THREE SCARS ON BIG BEN

(United Press Association-Copyright.) (Received October 7, 9.15 p.m.)

LONDON, October 6. A high-explosive bomb fell in the forecourt of the Houses of Parliament between the public entrance and the peers' entrance during a recent air raid. It blew in hundreds of the leaded windows and smashed a 30-foot window at the end of Westminster Hall, including part of the massive stone

The stained glass windows on the side of the House of Lords debating chamber were blown out, doors were torn from their hinges and glass and metal rained down on the golden thrones used by their Majesties at the opening of Parliament, but they were scarcely scratched although the surrounding carpets and walls were damaged.

There was more glass broken in the lobbies and cloakrooms of the House of Commons.

Flying splinters caused three more wounds on the western face of Big Ben, but Big Ben time still shows on all four sides. Lord Teviot and Lord Lawrence and several officials suffered minor cuts.

The idea of Hitler and Mussolini that they could scatter and smash the British Commonwealth by attacking the heart of the Empire was tacking the heart of the Empire was a vain delusion, said the Prime Minister (the Rt. Hon.)

A loud and sudden noise, which appeared to some to be a distant or muffled detonation, was heard by many residents of Kaiapoi on a recent evening. The noise was heard by everyone attending a service in a Kaiapoi church at exactly 7.30 p.m. A resident living about a mile and a half from the sea said that the noise seemed to come from the coast though he would not be sure. Two "woman-haters" who are also sea-lovers, seeking adventure and finding comedy and romance as well, are the central figures who, among other escapades, end up in "black face" disguise at a native feast in "The Road to Singapore," now showing at the Regent Theatre, Napier, with Bing Crosby, Dorothy Lamour and Bob Hope in the star ring roles, and a supporting cast headed by Charles Coburn, Judith Barrett, Anthony Quinn and Jerry The two lads who don the pain are, of course, Bing Crosby and Bob Hope, who spend their time in this picture basking in the tropics where they hope—yes, they really do!—to avoid matrimony. But, of course, when Bing gets a chance to croon to Miss Lamour and Bob can keep her amused, the boys are soon off on the wrong track again.

All this trekking down to the land of Goona-Goona comes about when Bing and Bob get back in port after a voyage on one of Bing's dad's boats. First, they have to dispose of a couple of guys sent around by one of Bob's old girl friends. They give him the "Patty-cake," clap hands, then sock. Young Folk Enjoy A Fancy Dress Ball

Pupils Of The Native School At Tangoio

Fine Programme

Many Colourful Costumes Admired During The Dancing

Friday night will long be remempered by the children of the Tangoio Native School, the occasion being the first annual school fancy dress ball. The local meeting house had been transformed into an appropriate scene with streamers in the school colours of red and gold, together with designed masses of greenery. The addition of the children's gay and varied costumes pre-sented a picturesque scene as they marched in formation and danced to old English folk tunes and ballroom was entertained with items of every description. Ancient Maori poi dances, hakas, action songs and harmony delighted the Maori and pakeha patrons. Until 9.30 p.m. the children had the floor.

Following the juvenile programme the ladies served supper and the adults commenced dancing. Between dances impromptu talent in song and action added to the pleasure of the programme. Until a late hour dancing continued, and it was with eluctance that the happy gathering dispersed.

The teachers wish to express their appreciation of the wholehearted cooperation of parents and local friends. Thanks are also due to the many pakeha friends of the school for their patronage. Visitors included friends from Bay View, Napier, and Te Haroto.

The children's programme included: Grand march, polonaise march, chain waltz, military two-step, statue waitz, log cabin, Lambeth walk, val-

PRESENTATION MADE

The Maraekakaho Hall presented a festive scene when the residents of the district collected for a special evening in honour of Pilot-Officer Alistair Graham of the R.N.Z.A.F. The guest of honour's popularity and new and old numbers were sung and much enjoyed.

Afternoon tea was handed round by the hostesses (Mesdames Rapley and Young) and helpers, and a pleasant half-hour was spent in chatting.

During the afternoon three songs were sung by Mrs H. Poppelwell, and the president, after presenting her with a dainty shoulder spray, thanked her for coming to entertain the guild.

The guest of honour's popularity was evinced by the large number who gathered at the dance.

