"INVASION" DENIED

Sinister Signs Of Army Collaboration

OCCUPATION OF OIL FIELDS

(United Press Association-Copyright.) (Received October 8, 11.45 p.m.)

LONDON, Oct. 7. Reports received in London that German troops have penetrated Rumania are denied from Bucharest, where it is officially indicated, however, that instructional troops are due as a result of Germany's guarantee under the Vienna award. Their use, it is stated, will be purely instructional.

London reports, however, refer to a German "invasion" of Rumania, Berlin claiming that the entry of Nazi troops is necessary to protect the oilfields against alleged British sabotage plots.

Reports from Bucharest say that the German division which is at present acting as a garrison chiefly in the war zone will be split up for training eight Rumanian divisions. Italian detachments are also expected soon, according to Bucharest statements.

The Rumanian Army naturally wishes real collaboration with the armies of the Axis, adds the Bucharest message. Germany particularly has promised to overhaul the army, for which Rumania will receive effective support from German industry.

No confirmation of the reported new German move has been received in official quarters in London, but, In view of the history of German aggression in the past 12 months, the reports are by no means discredited. Meanwhile, inquiries are being made at Bucharest.

The British United Press correspondent in Bucharest earlier stated that between four and five trainloads of German motorised forces and air force units had arrived in Rumania in the past 24 hours following a Rumanian official claim to possess positive proof that British bil men were engaged in plots to sabotage the oilfields.

RAINED DOWN ON CENTRAL LONDON

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1940.

Fires Started But Soon Extinguished

(United Press Association-Copyright.) (Received October 8, 10.35 p.m.)

LONDON, Oct. 7. A big air battle occurred over Dorset late on Monday afternoon, when seven raiders were shot down.

A high-explosive bomb fell almost directly on a public shelter in a western town, trapping women and children under masses of debris from a neighbouring building. Rescuers worked feverishly to extricate those in the shelter, but a number are known to be dead.

Other deaths resulted from a direct hit which demolished tailoring establishment; a baker and a horse were killed in Incendiary bombs rained down on Central London, setting fire to buildings, but the fires were quickly extinguished. A steady stream of raiders flew at a great speed from the south-east, frequently changing direction to avoid the blazing guns and searchlights.

Night raiders also appeared over Liverpool and other north-west English areas, the Midlands, the west of England, the south-east of Scotland, and Wales.

The Air Ministry announced that the day's raids had damaged a town in south-west England and commercial property in two boroughs of London. The casualties thus far reported are not heavy.

An Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security communique states hat considerable numbers of enemy aircraft attacked Britain during Monday. "Five attacks," it says have been attempted on London, the enemy forces totalling in all some 450 aircraft. Large forces of our fighters engaged the enemy formations, which were broken up and disposed.

Referring to the many people in Britain who have literally lost all they possess, Mr W. Holmes, in his presidential address to the Trades Union Congress, declared: "It is the nation's bounden duty to provide alternative accommodation for those rendered homeless. People who go to shelters and spend hours in them must obtain hot drinks and food when they are able to leave the food when they are able to leave the shelters. Many go straight to work without a chance of returning home for a meal. The problem of better arrangements for shelters and safer refuges is not insoluble."

"International fighters from many parts of Europe are filtering down to the Near East," says the Cairo correspon-dent of "The Times." "Australians and New Zealanders find themselves beside Czechs, Rumanians, Austrians, Finns, and Poles; they have come to carry on their war against Hitler with cavalry, artillery, infantry, machine-gunners, and anti-aircraft gunners. Under the starlit sky they are mustered at a spot where they will be close at hand when Graziani really tries to advance into Egypt. They are encamped across 1000 miles of desert, some under palms now heavily dateladen, some in coves by the sea, some burrowed into the

PATRIOTIC SOCIAL EVENING

Hastings Guild Members COMPETITIONS AND

MUSIC

Much Good Work Done

The Hastings Guild room was packed with members and their friends for a very jolly social even-ing organised by the members of the Patriotic Circle which was held last night. The enthusiasm of those who ion at St. Matthew's Church in the morning, intercession at noon and group discussion from 2 o'clock to assisted with the excellent programme as well as those who formed the audience was obvious from a standard of the audience was obvious from the standard of ed the audience was obvious from their willingness to be present on such a very unpleasant evening. The room was gay with large bowls of pink cherry blossom.

At the commencement of the evening Mrs Bruce Baumgart, the leader of the circle, welcomed everyone.

The programme was opened by Miss Rachel Schofield who gave much pleasure with her singing of two songs. Her accompaniments were played by Miss B. McHutchon and later in the evening she sang another two songs.

