however, cost him the best part of a furlong, and he did well to battle on to take third money from Royal Toast. The last-named gave a great exhibition of jumping the first time round, but then began to tire and, after hitting several fences very hard, he dropped out of the struggle. The race, however, should improve him in view of his engagement the second day at Con Kerr was seen in his best form on the winner and he thus pulled off the 'chasing double, having "hooped" Tigriterre home to victory on Saturday.

ARTHUR LORD rode a very confident race on Queen's Dream in his challenge to Rakahanga and Authoress as soon as they straightened up. Native Song was in front at the distance and he went on from the leaders across the top. Queen's Dream was actually first over the final obstacle and thereafter she was never in danger of defeat. Star Vaal quite early got a big break from Ugly Duckling, Strathire and Gaine's Choice, but at the half mile Gaine's Choice and Philemup were drawing up the leader, with Acreman, Ugly Duckling and Kilcash handy.

Star Vaal retired and Acreman and Star Vall retired and Acreman and Smiling Personality, the latter going into second position at the end of a furlong. Vascones moved up to the leaders making the home bend, and she battled on gamely to bridge the gap to Smiling Personality, who had gone into the Personality, who had gone into the lead as they straightened up.

Opoho finished well on the first day and he was suited by the extra distance in this event. It was his best race for some time and it looks as if he will strip a very fit horse for the Hawke's Bay meeting.

There was nothing between the other four starters as they went past other four starters as they went past the post and Indian Sun, who had

Easy For Poutatau

Beginning smartly in the Trial Plate the Ngatarawa two-year-old Plate the Ngatarawa two-year-old Poutatau had the running on the fence all the way and his chances were improved when Dusky Morn fell at the end of a furlong. Poutatau shook off Golderaft two furlongs from home and, though Etla put in a dah at the distance Pout put in a dab at the distance, Poutatau was travelling very smoothly and he came right away in the last furlong. Poutatau ran second at Feilding at Easter and looks a like-

Etla finished better than usual to take second money, but she had every chance as she was in behind Poutatau and Goldcraft all the way. TURNOVER DOWN An Enjoyable Meeting

The Napier Park Racing Club's winter meeting was concluded yesterday at Greenmeadows in perfect weather. The course was in splendid order and the racing throughout the day was first class, with form proving very good to follow. There were no surprise victories, but, taking a line through the first day's running, there were some good dividends.

The loss of the holiday spoiled what promised to be a good meeting. The increase shown on the opening day was wiped out by the deficit of £2135 for the day, the totalisator turnover being £5043/10/-, compared with £7178/10/- on the holiday last year. For the meeting the totalisator handled £11,734, compared with £13,132 last year, a decrease of £1398.

An inquiry was held into the falling

An inquiry was held into the falling of Dusky Morn in the Trial Plate, in which his rider, N. E. Howard, escaped injury. It was found that Dusky Morn got on the heels of Skyette, but the in-

STEEPLECHASE DAY

By Telegraph—Press Association. AUCKLAND, June 3.

The Auckland Racing Club's Great Northern Steeplechase meeting continued at Ellerslie in overcast weather. The attendance was 16,500. The track was heavy and the totalisator handled £65,-893/10/-, compared with £86,154 last year, a decrease of £20,260/10/-. The results are:— the totalisator handled £11,734, comparied with £13,132 last year, a decrease of £1398.

An inquiry was held into the falling of Dusky Morn in the Trial Plate, in which his rider, N. E. Howard, escaped injury. It was found that Dusky Morn got on the heels of Skyette, but the incident was purely accidental and so no further action was taken.

The conduct of the meeting was favourably commented upon from all quarters, the splendid organisation of the falling Station, S.7; 1-1 Venture, 8.6; 9-9 Bronze Emerald, 8.5; 15-17 Calshot, 8.5, car. 8.7; 4-4 Te Haka, 8.2; 8-7 Cheval de Bataille. S.0; 7-8 Expellant, 8.0, car. 8.1: 14-14 secretary, Miss I. I. Fippard, being widely appreclated. In this direction she was ably assisted by her staff, and the stewards of the club set themselves out to entertain visiting owners and trainers. At the very least the meeting will go down on the records as one in which the Napier Park Racing Club consolidated its position with sportsmen in Hawke's Bay and, by gaining new friends from outside districts, the club will become increasingly popular.

A word must be said regarding the splendid state of the tracks, and the course proper was never seen to better advantage.