The hall was decorated with flags and bunting and letters along one side formed the words "Happy Landings." Model aeroplanes, in formation, were suspended from the roof. The supper-room was decorated with a profusion of lovely flowers, and red, white and blue streamers, with model aeroplanes forming part of the table decorations.

A presentation from the people of the district was made to Pilot-Officer Graham by the Rev. R. B. Waugh, who spoke very ably of the work of the Air Force and of the part played by the guest of honour, who made a very stirring reply, in which he said he would do his utmost to uphold the traditions of his country and the British Empire.

The evening, which had been arranged by the Maraekakaho Social Club was spent in dancing and was most enjoyable and bright. Les Tasker's orchestra supplied the music and a most appetising supper was enjoyed by everyone.

Two competitions were won by Mr Gerald Graham and Mr H. Sim-mons, and the statue waltz was won by Miss M. MacLean and partner.

GREENMEADOWS

A good attendance of members gathered at the Greenmeadows Women's Institute monthly meeting when Mrs R. Wright presided over the gathering.

The results of the competitions were as follows: Best bowl of mixed flowers: Mrs Glenny 1, Mrs Shaw 2, Mrs McCarthy 3; arm sheaf, Mrs McCarthy 1, Mrs Castles 2, Mrs Scott 3; best bloom, Mrs McCarthy 1, Mrs Mcdarthy 1, Mrs Mudgway 2, Mrs Peterson 3.

A very pleasant surprise of the afternoon was a beautifully iced birthday cake made and donated by Mrs Manning. Mrs Baker in a delightful little speech, thanked the donor and also wished the institute many happy returns and hoped it would continue to have many more birthdays.

BEWARE OF THAT

CATCHING COUGH

Like yawning, coughing is, as we say, catching. During a sermon or a concert or a public meeting, the assembly begins by not coughing. All may be well; but it is touch-and-go. More than half-unconsciously, someone will give just one little cough—an "apologetic" cough, like the "Ahem!" of Dr Pangloss. The mischief is done. Season Nears End

"Daily Mail" Special Service WAIROA

With the season rapidly drawing an end it was unfortunate that unfavourable weather necessitated the postponement of the final L.G.U. medal round and Red Cross match set down for last week. The draw will stand for this week and it is hoped that members will turn out in full strength to support the club's final patriotic effort of the season. A special competition will be held for C grade players.

Hill Trophy

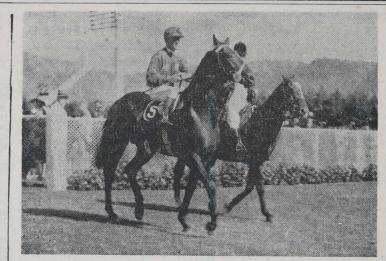

Last week's match for the Hill trophy furnished a surprise in the defeat of Mrs Glengarry by Mrs McCrea. Mrs Glengarry had successfully disposed of every weekly challenge for four months, a remarkable achievement, and Mrs McCrea's defeat of her was a fine McCrea's defeat of her was a fine effort in the circumstances.

The holders of the Smith Ribbons

(Mesdames McCrea and Summer-field) proved too strong for the challengers, Mesdames Sainsbury and Ryan.

Gold Salute's Surprise In Shorts

United Press Association—Copyright. (Received Oct. 7, 10.30 p.m.) SYDNEY, Oct. 7.

Beau Vite's dazzling victory in the Metropolitan Handicap at Randwick to-day stamps him as a stayer whose class is hard to find in Australia to-day. He appears, according to experienced turfites to have mortgage on the Melbourne Cup. Not since the days of Phar Lap has any horse achieved a double track record at a Randwick meeting as was registered by Beau Vite in the Colin Stephen Stakes and the Metropolitan. His time 2.42 for the mile and five furlongs to-day constituted an Australian and New Zealand record hitherto held by Young Crusader, whose 2.42½ was established in 1007.

High Caste's Remarkable Epsom Victory

"Daily Mail" Special Service.
AUCKLAND, Oct. 7. Reviewing the contest for the Epsom Handicap at Randwick the Sydney "Sunday Sun" says:-

"Trainer J. T. Jamieson did not decide to start High Caste in the Epsom Handicap at Randwick yesterday until 10 minutes before the A.J.C. Derby was run—2.45 p.m. Less than an hour later High Caste had proved himself one of the greatest horses to have raced in Australia, having overcome a serious foot injury and won a prize of £2250.