Miss Valerie McCombe gave two very clever recitations, "Gentlemen, A Toast" and an encore number for which she was heartily applauded.

An excellent and most interesting display was given by the Keep-Fit class of the Guild under the very able leadership of Miss M. C. Morris. able leadership of Miss M. C. Morris.
The members showed various drill exercises and folk dances and concluded with the Palais Glide.

That whole onions can be cooked round the joint, like roast potatoes.

That you can eat anything and kiss anybody if you chew dried tealeaves between the two.

That Worcester sauce improves salad dressing.

That it is easier to wash dough off hands and utensils with cold water.

Several competitions, arranged by Miss McLean, were held during the evening. A word-building competition was won by Mrs S. I. Jones, a song sentence by Mrs J. K. Agnew, with Mrs P. J. Priest second, and the winner of the musical parcels was Miss Dorothy Bryant, each of whom received a small prize.

The evening's programme concluded with two part songs beautifully sung by the choir of the Music Circle accompanied by their circle leader, Miss B. McHutchon.

Supper was then enjoyed by everyone and afterwards the Guild president, Mrs A. C. A. Hyde, when thanking all those who had helped to make the evening so enjoyable, spoke about the Patriotic Circle with its very capable leader, Mrs B. M. Baumgart and secretary, Mrs Bowen.

Mrs. Hyde said that as a result of Several competitions, arranged by Miss McLean, were held during

That a caramel top for puddings is easily made by sprinkling thickly with castor sugar and putting under a very hot grill.

That new potatoes can be put in a paper bag with a lump of butter and sauce and cooked in the oven in a covered casserole, half filled with water.

Mrs Hyde said that as a result of the evening almost f4 had been raised for the Guild patriotic work. She reported that the Patriotic Corcle which had only been for a very few months had now 50 members with an average attendance of 20 at the weekly sewing meetings. Already a very satisfactory number of garments, 300 in all, had been forwarded to the Lady Galway Patriotic Guild and all were most attractive and beautifully made.

Sherenden Collection

CHRISTMAS GIFTS FOR TROOPS

The Sherenden branch of the W.D.F.U. held its October meeting at Mrs Attwood's home. Mrs G. Mason presided. The highlight of the meeting was the donating of £23 by members to the W.D.F.U. bomber that the president said this selection. fund. The president said this splen-did amount exceeded her most sanguine expectations and warmly thanked members for their generous contributions.

Twenty-one packages of short-bread and biscuits for men on New Zealand minesweepers were also col-lected and Mrs Ensor volunteered to pack and dispatch these to the Navy League.

It was Mrs Ensor's lucky day as she won a hen and 10 chickens donated by Mrs Lowe and a most attractive tea cosy made by Mrs Martin and raffled for the funds. Mrs H. Beamish won a set of trolley covers made by Mrs Mason.

The boys from the district on active service are to be remembered at Christmas by a gift of sox and barley sugar from the division.

Seventeen dozen eggs were sent to the depot in Hastings by members during September.

It was decided to purchase tins of honey, these to be sent to families in England nominated by members.

DIVE BOMBER.—A Blackburn Skua dive bomber pulling out of a dive. It carries its bombs slung under the fuselage, launching them at the end of a steep dive on the target. These formidable attack machines are also used extensively by the Fleet Air Arm, which controls all aircraft carried on ships.

THE SPEARHEAD OF THE R.A.F. ATTACK.—These Bristol Blenheim medium bombers represent a magnificent achievement in aircraft design and are the pride of the R.A.F. They can carry their load of bombs nearly 2000 miles non-stop, and have a top speed of 300 miles an hour. Fast, and with great manœuvrability, they are more than a match for many of the enemy fighters.

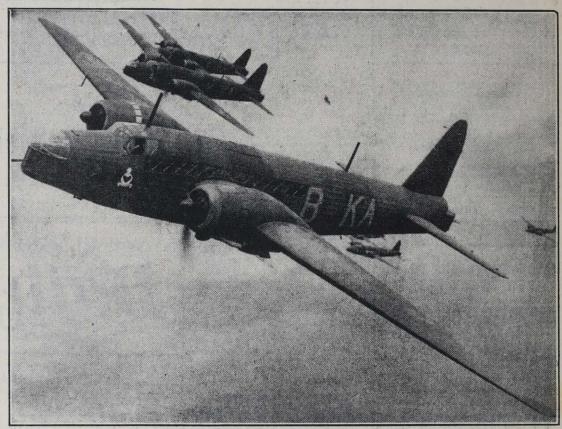

THE NEMESIS OF THE RAIDER.—The sleek lines of the Spitfire fighter are clearly shown in this picture as the machine goes into a roll. The fastest single-seat fighters in the world, these Spitfires are the terror of Nazi bombers. Note the undercarriage folded into the wings.

