NEW DEAL ATTACKED

Germany is showing an interest in the Vlach minority in Yugoslavia as part of a campaign of disruption from within. It is reliably reported that the German Minister at Bucharest is urging the Rumanian Government to sponsor the claims of the Vlachs for special treatment.

The origin of this scattered minority is uncertain; they were once considered Greek, but lately they have been encouraged to regard themselves as Rumanians.

The Axis is rapidly extending its grip on Rumanian communications. Germany is reported to have demanded the right to control all roads in Rumanian; and the Italians are forming a company to provide fresh tonnage for the transport of oil on the Danube.

"The Times" Balkans correspondent says that refugees confirm reports of the continued arrival of large reinforcements of Russian troops, including detachments of queer looking tanks about which the Soviet troops are boasting. "These will give our German friends some thing to think about."

thing to think about."

The Bucharest correspondent of the Associated Press says that German circles state that 150 bombers and fighters had arrived in Rumania and that a further 150 were expected to-day, with 800 pilots, mechanics, and instructors.

The Balkans correspondent of "The Times" says that, according to authoritative Berlin sources, the Garmans intend to continue their air attack. against Britain and maintain a fair proportion of their armed forces in Western Europe in order to keep Britain in check while the Axis is preparing large-scale operations in the Near East aimed at breaking the blockade. This impliss a drive across the Balkans and Asia Minor to the Persian Gulf.

The occupation of Bulgaria would, sooner or later, be followed by an ultimatum to Turkey to permit the passage of troops to the Near East or face the consequences.

The pilot immediately turned back towards the hospital ship, which was still on its former course not thought of the message: "Ship's floats below us." The Sunderland then circled the wreckage and dived two or three times to direct the ship's attention to them.

Conscription headquarters in Washington, when they closed at 10 p.m., estimated that 14,000,000 men had registered to-day in the nation's first peacetime military conscription. This figure is 2,000,000 below the preliminary estimate, but the total is expected to increase by more than 1,000,000 when returns are stabulated from hospitals, colleges, and other institutions where special registrations are permitted.

Nation-wide reports showed that the registration was carried out without even a suggestion of a draft riot. This contrasts sharply with the position in 1917 when, even in wartime, it was necessary in various parts of the country forcibly to quell demonstrations.

CAIRO, Oct. 17. The British War Minister (the Hon. Anthony Eden) in interviews with King Farouk and the Egyptian Defence Ministers, expressed appreciation of Egypt's support.

M: Eden is also having confer nces with the British commander, General Sir Archibald Wavell, and other military leaders.

Mr Eden, who was in Egypt for 48 hours before his arrival was announced, received a great welcome. Arabic papers feature his visit, which has resulted in a flood of rumours concerning coming events in the eastern Mediterranean. Optimism is rapidly spreading, especi-ally in view of the failure of Ger-many's air attacks against Britain.

Unusual Attraction At The Show

Show patrons will have the opportunity of seeing the petrified body of a young aboriginal woman which a young aboriginal woman which was found in the limestone caves near Narracoorte, South Australia, and is in a perfect state of preservation. So well is it preserved that the wounds which originally caused death are still plainly visible. On the right side of the head is a depressed fracture which looks as though it had been caused by a blunt instrument. The left leg is swollen as though it had been broken below the knee.

Medical men are of the opinion that the girl's leg was broken and that, in accordance with pre-historic custom, the tribe killed the girl to avoid carrying her with them in their wanderings. The petrification of the bodies of animals and human beings is not uncommon, but it is take the salute in correct soldierly fashion. COMEDY-DRAMA FROM REAL-LIFE

A Window In London' Fine Story

A story set in London, telling of the lives of its everyday ordinary people, "A Window in London," now showing at the State Theatre, Hastings, has a Thames-side setting for the background of its real-life adventures.

The story tells of a young engineer (played by Michael Redgrave) who works by day on the Waterloo Bridge construction project; of his wife (Patricia Roc) who is night telephonist at a block of flats; of Zoltini (Paul Lukas) an illusionist, and his wife Vivien (Sally Gray). In a strange manner the lives of these four people cross and the rethese four people cross and the resulting comedy and drama makes for unusually fine entertainment.

The excitement in "A Window in London" opens when Michael Redgrave in the train on his way to work, sees what he believes to be a man stabbing a woman on the balcony of a block of London flats. Investigation reveals that it was only opens up a chain of strange incidents which bring Redgrave into London high society for a few hours, involve him and his wife in a murder, and culminate in as unusual and intriguing a climax as has ever been filmed.

As the young workman Michael Redgrave contributes one of those polished, natural performances which audiences have come to expect from him; Sally Gray, Paul Lukas, and a comparative new-comer, Patricia Roc, are each and all something rather more than adequate in support. Direction is particularly good.

"SANDY IS A LADY," GAY COMEDY

With Hilarious Story "Kid Nightingale"

A quintet of comedians appear in support of Baby Sandy in the two-vear-old star's first starring picture, "Sandy is a Lady," which is now at the Cosy Theatre, Hastings.

The five funmakers are Mischa Auer, Eugene Pallette, Billy Gilbert, Edgar Kennedy and Fritz Feld, any one of whom has heretofore been considered sufficient for a comedy of ordinary proportions.

considered sufficient for a comedy of ordinary proportions.