Jeering Remarks "A small section of the crowd made jeering remarks about High Caste's lameness, but when the horse had cooled down and was walked about outside his stall he was undoubtedly lame again. When taken into his box he winced whenever he put his injured foot to the ground and his attendants had some difficulty in dressing him. Jamieson, who was standing close to the horse, then ordered that High Caste be taken straight home, and the foot placed in hot water to relieve the soreness.

Disadvantage Early

"High Caste felt the disadvantage of his heel trouble in the first few furlongs. Bartle told Jamieson that the horse could not stretch out and at the half-mile he thought that he was a 100 to one chance. Then, suddenly, High Caste was galvanised into action. He shot forward as though he had just joined in, and, although he had to make his run wide on the outside at the home turn, he had ranged close to the leaders at the furlong post. For a few strides. High Caste looked like winning easily, but Midura who had shot through the centre of the field, staged a great finish, and ran High Caste to a neck.

"St. Constant, who most racegoers thought had lost his speed, and could not show up at any distance less than a mile and a quarter, ran one of the finest races of his life. He began even slower than usual. He was tailed off early, and was still last at the home turn. Then Coutts pulled him wide on the outside and St. Constant produced one of the most remarkable finishing efforts seen at Randwick for years.

"Katanga, who was fourth, finished Disadvantage Early finishing efforts seen at Randwick for years.

"Katanga, who was fourth, finished almost as fast as St. Constant. There was little between them at the home turn, and on his Epsom performance Katanga seems certain to win a race before the close of the A.J.C. carnival. Red Thespian, the oldest horse in the Epsom Handicap, finished a close fifth. Buzalong looked a possibility when he ran into sixth place at the turn, but he lost a little ground through having to race around the leaders."

Certissimus, who made a successful debut in the Drayton Handicap at the Methven Trots on Saturday, is regarded as one of the most promising three-year-old trotters in the South Island.

Kadina's two races at Hastings last week suggest that her turn is not far distant. She is engaged at Otaki this week.

Heroic Maid did not begin with her usual alacrity either day at the Hawke's Bay meeting. She may be in need of a short spell.

Hunting Cat's running at Hastings last week does not hold out much for his immediate future. The old chap seems to have slipped.

There was a quite whisper for Master Solway on Saturday. He had all the bad luck at the start and then finished fifth. His chance may come at Masterton next week.

The final of the match play competition for the Hyde Cup, played at the week-end over the Ormond-ville District Golf Links, resulted in W. M. Kane defeating D. Edge-combe two up. Both players were in excellent form and played well down to their handicaps, Edgecombe being unlucky enough, however, to get bunkered at the 15th., 16th., and 17th holes, which probably cost him the match. Kane played a steady game throughout.

Londoners, in their keen observation of every phase of the blitzkrieg have discerned a law of increasing enemy desperation, so to speak, which causes them to expect that some new kind of German savagery will be launched.

Therefore the satisfaction that R.A.F. fighters on September 16 won the biggest victory of the war was mingled with speculation—although without misgiving—about what is Londoners, in their keen observa-

The semi-finals of the C grade championship resulted in Miss N. Chadwick defeating Miss N. D. Wilson, and Miss M. Sampson defeating Miss E. Bennett. Miss Chadwick and Miss Sampson are to play off the final at their convenience.

Next Saturday an L.G.U. stroke competition will be played, the draw being as follows: Miss N. Jull v. Mrs G. Hill, Mrs E. B. Pedersen v. Miss G. Hill, Mrs E. B. Pedersen v. Wiss J. Freeman, Miss M. It is pointed out in London that lies of this kind—attributing to an enemy a practice which Germany intends to adopt—are the normal part of the German technique, and go as far back as the last war.

It is pointed out that many chemical factories in Germany which have been bombed by the R.A.F. are producing gas bombs, and although much damage has been done it is estimated that the quantities of poison gas that can be produced in the Stolzenberg factories at Ham-burg and at plants at Leuna and Oppau would alone suffice for all the eeds of the German war machine.

Special Gas-mask Filters The Germans claim that "W" gas

The Germans claim that "W" gas would penetrate every gasmask, and that "green gas" is equally deadly, but it is held by at least some authorities here that all known gases, including "W" and "green" can be countered by the use of gas masks with a special filter.