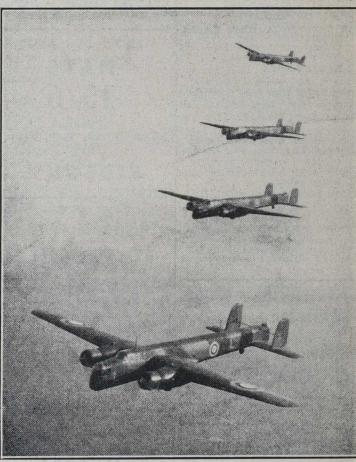

GUARDIAN OF THE SEAS.—
The magnificent Short Sunderland flying-boat, the military version of machines of the Centaurus type. Sunderlands are used extensively for convoy and patrol work and, although they operate exclusively at sea, are controlled by the R.A.F.

THE MEN IN THE MACHINES.—The pilot and the sergeantobserver of a British plane study the map while flying towards Germany. The information secured in earlier reconnaissances is now being used to the fullest advantage by our bomber pilots.

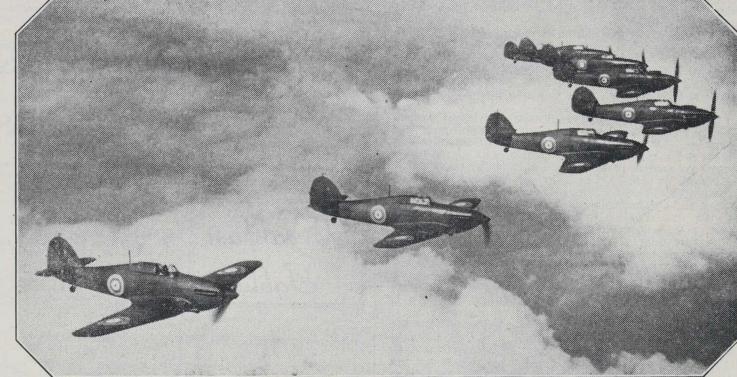

OFF TO GERMANY.—A flight of Vickers Wellington long-range heavy bombers of the type which regularly fly to bombard targets in Germany. It is one of the finest bombers in the world. The longest flight of the war (to Narvik and back) was made by members of a New Zealand squadron in a Wellington.

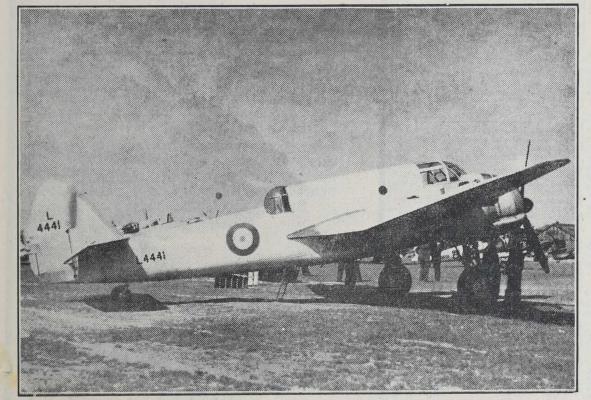

HEAVY BOMBARDMENT.—The aerial equivalent of heavy artillery are the giant Whitleys (seen above), Harrow, and other big bombers which now regularly carry tons of bombs to dump on targets in Germany. The Whitley has a speed of about 200 miles an hour and is ideal for night flying operations.

ANOTHER FINE ATTACKING MACHINE is the graceful Fairey Battle light-medium bomber. Machines of this type are used extensively for attacking troop concentrations and bombing targets within reasonable range of their base. They are very fast, and can give a good account of themselves against enemy fighters.

THE FIGHTERS THAT GUARD ENGLAND.—Hawker Hurricanes on patrol. These superb fighter machines are known to have reached 400 miles an hour, and, like the Spitfires, carry eight machine guns in the wings. Spitfires, Hurricanes, and Defiants are the best-known fighters, but there are many others.

THE "HUSH-HUSH" BOMBER.—Many details are still secret concerning the new Bristol Beaufort bomber, which can carry a crew of four and a heavy military load at 300 miles an hour. It follows the principles of the Blenheim, and can be turned out by mass production methods. Beauforts are also being built in Australia for the Poyal Australian Air Force and the For Fort Compand, R.A.F.

THE DAWN PATROL.—Pilots of a fighter squadron receiving last-minute instructions before taking off on an early patrol to intercent any enemy raiders that might be approaching.