Auer has one of the funniest roles of his career, an inventor. Eugene Pallette's role is an erratic, choleric, irrascible, construction contractor, devilled by Mischa, who wants to demonstrate the inventions. Gilbert is cast as a steel contractor, for proposed to the contractor of the contrac tions. Gilbert is cast as a steel construction foreman out of a job and willing to help Mischa get an audience with Pallette. Kennedy comes into the picture as a policeman whose constant assignment seems to be to look for Baby Sandy, the star. Butch and Buddy, the lovable brats from "The Under-Pup," Nan Grey and Tom Brown complete the cast. Something absolutely new in the line of comedies about the prizering is "Kid Nightingale," featuring John Paync and Jane Wyman, which is the second feature. The picture should win some sort of award for originality because the "hero" loses the fight and never does become a

ALICE FAYE IN FINE ROMANCE

'Little Old New York" Lives Again

The boisterous New York of the good old days, when cows roamed Fifth Avenue and a barmaid—or a lady—could win a man like Robert Fulton, are brought vividly to life on the screen in "Little Old New York," which is now screening at the State Theatre, Napier, with Alice Faye, Fred MacMurray, Richard Greene and Brenda Joyce head-ing a splendid cast. This robust, romantic drama casts Alice Faye in her most colourful role as the fiery belle of the water-front who fell headlong for handsome Robert Fulton—and went after nim, while the whole brawling water front cheered her on. Mac-Murray is seen as the burly ship-builder engaged to build the Cler-mont, after Fulton's model for the first steamboat; Greene is seen as the dashing inventor himself; and blonde Brenda Joyce has the role of the lovely girl who loved him, helped him to attain his dream in the face of ridicule, and who later became his wife. Others prominently featured in the cast are Andy Devine Henry Staphenson and Henry Stephenson and Fritz Feld.

Fritz Feld.

Directed by Henry King, "Little Old New York" offers the most spectacular production of the producer-director combination which gave to the screen such unforgettable films as "In Old Chicago," "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Stanley and Livingstone" and "Jesse James."

Before the actual filming of "Little Old New York" began, Director King his assistant, Bob Webb, and a camera crew spent a few weeks in the East photographing old New York backgrounds and scenes along the Hudson for the production. They also did a vast amount of research on the history of the town and the career of Robert Fulton.

'TOO MANY HUSBANDS' A PROBLEM

Jean Arthur In A Bright Comedy

"Too Many Husbands" can prove omewhat troublesome, and Jean Arthur discovers that fact in the Columbia comedy, which is now showing at the Regent Theatre, Napier, with Fred MacMurray and Melvyn Douglas also starred. Based upon a W. Somerset Maugham stage success, the madcap new production has been hailed as an hilariously witty melee of men, mar-riage and morals.

Briefly, the story of "Too Many Husbands" is founded upon three logical items: Jean is married to reckless Fred, who is reported dead at sea. Jean marries the more stable Melvyn, Fred's best friend. Fred eturns home.

And from those original propositions producer - director Wesley Ruggles is said to have developed one of the most original, one of the most uproarious screen comedies of his or any other season Fred's return home, after a year spent on a desert island, is the first of a constant series of hectic incidents. Both Jean and Melvyn stammer through their explana-tions, while Fred refuses to listen He wants to be alone with his wife When the situation finally is explained to him, the two husbands it down in a "man to man" conference to work out a solution, and wind up boyishly jumping over chairs to prove who is the "better

SWASTIKA IN THE SOUTH

A delightful fantasy, with the invisible inmprint of the ingenious Goebbels imagination all over it, came to light during the week. This was the report from Stockholm that the German Propaganda Minister in Norway is claiming the whole of the Antarctic, including the South Pole, for Norway. As Norway for the time being means Germany, the implication behind this piece of impudence (which has at least the charm belonging to all fairy-tales) is that Germany wants the entire globe as "lebensraum."

On its face value, the story will beguile no one. It will serve only to remind Norwegians in particular and the world in general that it was not a German-Nazi or otherwisewho won the distinction of narrowly beating Captain Scott to the South Pole in 1912.

But in spite of the unconscious absurdities into which Dr. Goebbels and his understudies so often stumble, there are certain basic ideas under the nonsense which are rather more interesting.

The principal point concerns both New Zealand and

In these remote countries it is fatally easy to slip into a sense of security based on the belief that the South Pacific is so far removed from the present theatres of war that Germany, with as much on her hands as she can deal with in Europe and Africa, is too preoccupied to think over-much of the British Imperial outposts. But is this the case?

Ever since Nazism became a major force in international politics in 1933, Germany has been brooding over the loss of her one-time colonies. Those colonies, which were collected between 1871 and 1914, were more of a liability than anything else to the German Empire, but they served to give her an excuse to pose as a World Power, and, incidentally, to put her into a position where she might establish bases for the war that was to end the British Empire. But things went wrong, and the war came too soon. One after the other the colonies were lost, and when Hitler became Chancellor of the German Reich there was not an inch of territory overseas on which to hang the tawdry trappings of a third-rate imperialism.

But Hitler was not the man to forget the slices of Africa, the Pacific Islands, and the station in China which the Kaiser had once referred to (in hopeful emulation of Queen Victoria) as the brightest jewel in the Imperial Crown. And so began that curious blend of whine and bluster which seems to be a German weakness. All this was harmless enough, but the Nazis did not stop there. In South-west Africa, in Tanganyika, in New Guinea, and even in Samoa they commenced a campaign of insidious propaganda. With characteristic lack of scruple, they used school teachers, missionaries, and similar unlikely (and therefore less suspicious) material in establishing their secret organisations. This sort of thing brought the subtle poison of Nazism to the doors of South Africa, Australia, and New Zealand, and one of the first operations on the outbreak of war in September, 1939, was a general tidy-up by the British. Dominions. But if anyone believes that this was the end of German activity in the remoter parts of the British Empire, he has no knowledge of German psychology.

One of the obsessions of the German mentality is the love of working to a plan. For this reason it is safe to assume that somewhere not far from Unter den Linden a campaign relating to the Dominions and colonies, the protectorates and mandated territories of the British Empire is neatly pigeonholed for future reference. At the moment the subjugation of first, Great Britain, and secondly, the United States, is the major worry in the German mind, but after that problem is solved—assuming that solution ever comes within the bounds of possibility—the rest of the world would be mopped up without difficulty.