Special filters — presumably for these gases—were made available throughout Britain months ago, when citizens were urged to take

"We often have the siren going day and night," the writer proceeds, "but are getting used to it. The enemy 'planes seem to come at meal times, so we dump the food on a tray, and carry it to the shelter. Our shelter had about four or five inches of water in it, but we haled when citizens were urged to take their masks to A.R.P. depots and have the filters fitted. Public gas-proof shelters may be

There are some who urge that the most effective defence of all is readiness to launch powerful reprisals, the knowledge of which would deter Hitler. The conviction that the Germans are coming to the end of their resources in the present phase, and may be expected to embark on new terrors, is strengthened by the magnitude of the failure of recent air raids.

PLANNED ECONOMY IN THE POST-WAR WORLD

Admiral King Hall, whose London News-letter is a source or interest and information to people at home and abroad, has been dealing with the kind of world that will emerge from the present war, and is warning us to be ready for something very different from what we have been accustomed to.

The last war brought experiences of state control of finance, industry and transport, and proved that in a period of emergency a centralised direction of the economic organisation of the state was necessary before the whole strength of the nation could be employed to crush an aggressor. Peace had scarcely been arranged before the Government began to shed its wartime responsibilities and functions. Ships and railways were restored to their owners. Factories created for the production of war equipment were disposed of along with millions of pounds worth of machinery and surplus stores. The control of finance reverted to the banks and great corporations, and the war that was fought to make a better world began to recede into history before it was discovered that all the disadvantages and imperfections of the old order remained unaffected.

It took several years for the momentum of wartime production to slow down, but when Britain returned to the gold standard and the deflationary policy of the Government and the financiers was entered upon, the stage was set for the most disastrous slump of modern times. The misery and hardship inflicted upon millions of people throughout the world are still fresh in people's memory. The distress was most acute in the United States, which had enjoyed the greatest measure of "war prosperity," and at one period the country was in grave danger of a revolution.

Great Britain had to face industrial upheavals, and great political changes occurred in the Dominions. In our case, the representatives of the political parties that had administered public affairs ever since the establishment of responsible government were relegated to obscurity and a Labour Party came into power for the first time. The legislative measures it has introduced, and the extension and scope of the functions of the government for which it has been responsible, gave a new trend to political development in New Zealand, and are still the subject of acute controversy. It is now dawning on people in England that after this war there will be no complete reversion to any previous order, and as reported in our cable news yesterday, many of the expedients adopted to co-ordinate the war efforts of the nation will remain in operation when peace is restored. It may seem premature to speculate concerning the post-war economic framework of Great Britain and the Empire. Germany is still undefeated, and before victory is finally won, other innovations in state control and economic planning may be superimposed on the existing structure. But it is already clear that traditionalist ideas regarding the freedom people have hitherto enjoyed to engage in productive enterprises and to choose for themselves the services they will perform in a free country, are undergoing considerable modification.

Mr Churchill, in one of his speeches, promised that the rights and privileges which the people of Britain had so willingly surrendered for the duration of the war would be restored in due course, but some of the strongest members of the War Cabinet have very different ideas on the subject. When the time comes they will be found insisting that if the machinery of finance and production can be operated in the interests of the nation as a whole to meet the exigencies of war, it can be controlled and directed equally effectively to meet the needs of the nation under conditions of peace. In other words, the British Democracy will be expected to face up to the task, in the post-war period, of planning a national economy that will ensure and maintain reasonable living standards for all the people.

As Admiral King Hall and others foresee, this will involve a degree of state control almost as complete as that exercised by totalitarian governments, and the real problem will be how to exercise that control without abolishing private property and without interfering unduly with the freedom of the individual which is supposed to be the supreme merit and glory of democracy.

Abandoned Car Sequel

A sequel to the finding of a small motor car, stripped of its wheels and battery, on the new access road to Taradale from Napier, was enacted in the Napier Juvenile Court yesterday, when a youth appeared before Mr J. WITHOUT EXTRA CHARGE AT

PRIESTS AND POLICEMEN TERRITORIAL BALLOT

Stated That Authorities Did Not Benefit From Last War's Lessons

The anomalies contained in the list of names drawn in last week's military service ballot has resulted in a good deal of criticism being directed at the authorities who organised the ballot. A Hastings resident who was associated with the drawing of ballots in the last war said yesterday that the National Somica Department are presently standard.

ted with the drawing of ballots in the last war said yesterday that the National Service Department apparently had not benefited from lessons learned in 1914-1918.