FOR SPOTTING AND RECONAISSANCE.—Three Westland Lysander high-wing monoplanes stepped down in line astern in a flight over England. Designed for army co-operation and reconnaissance work, these excellent machines have a speed of about 230 miles an hour. The high wing allows uninterrupted vision, and, when necessary, detachable bomb racks can be fitted to the undercarriage.

GERMANY MOVES INTO THE BALKANS

With characteristic naivete, German headquarters to-day are busily explaining away the virtual occupation of the Rumanian oilfields by Nazi armed forces. Although in the present case the details show a certain originality, the basic strategy is precisely the same as that used in previous moves on the European chessboard, and particularly in the thrusts into Scandinavia and Holland. The reason for this new stroke, as stated blandly by the German authorities in Bucharest, is simply the necessity for saving the fields from the dastardly activities of British plotters; a few months ago the story was that the violation of Dutch neutrality was forced on a reluctant Germany by the imminent threat of an Anglo-French invasion of the Netherlands. The parallel is sufficiently plain to warrant the suspicion that Dr. Goebbels has run out of ideas. There is, of course, a sideline concerned with the reorganisation of Rumanian defences—the implication here being that a helpless Rumania has implored Germany for the assistance which Herr Hitler is so generously giving—but the underlying fact on which the whole flimsy fabrication of excuse is built is simply that Germany has at last moved into the Balkans. This development became inevitable when Rumania, after the collapse of France, renounced the British protective guarantee. All the subsequent drama of Rumanian politics has led to this culmination, and Rumania, it seems, must soon become yet another vassal of Nazism. Whether the fact that she is a willing vassal will make her servitude less bitter than the servitude of Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, France, Poland, and Czechoslovakia remains a matter of doubt.

The new situation in south-eastern Europe obviously opens up fresh possibilities in the general trend of the war. Above everything else there comes the thought that the German push towards the Black Sea, the Aegean, and the British trade routes through the Mediterranean confirms the growing belief that Hitler has abandoned hope of invading Great Britain. Simultaneously the belief that the next act in the drama of war will be staged in the Near East is strengthened.

The report that a number of Italian troops will join the Germans in Rumania is probably little more than a clumsy attempt to demonstrate once again the solidarity of the Axis. Italy not long ago announced to the world (which was not particularly impressed by the announcement) that the Balkan Peninsula constituted an Italian preserve, and her complaisance at the present time demonstrates her complete dependence on Germany. Mussolini once said that he would never permit the German absorption of Austria; to-day he watches impotently while Rumania passes under German domination.

Whatever efforts may be made by Germany, Italy, or Rumania herself to minimise the importance of the latest move, there is no escaping the fact that Germany is striving desperately not only to commandeer oil supplies, but also to achieve a position in which she can neutralise any British effort to safeguard the Eastern Mediterranean and protect the neutrality of Greece. It is becoming apparent that Italy alone is not prepared to undertake major operations either on the sea or in northern Africa, and it may be assumed quite reasonably that the much-publicised assault on Egypt is hanging fire until the Axis Powers feel themselves secure in the Balkans. Again, the virtual occupation of Rumania brings Germany into a useful corner of Europe from which to keep an eye on Russia. Access to the Black Sea for German U-boats and transports will be a major consideration for Russia, who must already be wondering how long she will be able to retain her policy of wait-and-see.

For Great Britain the thinly-disguised invasion of Rumania means yet another problem. On the question of how far German penetration in the Balkans will go depends to a certain extent the successful maintenance of the Empire's sea highway from Gibraltar to Alexandria and Port Said. If Germany succeeds in establishing a base on the Black Sea, the attitude of Turkey will become of vital importance to all the combatants, and the next stage of the manoeuvring in the Balkans may centre on the Bosporus and the Dardanelles. The position is sufficiently dangerous to inspire the wish that Great Britain will no longer leave the initiative to her enemies.

Excess Profits Bill Is Debated In House

Mr Nash Explains Purpose Of Measure

New Zealand was not a country where excess profits were likely to be made, he continued, and it would be a costly tax to collect.

Mr Hamilton went on to empha-ise the importance of the personnel of the proposed committee.

If the members of the committee had the confidence of the taxpayers that would meet the Bill fairly, he said, but if theorists were appointed who had not the taxpayers' confidence it might not make the Bill worth very much. The personnel of the committee would either create confidence of taxpayers in the operation of the Bill or a lot of fear in the minds of taxpayers.

Explaining the purpose of the Excess Profits Tax Bill when moving the second reading of that measure in the House to-night, the Minister of Finance (the Hon. W. Nash) said that no one should during the war period receive from his business or profession, because of the war or because of abnormal conditions arising from the war, any profits or amounts in excess of the amount reasonably expected.