This is no time for any corner of the earth to feel secure. The swastika has long arms, and it forgets nothing-not even the South Pole.

SCHOOL DEVOTIONAL EXERCISES

The Wellington Education Board is not setting a very good example in resolving to defy the law and introduce devotional exercises which are contrary to the Education Act.

Many persons may be of the opinion that it is desirable that school children should be made to recite the Lord's Prayer as a preliminary to entering upon the school routine. It might even be argued that the children would then be able to teach it to their parents. But the practice is bound to raise controversial issues and lead to an exhibition of feeling that will be anything but devotional

Periodically the old controversy over religious instruction in State schools flares up, causing a parade of denominational differences, and a case is promptly argued for State aid to denominational schools. The Bible in Schools issue severely prejudiced the prospects of the Massey Government at the General Election of 1914, and since then there has been little disposition to tamper with the principle laid down in the Education Act of 1877, which provides for "free, compulsory and secular" education.

The weakness of the Wellington Education Board's attitude is that if any head teacher chooses to ignore the board's instruction, he would be within the law, and the board could not compel him to do

We identify Cattle, Sheep, Pigs, either alive or dead. We are recognised by London Importers. Marks quite plain. R. U. LISTENING.

"Well, this is the very brand we want," said Mr Hume, and he meant it. For all Herd Testing Associations are now using it for obtaining records. It has no equal. To-day it is used all over this Dominion. It is a silent salesman. A child can use it.

Now, these markings are really worth noting: Herd Number, Registered Design and Birth Date, Right Ear; Milk Yield Test and Lactation Period, in the Left Ear. Altogether it is the only up-to-date machine actually in general use to-day. There is no machine of equal value to-day because it has never failed, but tells the truth and has helped many an honest man to success. Herd Testing records are proofs. Herd Testing records are proofs.

Our beef and mutton exporters can easily save thousands of pounds by established facts of identification produced by our brands, which prove ownership. Our Hammer Head System of marking is adopted by the Pig Breeders, after years of patience and consistently experimenting. They are using it now all over

No arguments are necessary—all were exploded 15 years ago, when the One-Eye Needle did the job truly and well, then and ever since.

Our aim is to satisfy at all cost.

Tradition Behind The Hawke's Bay Show

Review Of The Society's History And Story Of Waikoko

For more than three-quarters of a century, the Hawke's Bay Agricultural and Pastoral Society's Spring Show has been the biggest event of the year in the province, and for many years it has been recognised as one of the most important displays of its kind in the Dominion.

The continued success of the show is a tribute to the progressive policy of the officials who are responsible for its organisation. There is no other event in the province which caters for so wide a variety of interests. In 1863, when the first show was held, it was intended primarily for the farmer; since that date, however, it has expanded into a comprehensive two days' carnival which holds equal attraction for the town and country dweller.

which the whole province may be proud.

Grading and planting of the new property were well in hand when war broke out in 1914, and the intended move to Tomoana was delayed for several years.

to keep the show running smoothly. To him must go much of the credit for the precision with which, year after year and show after show, events move with a minimum of

Business as Usual

This has not been an easy year for the society, but there has been no faltering in the resolve to make the 1940 Soring Show a memorable one. Setbacks have been encount-ered, and more than usual difficul-ties have had to be overcome; nevertheless, the high standard of quality has been maintained, and next Wednesday and Thursday will be days of entertainment for everyone.

ically-minded the usual interesting displays of the latest vehicles and machinery will be on view; for young and old, "tin pan alley," the show's popular amusement corner, will again be packed with raucous sideshowmen, while for everyone at any hour there will be some item which "must not be missed." The Grand Parade, the horse jumping the conferred on the province this time, no slackening in the preparations has been permitted.

The show is, therefore, still to be considered the main objective for all who can possibly attend. At no other time in the year can two such days of enjoyment be secured and in return for its efforts the A and P. Society deserves the support of the entire province.

Behind the society's 1940 show, to be held on Wednesday and Thursday, October 23 and 24, there is a story of constant progress and expansion to meet the growing needs of the province.

pansion to meet the growing needs of the province.

The first show was held on a Havelock North property, and very small it must have seemed in comparison with the programme now staged each year at Tomoana.

For a number of years after its inception the show was moved from place to place, each year growing in size and importance. Its most significant moves forward came when the Hawke's Bay Jockey Club's racecourse was used as a semi-permanent site, and when, in 1911, the present Tomoana property was purchased from Nelson's (N.Z.) Ltd.

At Tomoana extensive preparations of the province of the province.

Its most the charm of Waikoko Gardens. For those privileged to wander through the gardens, cut off from the rest of the showgrounds by the lake of "smooth waters" which the Maori name interprets, to wander along the paths and down the byways, out of the sunshine and into the shade of some secluded corner, "Waikoko" means moments of charm and beauty. The old home-treed itself, which has seen so much At Tomoana extensive preparations for transforming the grounds into their present state were soon instituted. To-day it is a site of which the whole province may be ing touch to the old-world appeal of the late 1860's, provides the finishing touch to the old-world appeal of the late 1860's, provides the finishing touch to the old-world appeal of the late 1860's appeal of the late layed for several years.

In 1925 this move was finally accomplished, and to the original property the society in 1934 added the beautiful Waikoko gardens and homestead, by purchase from the estate of the late Mr William Nelligibure.

Swan on a duck may be tempted in shore, and where, from the grassy banks under the shade of the willows, the rippling play of the fountains and the activities of the fish population can be watched at leisure.

Homestead and Restaurant

A history in itself is the story of the homestead, which now serves as a restaurant for the society's members on Show days.

The late Mr Robert Wellwood, the first Mayor of Hastings, built the original house, the southwest portion of the present building, on land the received as a stiff from the late. he received as a gift from the late Mr Thomas Tanner by dint of ploughing for him 1000 acres of land. He called the house and the 200 acres so acquired Maxwell

New Zealand's first century as a British country.