The "all-in" policy adopted for the purpose of the ballot is the chief cause for complaint as far as most people are concerned. Despite the fact that members of the Police Force are listed as belonging to a "reserved occupation" the names of several Hawke's Bay constables appear in the ballot lists. It is interesting to note that policemen may not even volunteer for service with the armed forces, but several have resigned to enlist. resigned to enlist.

Priests and theological students were included in the list, but there is automatic exemption for the former and the latter will have a strong claim for exemption.

The greatest anomaly lies in the case of men who have enlisted and are already serving overseas or are training in the Dominion. Quite a number of such names appeared in the territorial ballot. Men who wished to serve overseas and were waiting to be called up were drawn in ing to be called up were drawn in the ballot and the question arises whether they should appeal or not. "Eligibles" Only

It has been explained that in a work of such dimensions some miswork of such dimensions some mistakes were bound to occur, but the opinion is freely expressed that these could have been avoided had the register been confined to the "eligibles." Some men drawn in the ballot are obviously unfit physically for military service and that their names should have been included in the register is an anomaly in itself. It is contended that had a reasonable amount of investigation been made before the register was compiled the possibility of widespread difficulty would have been removed. Men who believed themselves to be in reserved comparison, these who in reserved occupations, those who had volunteered for overseas or territorial service, and other classes of young men normally looked upon as exempt were included in the ballot.

LONDON, Oct. 6.

The Balkans correspondent of the London "Daily Telegraph" says that Hungarian - Rumanian relations show that the Vienna agreement which transferred the greater part of Transylvania to Hungary, was not a settlement at all. Big groups of Hungarians are left within Rumania, while Hungary has absorbed vast areas populated by Rumanians. Moreover, Hungary has no intention of regarding the settlement as final.

final.

It seems to be dawning on countries which have hitherto been persuaded that an Axis victory is a foregone conclusion that, after all, there is a remote possibility of a British victory, and also that the Axis is not likely to have things all its own way when the time comes for the peacemaking. for the peacemaking.

Evening Up Losses

A country like Hungary therefore has a natural tendency to cash in a much as possible on the grounds that "if the Axis wins, we shall keep some of what we have. If the Axis is defeated or weakened, then the more we have the less we are likely to lose proportionately."

A Bucharest message says that 280 Rumanian intellectuals have arrived at Curtici from Transylvania. They declared that the Hungarian authorities without warning ordered their departure.

authorities without warning ordered their departure.

It is semi-officially stated in Budapest that Rumania's intransigency in the negotiations for the return of refugees compelled Hungary to take reprisals and to expel certain Rumanians. "The expelled Rumanians are only a fraction of the number of Hungarians expelled from Rumania." It is stated: "If Rumania continues her expulsions, Hungary will be compelled to take stronger reprisals." A review of the opinions expressed yesterday by prominent businessmen and executives approached for their views on the ballot for home defence and on the consequent labour problems reveals, if not satisfaction, at least acquiescence in the principles involved.

"The needs of the private individual or firm must, at a time like this, give way before the greater needs of the country," commented a well-known Hastings man, and this is probably representative of the general trend of opinion. Some 1400 men left Hawke's Bay last week for home defence or for overseas service in the greatest exodus of troops from the province so far in the present war. Although numbers should be returning home at the end of three months, the immediate labour problem may present difficulties in some of Hawke's Bay's seasonal occupations.

Selective Conscription

"I am in agreement with selective conscription of man power and wealth for national defence," said one man interviewed, "but I consider that the principle should be tempered by equity and justice. Thus time and circumstance require due consideration, both from the point of view of the individual and of the community he serves."

The speaker instanced a man on his staff who had received only 24 hours notice that he was to go into camp. Adequate warning should be issued, he said, in order that satisfactory arrangements could be made by the man himself, and that readjustments might be effected by the employer.

HUNGARIANS LEFT ESCAPEES RECAPTURED BY THREE CONSTABLES

Men Offered No Resistance: One Convict Is Still At Large

By Telegraph-Press Association AUCKLAND, October 7.

Surprised while hiding in a small area of bush not far from the Titirangi Hotel at 6.30 a.m. to-day, and without offering any resistance beyond an attempt at bluff, three of the four men who escaped from Auckland Prison last Tuesday night were recaptured by three of the constables taking part in the search for them.