That did not mean that persons were not expected to make profits during the war, but nobody ought to be allowed to make profits out of the war.

It might be said, stated Mr Nash, that a boot manufacturer making boots for the army must be expected to make profits from the war and that these profits should be taxed accordingly. But the war boot manufacturer left civil business to other manufacturers, with resultant increased profits to those concerned. Therefore justifiably and equitably all profits must come under the Excess Profits Tax provisions.

It might be said, stated Mr Nash, that the Government called for increased production from every-all profits must come under the Excess Profits Tax provisions.

It might also be said, added Mr Nash, that the Government called for increased production from everyone, but it had no intention of penalising those who worked harder to give that increase. Provision for New Industries

The Bill made adequate provision in every case for increased production and the setting up of new industries and also for increased capital put into businesses for the purious difficult to get a correct definition of what "excess profit" was so as not to catch the taxpayer unfairly. During the last war an attempt to levy an excess profits tax was so unsuccessful that it had to be abandoned after one year, said Mr Hamilton. He contended that the Bill left a great deal to the Committee that was to hear the appeals. New Zealand was not a country tal put into businesses for the pur-pose of increasing production.

It was because of the difficulty of defining "excess profits" that the Bill had been worded in the way it had, continued Mr Nash. The first principle in the measure was to de-termine the standard income. Having got that, they had to determine what was excess profit. The standard income should meet most cases, but no matter how careful and far-seeing legislators might be in writ-ing a law, it was impossible to be completely correct in determining what were the excess profits that were to be taxed.

The second principle was the averwhat were the excess profits that were to be taxed.

The second principle was the provision of the committee to be set up. It would probably be a committee of three and it would be allowed to take each taxpayer's particular case into account on appeal. It was expected, added the Minister, that 90 or 99 per cent. of the cases would be determined automatically by the Commissioner of Taxes, but there would be other cases, and where the taxpayer considered the amount for which he had been assessed by the Commissioner as excess profits to be unfair and unjust, that case would go to that committee, which could take everything into account in determining what was equitable and just.

committee, which could take everything into account in determining what was equitable and just.

The intention of the Government was to take from persons who made more than normal profits in war time some proportion of that amount and to put it into taxation revenue to meet in part the abnormal cost the country had to bear because of the war.

Clauses of the country had to bear about fair results.

Mr Hamilton had also stressed the point covering alternative methods of computing normal income, said Mr. Mason. A period of three years was a fair span to eliminate any extraordinary fluctuation. They had to guard against a system that would eliminate a chance of any excess a profit altogether. What was proposed in the Bill vas not unfair, and it was well thought out to bring about fair results.

The Excess Profits Tax, he said, applied to this year's income, namely income derived from April 1 last, and it would be levied on next year's assessment. It would become payable in February, 1942.

Operation of

Mr Nash gave several examples of the operation of the tax and in reply to Opposition interjections concerning the position of the farmer under the Bill he said that every farmer had had a chance of studying the measure and the principles underlying it. They would agree that the provisions of the Bill were as fair as it was possible to make them. No farmer would be called on to pay income tax if his income were below £500, and nobody would be able to talk about a tax placed on the shoulders of the poor work-Mr Nash gave several examples of on the shoulders of the poor work-

Impasse After | MANY NEW TYPES OF AIRCRAFT UNDER WAY

Fighters And Bombers From Germany Will Meet New R.A.F. Machines

Behind the fierce aerial combats which are now a daily affair in the skies over and round Britain, there is being waged just as keenly the silent warfare in the designers' offices as Germany strives to overtake Britain's lead in air-craft quality and the British designers concentrate on keeping a step ahead.

There seems to be general agreement among English aviation writers that both countries are busy with designs for new types of aircraft, and new British bombers and fighters were announced the other day from London.

Recently the air correspondent of the "Sunday Times, after mentioning that the new Heinkel 113 fighter, designed to combat the superiority of the Hurricanes and Spitfires, did not appear to have come near to achieving this object, remarked that within the next few months it was to be expected that new German types would be seen in service.

More than a year had elapsed since any striking advance in technical equipment had gone into the squadrons of the Luftwaffe, but it was known that German designers had not Already there had been one report of a new Focke-Wulf. This was a radically new type of single-seater fighter with the engine placed behind the pilot, which gave him a wonderful view, but was left unprotected in front. The top speed is reported to be 368 miles an hour and the armament four machine-guns and two cannon. This machine, says are made to the season of the fighter, says the "Sunday Times" correspondent, is not the only new fighter Germany is known to have in production. Drient Heinkel, always an original thinker, has been working for some time on a two-seater, two-motor, all-wing, long-range fighter and a new four-motor bomber. The Dornier combine also have a new four-motor.