No description of the society's activities would be complete without some reference to the work of its energetic and enthusiastic secretary, Mr A. M. Retemeyer.

Mr Retemeyer's association with the society dates from 1901, and since 1917 he has been its secretary. He took over the position at a particularly difficult time in the last years of the war, and then, as now, his efforts in no small measure assisted the society in its endeavours for still better shows.

More than anyone else, Mr Retemeyer knows all the countless details of organisation to be perfected from year to year, and the numberless problems which must be faced to keep the show running smoothly.

In the "good old days" of not so very long ago, Waikoko must many times have echoed to the laughter of its guests, for in true colonial style the homestead was frequently the scene of tennis parties and similar entertainments, its hospitality being renowned, it is appropriate, as Mr Nelson, a Maori scholar, chose the property's present name, whose the property's present name, those the property's present name, those, which as has been mentitioned, means "smooth waters" by this time the name "smooth waters" by as Mr N lar entertainments, its hospitality being renowned. It is appropriate and fitting that a homestead which after year and show after show, events move with a minimum of interruption.

Almost before the current show is over the work of preparing for next year's fixture must commence, and Mr Retemeyer's wide experience in this type of organisation plays an important part in this preliminary work.

and fitting that a homestead which once gave pleasure to so many people should continue to do so.

If ever a history of Hawke's Bay is written to cover every incident in its colourful past, the story of Waikoko homestead and its gardens and of the growth of the society to which they now belong, must form an important part of the tale.

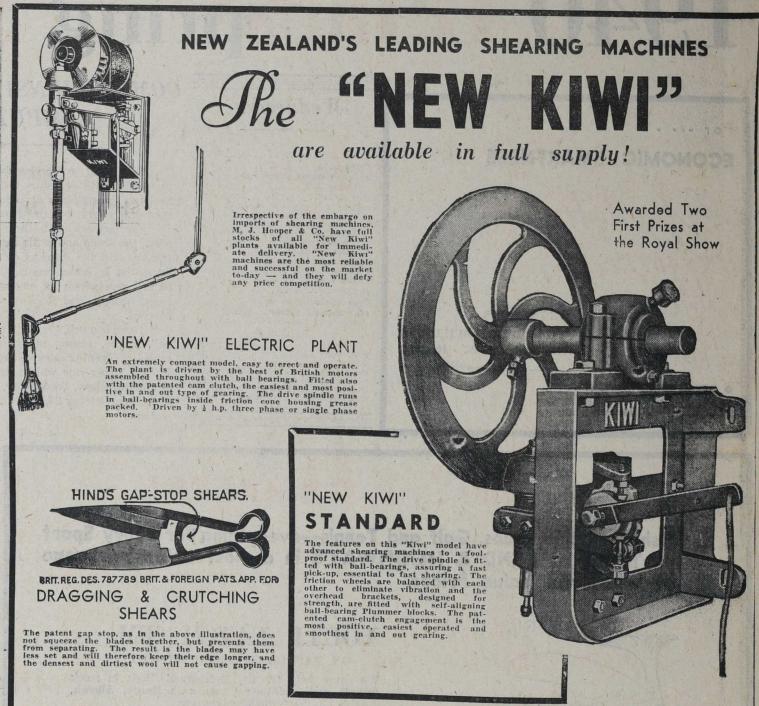

Final Word on the Show

For a final word about this year's Spring Show, it may be reiterated that no effort has been spared to make the event worthy of Centennial year In 1935 the Hawke's Bay societ had the honour of holding the Roya Show, when the then Governor-Gen eral opened the programme. The year's show might again have been a Royal Show had not outside ci of entertainment for everyone.

COMPREHENSIVE RANGE OF COMPETITIONS

The usual comprehensive range of competitions is provided in the schedule for the Hawke's Bay A. and P. Society's Spring Show at Tomoana this year, and once again the event offers something to interest everyone.

For farmers, with their increased production drive in mind, the sheep and cattle classes will hold particular attraction, as will the displays of farm implements. For those interested in horse events, the jumping competitions have earned recognition as among the foremost in their class. Dogs, poultry, and stock of every description are similarly covered.

There is much, too, to interest townspeople in the produce hall, where, among many other interesting exhibits, the school children's classes will be displayed.

On either side will be found the programmes for each day of the show, Wednesday, October 23, and People's Day, Thursday, October 24, with the judging times for the various sections

NAPIER STATE HOUSES: SUITABLE LAND WANTED

Sections Available At Marewa Would Be Expensive, Says Minister

The difficulty of obtaining suitable land for State housing purposes in Napier was referred to last night by the Minister of Housing (the Hon. H. T. Armstrong) who has been inspecting a number of likely localities in the town.

"The only practicable areas are those in the suburb of Marewa," said Mr Armstrong, "but this land is quite undeveloped and the erection of buildings entails heavy expenditure in providing roads, sewerage and all the amenities of a modern town.

"Added to the first cost of purchasing the land from the Napier Harbour Board, this extraordinary expenditure makes the sections probably the dearest of their kind in New Zealand."

"If £200 or so has to be expended for each section the capital cost is increased and consequently the rent paid by the tenant is higher," contained Mr. Amerikana.

There was a greater demand for tinued Mr Armstrong.

"Even if the Marewa sections built on had not yet been decided, but the question would come before the Assessment Court next month.

There was some land available on the hills, he continued, but it was felt that the development of these areas could well be left to private enterprise. The sections were mainly suitable for taking the more expensive type of residence.

Dealing with the demand for State houses, Mr Armstrong said that more applications had been received from Hastings than from Nature 1 the question would come before the Assessment Court next month.

Auckland had been allocated one-third of all the State houses in New Zealand, mainly because there was ample suitable land and a sufficiency of skilled labour in that city. Yet in spite of the number of houses built the demand had shown no sign of slackening.