One convict was Randall Reginald David Smith, a convicted murderer, serving a life sentence. The others were Bryan James O'Hehir and John Henry Silva, both burglars. They had eaten nothing for two days and wore a heterogeneous collection of garments stolen from different places they had visited at night.

Early this morning Constable Mc-Tavish, Constable D. J. Dwan, and Constable W. Saunders were detailed to patrol the area in the neighbourhood of the hotel. They went carefully through the undergrowth, and inspected sheds, baches and houses, but found nothing suspicious until they reached a small slip-rail on the other side of which McTavish saw several footprints evidently made by someone in a hurry.

HUMOROUS ANECDOTES OF THE BRITISH ARMY

Major E. E. Barrows Entertains Members Of The Napier Rotary Club

"The Army's Secret Weapon—Humour" was the subject of an entertaining address given by Major E. E. Barrows at yesterday's luncheon of the Napier Rotary Club. The speaker related a number of amusing anecdotes gathered from a long experience of Army life.

The Guards have their own peculiar style of drilling and giving commands, Major Barrows said. On one occasion this led to an unfortunate mistake. The men were on parade, every eye looking straight ahead. Suddenly a mongrel dog trotted up from the side and gave a low growl. To everyone's consternation the Guards sprang to attention, sloped arms, and marched away in column of fours.

The issue of the present war reminded the speaker of a story he had heard about the prevalence of piracy on the Yangtse river in China. A British ship had been held up on the river by fog, and almost immediately the Chinese pirates came in sight. The captain ordered rifles and ammunition to be handed to every white man on board, and this was done, except that a Quaker among the passengers refused to take a firearm.

SWIMMING SEASON DESERT WARRIORS NURSE A GRUDGE AGAINST ITALY

Senussi May Help British Though They Fought Them In Last War

Discussing operations in Egypt, a recent cable said that Senussi tribesmen were awaiting an opportunity to swoop down on the Italians.

Doubtless these desert warriors nurse a grudge dating from the days when Marshal Graziani was Governor of Libya and his methods with recalcitrant tribesmen were the reverse of gentle, but the fact that there is a possibility that they may be heard of in this war recalls that British Dominions troops had to undertake a campaign against them in the Saving Club last night.

A number of members expressed the opinion that the club had not been sufficiently active in encouraging juniors to become members, and it was decided to make an extra effort in this direction in the coming year.

Charge for Baths

It was decided to hold club night each Tuesday as in the past. In view of the reduction in senior membership due to enlistments it was considered that the Borough Council should be approached with a view to waiving the charge for the use of the baths.

The financial statement showed a small debit on the year.

directed against the British but German influence and German money, together with pressure from Constantinople, induced them to take part in a grandiose plan for the invasion of Egypt. This plan, which seems to have a certain amount of affinity with the one the Italians now appear to be preparing, envisaged attacks along two lines from the Western Desert, co-ordinated with a revolt by a Sudanese sultan and a Turkish threat toward the Suez Canal.

The Senussi succeeded in causing some perturbation by occupying some perturbation by occupying some important oases and were not finally overthrown till several thousand for the place where the captives and the discommitter of the rebels was completed by brilliant operations by the Duke of Westminster's detachment of armoured cars. All told, the enemy lost more than half his officers and all his artillery and machine-guns, besides having his men scattered far beyond the Egyptian border.

The final spectacular effort of the campaign was the rescue of some sailors from two torpedoed British ships who, landing on the African coast, had fallen into the hands of the Senussi and had suffered every privation and indignity. The Burma Road Is Prominent In History As "Back Door Of China"

To the average Occidental, the Burma Road has come to occupy almost the same place in dreams of remote adventure that the Great Wall of China once held, or the Golden Road to Samarkand, says a writer in the General Motors' "World." it sprang into the news of the world already half-built. already feeding the new China, deep in the undeveloped west. When Bruce Miles journeyed to Yunnan-fu only four years ago, it was a small sleepy town, far off the trade routes; today, as Kunming, it is the thriving industrial capital of a young determined province and terminus of the great road from Rangoon and Mandalay. This new-old "back door to China" was once a great road, its front door in the days of Kublai Khan, and Marco Polo travelled it on missions of import for the great Khan. Burmese principalities sent missions in the opposite direction to pay him tribute; armies and caravans of commerce knew it well. Then, with the opening of China's eastern ports in the nineteenth century and with the completion of a railroad from Haipong to Yunnan in the early twentieth, the road fell

It was necessary to build 289 bridges, each capable of supporting from 10 to 15-ton loads; 1959 culverts had to be laid, the surface of the roadbed had to be varied from 9 to 16 feet, maintaining a maximum grade of 8 per cent. and a minimum curve radius of 50 feet. And it was built, built by hand, by thousands of hands, without the aid of machinery, by the people of China—but at a total cost of not more than 25,000,000 dollars. than 25,000,000 dollars.