Next day the same flying heat and two cannon. This machine, says the writer, is known to have been beset with one or two serious 'teething troubles," and he thinks it need not cause any apprehension to our fighter pilots.

C. G. Grey, in the "Sphere," also has something to say about this machine and links reports of its production with the several raids made by the R.A.F. on the Focke-Wulf factory in Bremen. He describes the new 'plane as a very fast little push er monoplane—an aeroplane which has the engine behind it driving a propeller airscrew, which is much more efficient than the tractor screw now in universal use.

Designed in Holland

The machine, he says, was designed in Holland, will be fitted with one of the new Daimler-Benz 1500 one of the new Daimler-Benz 1500 horsepower motors, and carry anything up to about eight guns arranged round the "pulpit" in which the pilot will sit in front of the motor. He thinks it may be dangerous, but predicts that when it appears it will meet newer types of British fighters and so will not be likely to repeat in this war the success which the Fokker monoplane won over British machines when it first came on the scene in the last

Professor Messerschmitt has designed the Me 115 to replace his not-too-successful Me 109. Its success seems doubtful, as it is believed to seems doubtful, as it is believed to have a bigger engine and a smaller One-Bomb Bomber

Finally, the Henschel company now making Dornier 215s under li now making Dornier 215s under licence, is known to have a new standard type of long-range two-motor dive bomber, which is believed to have been in action already. It is said to be designed to carry only one big bomb, weighing about a ton, with the obvious policy of chancing everything on one direct hit—a bomb which admits of no argument. This commentator concludes his This commentator concludes his survey by saying that, though it would be foolish for British people to shut their eyes to these advances in German technical equipment, the

TWO SUBMARINES AMERICANS ADVISED TO EVACUATE FAR EAST

Immediate Action Urged While Shipping Facilities Are Available

(United Press Association—Copyright.) (Received October 9, 1.10 a.m.)

SHANGHAI, Oct. 8. The American State Department has instructed its Far Eastern Consulates to advise all Americans to evacuate the Japanese Empire, including Korea, Manchukuo, China, and Hong Kong, as soon as possible

The instructions said that Americans should be advised to return to the United States immediately while facilities are available, because it is not known how long they will remain available. Hereafter the Far East will be placed on the same basis as Europe as far as Americans' travel and residence are concerned.

LONDON, Oct. 7.

The Japanese Foreign Minister (Mr Matsuoka) said at Tokyo to-day that it was impossible at present to state definitely what the repercussions of Japan's alliance with the Axis Powers would be, but that Japan must make the necessary preparations in anticipation that the worst was to come.

He added that the conclusion of the pact did not mean that Japan would immediately enter war with any non-signatory nation, and emphasised that Japan was only "too eager" to maintain friendly relations with all nations which were willing to co-operate.

A request that the Minister of National Service (the Hon, R. Semple) should make a statement that producers, primary or secondary, could be assured that the organisations available for appeals would receive some direction on the question of men necessary for production being called up for service was made in an urgent question by Mr J. N. Massey

Replying, Mr Semple said that when the quotas were fixed for the number of men to be called up for Territorial training in the recent ballot, due allowance was made for the fact that a number of men would require to have their training postponed because of the essential nature of their

(1) Help for the British people;
(2) comforts for New Zealand troops; (3) the rehabilitation of New Zealand soldiers.

In fixing the district quotas more liberal allowances were made in rural areas as it was fully appreciated that at this time of the year it would be very difficult to release large numbers of men from primary industries, said Mr Semple.

industries, said Mr Semple.

The manpower committees were fully aware of the necessity for maintaining production and essential services and all classes of men employed in essential industries were considered individually by the committees. Where it appeared that production was likely to be adversely affected, territorial training was postponed until a more suitable time.

Mr Fraser stated that the Government in no way underestimated the importance of the freezing works in the Dominion's economy, and at a conference of the Meat works in the Dominion's economy, and at a conference of the Meat Board and the Freezing Works Association it was agreed that the protection of these undertakings should be assumed by the managements themselves who were to appoint watchmen equipped with batons and whistles.

The Government had under immediate consideration regulations to ensure that all necessary precautions were of erved by the managements at freezing works and other important places. The regulations would give watchmen certain additional powers as to detention and search, etc, which would assist these men in the more efficient protection of property.