To-day Mr Armstrong will make brief inspections of State houses in Hastings, Waipawa, Waipukurau and Dannevirke. He will spend the night at Palmerston North.

the South, he continued, and the lack of accommodation was certainly most acute in Auckland and Wellington. Of 21,000 applications tainly most acute in Auckland and Wellington. Of 21,000 applications 16,000 were from these two centres. Hamilton and Palmerston North were among the most rapidly developing provincial centres.

Election During War

"Some people may think that not even a Parliamentary by-election should be held during war, and particularly during a conflict in which the life of our Empire is at stake. That, I think, is an extreme view to take. War demands many sacrifices and many adjustments of service, but we must also recognise that life goes on and that the interests of the people must be upheld and promoted in the political life of the nation. De mocracy supports the principle that we are fighting for now, the principle of democratic rights.

JUDGE'S OPINION OF THE "PEOPLE'S VOICE"

Strong Comment Made In Case Against Wellington Taxi-Driver

By Telegraph-Press Association WELLINGTON, Oct. 18.

The trial took place in the Supreme Court to-day of William McCready, aged 24, a taxidriver, on a charge of having in his possession fifty copies of the "People's Voice" with a view to facilitating the publication of a subversive statement. The jury returned a verdict of guilty and added a recommendation to mercy.

McCready was remanded for sentence.

In summing up his Honour, Mr Justice Ostler, suggested to the jurymen that when they retired they should read the "People's Voice" from cover to cover. When they had done that they would find that it. from cover to cover. When they had done that they would find that it professed to be issued by the Communist Party; that its attitude was that Russia could do no wrong; that it was hostile to the British Empire and all the Empire stood for, and to the rule of democracy as established in the framework of our constitution; that it hated the Labour Government and held it up to obloquy as traitorous to the class it represented; that it bitterly opposed the war effort of New Zealand and that it described the war as an imperialist war.

The End of Liberty The paper obviously desired to see the British Empire defeated, al-though his Honour said he could not uine.

The paper also admitted, he said, that in the past it had been subsidised by foreign money.

His Honour then dealt with the meaning of subversion. He said that the paper referred to conscription in New Zealand as if it were degrading. He could not understand why, because exactly the same thing went on in Russia. The army of Russia was a conscripted army, and the "People's Voice" thoroughly approved of it.

Russia and New, Zealand According to the paper it was army, but wrong for New Zealand, and he thought the jury would be perfectly justified in saying that the understand why, because if Britain perfectly justified in saying that the were defeated it seemed to him that paper contained subversive state-it would be the end of the liberty ments.

The establishment of fertiliser works on the East Coast at the pre-sent time would be an uneconomic sent time would be an uneconomic proposition according to views expressed at a meeting of the Wairooa Primary Production Council, when it was decided to co-operate with the farmers of Hawke's Bay in any effort made on their behalf in expediting the delivery of fertilisers. In a report to the council the chairman (Mr A. T. Carroll) stated that an amount of £35,000 would be required and even if the capital were available it would take at least two years to establish the works. Farmers were therefore asked to co-operate with the merchants in ordering early and arranging storage locally to avoid the delay experienced in the past.

A Flat Rate

In his opinion there was only one method by which the farmers of this district could obtain any assistance in the supply of fertilisers and that was to endeavour to secure a flat rate throughout the country.

After further discussion in which it was suggested that effects which it was suggested that effects which it was suggested that efforts should be made to obtain greater conces

She married Mr Olds in 1914 and since then had allied herself with her husband's work in the church at since then had allied nerself with her husband's work in the church at New Plymouth, Invercargill, Christ-church, Auckland, Lower Hutt and Dunedin before coming to Hastings about three years ago.

Many Interests

Even in her younger days Mrs Olds was keenly interested in Church work among the young people, and was actively concerned in the Bible Class movement. Since coming to Hastings she had devoted much of her time to the Women's Missionary Auxiliary and the Ladies' Guild.

Possessed of generous and considerate nature, Mrs Olds earned the respect and regard of the community. respect and regard of the community, among whom she has given so much kindly and useful service.

In addition to her husband she leaves a family of four sons, Messrs Osborne (Mac.) Christchurch, Charles Henry, New Plymouth, Norman, Wairarapa and Stanley, Wellington, and two daughters, the Misses Florence and Jessie, both of Hastings.

Last week the parishioners unanimously decided to invite Mr and Mrs Olds to remain in Hastings for an extension of their term. The funeral will leave the Methodist Church to-morrow, following a service commencing at 2.30 p.m., for the Hastings Cemetery.

An application for an increase in fares was granted the Napier Bus Co. Ltd. by the No. 2 Licensing Authority (Mr P. J. Skoglund) sitting in Napier yesterday.

A further application for an amendment to the timetable permitting buses to depart from Napier and Port Ahuriri on the quarterhour and reducing the number of trips by three was also granted.

The increase in the fare between Napier and Port Ahuriri will average about 1d. The increase will not affect any of the flat sections of the company's route, so that those

GOVERNMENT'S HOUSING POLICY UNDER SURVEY

Hon. H. T. Armstrong Reviews The Position In Interview At Napier

"The report of the Economic Stabilisation Conference is a helpful one, in that it stresses the importance of continuing the activities of the State Housing Department at the present time," said the Minister of Housing (the Hon. H. T. Armstrong) in the course of an interview at Napier last night.

"In some quarters it has been suggested that housing activities should be shelved during the war," Mr Armstrong continued. "I have never been of that opinion, and it is pleasing to note that the Government's policy of pressing ahead with housing as fast as possible is endorsed in the report. We must have the houses ready for the men when they return from active service."

"However, in the main we are already working on the lines of the recommendations, and the committee does not specifically suggest the means by which we should reach the objectives they consider desirable," continued the Minister.