Volunteer Workers

As is the custom for Chinese road-Women's Golf At building, the magistrate in each district called for volunteer road-build ers and, for this particular road, able-bodied adults, men and women, rushed by the thousands to give service. The "Sydney Morning Herald" says: "High Caste was responsible for the best performance of his career when he won the Epsom Handicap on Saturday. He was lame on the morning of the race, and lame again yesterday. High Caste gave Mildura a long start into the straight, but had his measure a fair way from the winning post."

Medmenham, the dam of the Australian champion galloper Ajax, recently broke a leg and had to be destroyed.

NEW ZEALANDERS MAKE THEIR MARK

Randwick A Lucky Course

AUSTRALIANS ECLIPSED IN 1905 AND 1935

Comment On Hawke's Bay Form

(By MOTUROA).

Another A.J.C. spring carnival is in progress at Randwick and, although the prevailing restrictions have cut down the New Zealand contingent to the barest minimum this year, the opening day of the meeting on Saturday saw the Dominion well to the forefront. The Karamu-bred High Caste brilliantly won the rich Epsom Handicap and, but for the fact that Munro thought his mount had broken down, it looks as if Beaulivre would have participated in the finish with him; he would probably have led High Caste home.

Beau Vite confirmed the impression that he was the best class stayer in Australia this season by winning the Colin Stephen Stakes in 2.29 on a dead track. This was only 14sec. worse than the Australian and N.Z. record for twelve furlongs. The result of the Derby was disappointing to New Zealanders. The race appears to have been run at a muddling pace and the Dominion-bred colts Tidal Wave and Night-beam just finished outside the money in a close finish.

An invasion of the Australian Turf in the spring has been a popular venture with New Zealand sportsmen for a great many years. Occasionally the invaders have come away with their purses filled with gold and bearing honours thick upon them; on other occasions they have returned poorer in pocket but enriched in experience. But, whatever fortune befalls the campaigners, Randwick never fails to be the lodestone of

In the last thirty-five years New Zealand owners have collected a large sum of prize-money in Australia and, in doing so, they have played an important part in emphasising the quality of our racehorses; thus they have paved the way to Australia's attention to our bloodstock market.

A survey of the results of the A.J.C. spring carnivals since the glorious 1905 onslaught certainly leaves the impression that New Zealanders, on the average, have come out of their ventures on the credit side. They may have had the luck on their side at times, but the Dominion representatives over that period have included practically all the leading horses bred on this side of the Tasman.

mond-Lady Bentinck) in the Canon-bury Stakes, with the Grand Knight gelding Whernside third. Capris (Captain Bunsby-Charis) was third in the Chester Handicap, while Nightly retrieved his reputation by winning the Randwick Plate from Oro and Lough Neagh.

DERBY SUCCESSES

THE first New Zealand horse to win the A.J.C. Derby was Nor-denfeldt (1885), and the next were Bonnie Scotland 1894, Bob Ray 1885.

Ten years later Noctuiform almost distanced all his opponents except his stable-mate Sun God. Multiform sliced several seconds off all previous Derby records. Kilboy 1916, Bi-plane 1917 and Gloaming 1918 brought the ribbon to New Zealand,

New Zealanders tasted defeat at Randwick in 1935, the Dominion once more enjoyed sweeping suc-cesses. It was the best meeting for the campaigners since 1905 and the result was all the more remarkable because of the casualties of prominent New Zealanders at meetings prior to the A.J.C. fixture.

Owner-trainer G. W. B. Greene has effected a big improvement in Morning Flight this season and the big roan gelding looks more solid all round. His win in the Glenaray Handicap on Saturday was not only decisive, but it was impressive and indicative of further successes in the course of the next few months. Until this season Morning Flight raced as an entire, but he proved difficult to train and he did very little racing. However, for a horse almost out of hacks, Morning Flight was very reasonably treated on Saturday and Parramore's 5lbs. allowance brought his weight down to ance brought his weight down to