Mr Semple said in reply that such men as were mentioned in the quesmen as were mentioned in the question were not being conscripted for service overseas, but a number may be drawn in the ballot for territorial service. The number, however, would not be great, and each case would be dealt with in such a way as to enable the men to give the country full benefit of their knowledge and experience. NAPIER L.R.C. MEETS

The monthly meeting of the Napier Labour Representation Committee was held under the chairmanship of Mr C. W. Nash. The topics opened for discussion were varied and interesting, and the general tone of the meeting was pleasantly in-

As at a previous meetin, the appointment of J.P.'s for the Napier area were discussed, and it was decided to recommend, without regard to politics, the names of a number of residents who have been known in the past for their human sympathies and public spiritedness.

Concerning the possibility of Labour deciding to contest the local body elections, it was felt that in Napier there existed considerable cope for improvement in civic ad-ninistration. It was, therefore, decided to formulate plans relative thereto and to define at a later date the attitude of the L.R.C. towards the whole matter.

Medical Examinations

Queries by delegates as to the looseness or otherwise of methods of medical examination of army reruits, evoked discussion in the light of recent exposures in England where large fees were paid to doctors to fail conscripts. It was felt that no means should be left open in New Zealand for wealthy individuals to escape their obligations in a like manner.

Delegates vigorously condemned the attitude in New Zealand of individuals who were making it their ousiness under cover of war stresses to promote agitation for the abolition of the 40-hour week. The policy of the authorities in permitting the extension of hours in those industries directly connected with war production, and then only if the de-mand could not be coped with, was thoroughly endorsed by the meeting.

Ulterior Motive Feared

The opinion was that the propaganda had an ulterior motive, and was an insidious attempt to curtail as social benefit so hardly won by the woking community. Further, that it should be combated with the utmost vigour and power of all workers' organisations.

It was decided to urge upon the Minister concerned the necessity for the erection of further Govern-ment houses in the district as housing accommodation was still over-

WOMEN KILLED

Sisters Of Havelock North Resident

London Air Raid JUDGMENT GIVEN BY DEFAULT

> Civil Cases Heard At Hastings

Judgment for plaintiffs in default of defendants was entered by Mr J. Miller, S.M., in the following debt cases dealt with by him in the Mag-North Resident

Two sisters of Mr R. Sunderland, Undercliff. Havelock North, Misses Joan and Ruth Sunderland, were killed during a bombing raid on London, according to advice received this week.

The sisters were residing in a flat in Warwick Square, and it is believed that they were sleeping in a basement at the time of the raid. A cabled report states that a bomb scored a direct hit and all the occupants of the basement were killed.

The Misses Sunderland had been engaged in canteen work and a friend, Miss Shelagh Fraser, who was killed with them, was an A.R.P. worker. The sisters visited Hawke's Bay several years ago and were well known in this province.

Miller, S.M., in the following debt cases dealt with by him in the Magistrate's Court, Hastings, yesterday morning:—E. C. McDermott v. C. G. Stowe, £2/7/-, costs £1/17/6; A. Robertson v. E. Temperton, 9/4, costs 10/-; G. W. Grainger v. R. S. Foote, 3/-, costs 17/-; Gill and Fenton Ltd. v. H. H. Timms, £6/11/-, costs £1/10/6; The H.B. Machinery Exchange Ltd. v. H. H. Timms, £6/11/-, costs £1/13/6; May and Adams v. J. B. Lindsay, £6/1/6, costs £1/14/6; H. B. Poppelwell and Co. v. Buster Boyle, £5/16/-, costs £1/10/6.

Judgment summonses: H. C. Cullenday, £6/1/6, forthwith, in default 15 days' imprisonment; G. F. Sidwell to pay H.B. "Daily Mail" Ltd. £21/10/6 forthwith, in default 23 days' imprisonment.

BUSY SEASON AT His Supporters KARAMU

LANG BIAN'S STOCK SHOW QUALITY

High-Class Mares For This Hastings Stud

By "Moturoa"

In common with all other breeding establishments in Hawke's Bay the Karamu Stud presents a very busy appearance at present. The prestige of this Stud has won far renown and some of the best class mares from both Islands are being mated with the imported sires Bulandshar and Lang Bian.

Bulandshar, who is being kept well in the limelight by that great miler High Caste, seems to improve in appearance with every year and there is no doubt that he has done well since coming to the Karamu in appearance with every year and there is no doubt that he has done well since coming to the Karamu Stud. It is interesting to note that High Caste's dam, The Begum, is to be again mated with the Blandford horse.

While Lang Bian is by no means yet at his best, I was impressed last week-end with his improvement since becoming acclimatised. Lang Bian is a bigger horse than one would appreciate at first glance and, now that he is building up, he is likely to grow into a commanding type.