Question of Hours

Mr Armstrong instanced the re-commendation that "efforts should be made to reduce costs without sacrificing quality" and that "meth-ods of simplifying and standardising plans of houses" should be con-sidered

The plans were already standardised, he said. There were some 600 designs, and no architects' expenses were involved in erecting a new house. Every door, window, range, bath, etc., was produced to a standard pattern. No Monotony

It was not desirable to carry standardisation to the extent of producing monotonous rows of similar buildings, cheaply produced, which would be the slum areas of the future.

Question of Hours

Question of Hours

The labour problem might be eassed somewhat if the co-operation of the unions were secured, as suggested, and working hours increased for the duration of the war. Registered apprentices in the building industry now made the greatest total yet recorded, and many of these were adult apprentices.

But even if the labour difficulty were eased the problem of obtaining materials would still have to be overcome. The Minister instanced the case of 38 houses in Auckland which were completed, but were which were completed, but were awaiting the arrival of electric cable

German Push In The Balkans: Blitzkrieg Continues: Ajax Again

(Written for the "Daily Mail")

Those who "cry havoc and let loose the dogs of war" soon find themselves in the situation of Frankenstein, who created a monster which became not only his master but a menace to all living things.

Nazi Germany has touched off a fuse which is steadily eating its way through to cause a world explosion.

Baffled in their boasted determination to pulverise the heart of the British Empire by means of a blitzkrieg shortcut to world domination, they now find that the dogs of war become something like scavenger pariah wolves, which run to and fro in Europe seeking whom they may devour.

The most significant item of the past week's news has been the characteristic German move in Rumania, which is at once an added threat in the Balkans and a confession of the failure of their invasion plans against Great Britain.

All in all, it has been a good week for Great Britain.

As a diplomatic offset to this danger in the Balkans, it was reported on Monday that conversations aimed at slowing up the German drive are taking place. Great Britain, Turkey, Greece, Russian and Bulgaria are represented. It is more or less evident that these countries are by no means willing to allow the Germans to "get away with it" entirely.

Havelock North Club REPORT AT ANNUAL

Successful Season

MEETING

That the club had retained the Rainbow Shield and won the Kinross White Cup, maintaining a high standard of swimming last season, was reported at the annual meeting of the Havelock North Swimming and Life Saving Club.

This success, the report stated, was due entirely to the loyal cooperation of the swimmers, as uncertain weather conditions had resulted in poor attendances at the carnivals.

The financial position remained satisfactory, although there was a decrease from last year's totals. The club was well represented at the Hawke's Bay championships, and the polo team gave a fine performance in the Henry Williams Polo Cup competition. Thanks were expressed to Mr A. Commenting on the report, the chairman (Mr E. F. Leicester) said that the year had been a successful one for the club in every sphere of

Honey For The Navy

GARDEN FETE FUNDS

Many Attractions For Everyone

AT WOODFORD HOUSE

The idea of buying New Zealand honey to send to the navy is an excellent thought which will be put into practice as a result of the Garden Fete to be held at Woodford House, Havelock North, on Saturday, November 2.

The scheme was outlined by Miss Holland, the principal of Woodford House at a meeting of the fete committee and stall holders which was held at the H.B. Farmers' committee room, Hastings, yesterday after-

oon. Miss Holland said that the school Miss Holland said that the school was a constituted branch of the Navy League, affiliated to the Auckland branch and she had therefore been able to arrange the scheme of sending N.Z. honey overseas through the Auckland branch. She proposed to spend three-quarters of the profits for this purpose and to give one-quarter to the general purposes fund of the local Red Cross as every pupil and member of the staff belonged to the Red Cross Society.

Mrs J. L. Masterson presided at the meeting. The secretary, Miss Ruth Small, reported various arrangements which had been made. She said that the Hastings Citizens' band had kindly offered to play throughout the afternoon and that all arrangements were well in hand band had kindly offered to play throughout the afternoon and that all arrangements were well in hand for the following stalls: Produce and meat, sweets, work, seedlings and flowers, cakes and a children's stall. Besides these there would be an old curiosity shop, bran tub, hoopla, ice creams and soft drinks and numerous other attractions.

Mrs Masterson said that arrangements had been satisfactorily made for the serving of a cafeteria afternoon tea throughout the afternoon.

Many raffles had already been begun. Foremost of these was a veryfine Shetland pony, and others were for turkeys, Christmas cakes, sweets and a bed jacket.

The Mayor of Hastings, Mr G. A. Maddison, had consented to open the fete at two o'clock and it was decided to arrange a 'bus service from Hastings to Woodford House to enable many hundreds of people from all over the district to avail themselves of an opportunity of seeing the beautiful grounds, patronising the stalls for present needs and Christmas gifts, as well as to hear the band and see an exhibition of mass drill. The committee members were most anxious that all people should realise that they bers were most anxious that all people should realise that they

The longest love letter in the world is on view at the British Museum. It was penned by one of Queen Elizabeth's courtiers to his lady love and it covers four hundred closely written pages — 410,000 words, five or six times as long as the ordinary 300-page novel.

Now that the weather is so much warmer puddings which supply heat and energy are no longer necessary and a much lighter type is more appetising.

Already with rhubarb in season, apples still procurable and other fruits not very far distant, every housewife begins to consider serving fruit and naturally the ideal accompaniment is a milk pudding.

These provide endless scope and the enterprising housewife should be able to have an endless variety of milk pudding recipes, easily made but appreciated by everyone.

NATURE NOTES

MONTEREY CYPRESS OR MACROCARPA

(By L. W. McCASKILL)

In my visit to the town and peninsula of Monterey in California I mainly went to see our common macrocarpa, growing in its natural state. There it can be found on or near the coast for a few miles on the peninsula between Monterey Bay and Carmel Bay, and on Point Lobos south of Carmel Bay. Most of the trees are to be found in a belt a few hundred feet wide along the coast, but a few are scattered inland on the ridge of the peninsula. Macrocarpa really forms a transition zone between the sea beach and the belt of pinus radiata described last week.