There is no mistaking the in-

There is no mistaking the in-breeding to the great St. Simon line in this French-bred horse. He has the fine bone and the temperament of that famous sire, and his head is the replica of that of the Galopin horse. Lang Bian is being mated with some good staying lines this season, one of his consorts being a sister to the dam of Cuddle and Padishah

The first crop of the Lang Bians sired in New Zealand have made their appearance this season and there is a particularly nice filly at Karamu from Lucinette, the dam of Flammarion and Kobi. This youngster is a racy type.

Another attractive filly is by Bulandshar from Hathor. She is thus a sister to Siyana and a half-sister to Hest, Shu and Hagen. Like her relatives, the filly is very thick-set and she promises to be big.

Legality, the dam of Bambury, Whirling and Marshall Hall, has a neat bay colt by Bulandshar, while the full-sisters Caen and Killara (Arausio-Hoy) have a bay colt and a bay filly respectively to Bulandshar. One of the nicest of the Blandford horse's foals this season is a fine, well-grown bay filly from

RANGITIKEI SPRING MEETING

Attractive Programme For Bulls

week were widely popular. Master Cyklon just misses being good class but the Hastings trainer should not find it hard to place him in the course of the next few weeks. The Rangitikei Racing Club's spring meeting is always a popular gathering with Hawke's Bay owners and trainers as it follows Wellington and provides a final outing before Riccarton and Napier Park, being held at Bulls on November 2.

The main event is the McKelvie Memorial Handicap, of £1200, 1½ miles, while the Clifton Handicap, of £160, 6 furlongs, caters for the open sprinters. The other races on the programme are the Trial Stakes (of £90, 5 furlongs, two-year-olds and upwards); Sandon Hack Hurdles (of £140, 1½ miles); Rangitikei Plate (of £140, 1½ miles); Rangitikei Plate (of £140, 1½ miles); Rangitikei Plate (of £125, 7 furlongs); and the Farewell Hack Handicap (of £125, 6 furlongs).

The Rangitikei Racing Club is again giving a £20 trophy for the most successful trainer at the spring and autumn meetings, and the attention of provincial owners and trainers is drawn to the fact that nominations for all events close with the secretary, Mr E. V. Wilson, Bulls, on Tuesday next. October 15.

Sir Beau appears to be in great order for the G.N. Guineas on Saturday, when Bert Morris will be his pilot. He galloped a mile the reverse way at Wanganui on Saturday morning and, though he lugged out badly on the sharp bend coming into the straight, the effort was emisently estisfactory. Sir Beau should United Press Association—Copyright. SYDNEY, Oct. 8. SYDNEY, Oct. 8.

Commenting on the result of the Metropolitan Handicap, the "Daily Telegraph" says: "Beau Vite's win was the most spectacular high-weight performance since Laddie Blue scored with 10.7 in 1921, Making light of his welter-weight, Beau Vite dashed away at the start as though he was in a sprint race, and won in runaway fashion."

The Sydney "Morning Herald" says: "New Zealand-bred horses senently satisfactory. Sir Beau should give the Auckland critics something

The Sydney "Morning Herald" says: "New Zealand-bred horses secured a notable triumph in winning the Epsom-Metropolitan double. Following Beau Vite's win, his owner, Mr. Stewart, refused an offer of 10,000 guineas for the horse."

Beau Vite is now clear-cut favourite for the Melbourne Cup.

The following are the acceptors for the main event at Randwick tomorrow, the Lambourn is improved by his race at Hastings last week and he will strip a better colt all round at Opaki next week. The mile Masterton Handicap should shed some light on his chances in the classic and w.f.a. events at Trentham and Riccarton.

The Ring has been entered for the Masterton Handicap next week and much interest will be taken in the form of our N.Z. Cup aspirant. The Ring's forward showing on Saturday suggests that she will be hard to beat with her 7.13 and it will be remembered that this event paved the way for Arctic King's N.Z. Cup two years ago. In this race last year High Caste beat Beau Vite by a length and a half.

LANG BIAN is a particularly handsome horse and closely resembles his famous sire. He was a good winner in the best class races in France.

MASSINE, Lang Blan's sire, was a high-class winner in France, and also beat the Derby winner Papyrus in the Ascot Gold Cup. He has twice headed the winning sires' list in France and he introduces a fresh strain of St. Simon blood through that great galloper La Camargo.

FOREST TRACK'S pedigree is well known. Not only is she by that great brood mare sire Tracery, but her third dam is that wonderful mare La Fleche, the third dam of Beau Pere and Gay Shield, two of the most successful sires in New Zealand in modern times.