They open slowly, shedding the russet-brown seeds, after which they may remain on the trees for several years. There are from 10 to 12 cone-scales, each bearing about 20 russet-brown seeds. The seeds are heavy, so usually fall near the parleave, so we the seed we will find the young plant to have three seed leaves, about three-eighths of an inch long, narrow and pointed. Similar spreading leaves succeed these, to be followed by shorter, less-spreading leaves and, in the second and third season, the adult foliage.

What most call the leaves of macrocarpa are really the branchlets. Close examination of these will show them to be covered with the minute leaves with sharp points sometimes standing out slightly from the twigs. Examination with a lens shows many of the leaves to be marked on the back with a minute pit and two shallow grooves. Male and female flowers occur on the same tree. The cones ripen by the autumn of the second season.

came dreamy and instead of the two white yacht sails, I saw clouds came slowly, oh so slowly nearer shore and as it took definite shape in my eyes I could see that the hull was adorned with magnificent carving. The sails flapped lazily in the breeze and clouds of white foam sprayed out on either side in the shape of a fan. Gay flags flapped from the mast-head, and sailors in brightly coloured suits ran busily about the deck, commanded by the captain, who stood at the head, an imposing figure in his black cocked hat and velvet coat.

As suddenly as this lovely vision had come into sight, it vanished, and I found myself once again gazing at two straight, full sails which waved slowly to and fro in the summer breeze. I sighed as I realised that the magnificent sailing ship was just a trick of my imagination. I sighed a deeper sigh, for the days when these magnificent vessels had been lord of the seas, for the days when men wore powdered wigs and cocked hats, and white sails, lots of white sails, flapped in the wind, and carved bows and beautiful figure-heads dipped low into a calm sea to rise in a cloud of white foam.

But the wind still stirred the grass on the hillside, the waves still whispered their everlasting song to the golden sands, and the graceful yacht a symbol of modern times, still rose and fell like a white butterfly; and most realistic of all, I was still living in the year 1940.

Pam's Letter

Dear Girls and Boys,-

As you will see we are unfortunately allowed only six columns again this week, but I feel that we mustn't grumble, because we have given our extra space so that lots more messages can be sent away to our soldiers and I'm sure all Playmates would want to wish them a very Merry Christmas. Then, you see, there are such a lot of extra things because of the Show, so we will just have to be patient and hope that next week we'll have our full page once more.

Because of this I hope you won't be disappointed if you do not find your poems and stories included, because I just couldn't find room to have nearly as many as I would like to have done. However, I have given marks for all of them, as you will see in this week's honours.

This time I want you all to try to finish the limerick which I have given you and see who can have the cleverest

And now, I know that nearly all of you will be going to the Show, so I want to say that I'll be thinking about you and hoping that you will have a won-derful time. Then next week I expect derful time. Then next week I expect you will all be able to write and tell me about what you did. Good-bye for now.

Why Am I Not A Christian?

Is it because I am afraid of ridicule? "Whosoever shall be ashamed of Me and My words of him shall the Son of Man be ashamed." (Luke 9:26.)

Is it because of the inconsistencies of professing Christians? "Every one of us shall give an account of HIM-SELF to God." (Rom. 14:12.) Am I not willing to give up all to Christ? "What shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul." (Mark 8:36.) Am I afraid I shall not be accepted? "Him that cometh unto Me I will in no wise cast out." (John 6:37.) Is it for fear I am too great a sinner? "The blood of an equable temperature never down to freezing point, and rarely above 90 degrees F. The annual rainfall is about 17in., but from the look of the vegetation would seem to be more. This is due to the fact that strong moist sea winds keep the air humid during the greater part of the year, while cloudy or foggy days are frequent.

I will always remember the first macrocarpas I saw in their natural home—old, gnarled, weather-beaten giants, almost prostrate under the influence of the wind and salt spray. Some, 2ft. in diameter, had risen only a few feet above the ground. Back from the shore, where there was shelter from the salt and wind, the trees looked just like the ones we know so well in New Zealand.

What most call the leaves of macrocarpa are really the branchlets. Close examination of these will wave cosionally liable to be killed or injured by excessive cold, even when several years old.

We are more familiar with it as a single tree with widely spreading branches than as a forest tree. But if it is planted 5ft. to 6ft. apart in blocks, it sheds the side branches when quite young and develops tall straight timber. A tree at Homebush, Canterbury, in a mixed plantation, when only 35 years old.

From the farm point of view a single spreading tree may be very useful for providing stakes or droppers.

Heartwood is very durable in the ground, and we have records of posts lasting 25 years at least. When grown in plantations the timber can be split or sawn easily. It is very interpetation of these will wears old.

Original Story By Shirley Hannah

It was yet early morn. The sun then fed the chicks.

"My! How they're growing," I said. "Twit, twit.

Yery soon they'll be able to fly, And they will be leaving us bye out the memory of the pleasant day before. The seas were wild and turbulent and in breaking over the rug-The babes grew quickly; one of the died; "There's only two left now," I the babes grew quickly; one of ged rocks flung showers of spray high into the air. Altogether the prospect was not a pleasant one cried.

The very next day along came a cat, ling in the sea's wild mood. Jeanette, for such was her name, clad in a winter frock, a coat open down the front and clasping a hat to her head was staring out to sea watching the breakers crash upon the rocks and slide gently back to meet the oncoming wave. Her face was flushed and her eyes were starry. She seated herself on a rock out of reach of the huge breakers forever crashing upon them, and stared moodily at the horizon, her hands clasped round her drawn-up knees. A wreath of smoke barely hands clasped round her drawn-up knees. A wreath of smoke barely distinguishable was curling upwards and growing fainter and fainter as the vessel from whence it came steamed farther ahead. She could not see the ship. Perhaps it was a luxury liner taking wealthy people for a tour of the world—wealthy people who did not, as she did, have to work for their living, whose to work for their living, whose whole lives were spent in amusing themselves, while her only leisure time was the early hours of the morning when the sun was yet ris-ing. Maybe it was a small boat

Marks carrying cargo—meat perhaps—to the Motherland or some other place needing food. Perhaps it was just an ordinary every-day vessel plying between coastal towns. Perhaps it was just a tug-but anyway it did not matter.

Her wandering gaze stopped a while at the lighthouse on the premontory which before she came had been blinking a warning to the ships that passed by. It brought to her mind the verse from Longfellows' poem, "The Lighthouse" Steadfast, serene, immovable,

Year after year, through all the silent night
Burns on for evermore that quenchless flame,
Shines on that inextinguishable light! Jeanette was growing cold. The sun was completely blotted out by dark foreboding clouds, which covered the sky. A wind was springing up, sending the white horses dashing forward over the waves. The undulation of the seas were becoming a swell, which Jeanette, staring at continually, seemed to feel her-self. The turbulent seas seemed lashed into fury so that the breakers crahed against the jutting-out rocks with a noise like thunder and spray stung Jeanette's face. A storm was rising—that was evident. The fishing smack just off shore was rocking violently to and fro, and new and was lying among other school bags on a grand shelf.

Finally a big grubby boy of about 10 years came into the shop and looked at me longingly. How, I zon. Then he, too, helped with the net so that soon all was ready and they made for the shore. The seagulls were wheeling overhead, and uttering from time to time their wild cries.

Suddenly the storm burst, and it seemed as if the heavens had opened to pour their wrath upon the earth below. Jeanette hastily retreated into a cave in the cliff and watched in safety the raging storm without. Even now the sea was dashing over the very rock on which a minute ago she had been sitting. She watched each wave come pearer nearer and each wave come nearer, nearer, and she would have to go. Silently she stepped out into the downpour and began to climb the rude steps up the cliff face. At the top one she paused and looked down at the sea, little of which she could see for the rain. Then just as silently she vanished into the cottage which stood there.

N.Z. CUP TRIAL AT MASTERTON

KATHBELLA IN SPRINT

Kilometre's Chance In Champion Hack

By "Moturoa"

The Masterton meeting will conclude at Opaki to-day and the presence of several fresh horses may complicate matters. However, the weather promises to remain fine and the track conditions should be Siegmund, who tops the list in the Vallance Handicap, will be sufted by the long straight and it will be remembered that Yours Truly won this race last year, an effort which brought him before notice as a N.Z. Cup candidate. The Ring's Hastings form suggests that she will be troublesome, while Master Cyklon will find it hard to concede 2lbs. to Aurora's Star. Pearl of Asia, al-Aurora's Star. Pearl of Asia, although a grave disappointment at Otaki, should show up to better advantage here. She is a real stayer and the small field will suit her. Kathbella is a newcomer in the Waipipi Handicap. She ran badly at Hastings, but that was not her right form and she should make a mach. Hastings, but that was not her right form and she should make a much better showing here. Bronwen will te all the better for her race the first day, but there are few more consistent gallopers than Vascones. White Rajah ran a fine third the first day, but Nelumbo, who races well fresh, may surprise.

The Hack Cup Race

One of the most evenly balanced

The Hack Cup Race

One of the most evenly balanced fields of the day is the Champion Hack Handicap and there will be keen competition for this race. Kilometre has run fine races at his last four starts, his last effort being to run Don Quex to a head at Awapuni after being badly left. Don Quex is well, but he now meets Kilometre on 12lbs, worse terms. On metre on 12lbs. worse terms. On this track Kilometre should beat him. Titter is running good races and so is Counter, while Charles Edward, who was only a head behind the two topweights at Awa-puni, meets both on very favourable terms now. Triple Crown should be the pick of the lightweights.

Those in form for to-day are:-Trial Stakes: Beau Ciel, Defy, Blue

TIMARU FORM

Density May Keep The Sprinters Busy

AIRLINE IS DUE SOON

By "Moturoa"

The Teschemaker Handicap at Timaru to-day finds several Wellington and New Zealand Cup candidates engaged and the field is a very strong one. The weather is threatening, but the course conditions should be good. Passaform and Queen of Song would have to improve on recent form to stand a chance in the big race, but Petersham and Sword-stick have been running good races recently. Dictate has been galloping well at Riccarton and, under his light weight, he may be one of the hardest to beat. The logical favourite, however, is The Raker, who won so impressively at the Kurow and Dunedin meeting in his last two starts. Nightdress, Lockit, Wardress, Steelement and Hanlon will also come in for some support. By "Moturoa" Quite a few horses engaged at Trentham next week will be seen in action at Te Kapua Park to-day when the Stratford Racing Club's meeting will be held and the main event on the programme will be the Stratford Handicap. The list is headed by Royal Star II, but his mission will be the sprint, leaving that former high-class performer, Friesland, the virtual topweight. Friesland has been galloping well and is sure to give a good account of himself to-day. Namara should be improved by his recent racing and he must be respected while much interest will be taken for some support.

Win-and-place betting will be used to-day and the best backed horses should be:—

Otaio Handicap: Leopardstown, Crack O'Dawn, Jewish Lad. Spring Stakes: Eulogist, Gold Nug-get, Sweet Mystery. Washdyke Trot: Hardy Oak, Mala-pert, Lady Denise.

Teschemaker Handicap: The Raker, Dictate, Sword-stick. Tycho Hack Handicap: King's Toast Raceaway, Stabilise. Flying Handicap: Density, Hearth, Hadlow Trot: Manawai, Happy Man

Kerrytown Hack Handicap: Ferriby Airline, Grey Silk. The following are the acceptances:

12.30 p.m.—OTAIO HURDLES, o. £130; 11 miles: Jewish Lad 10.10 Leopardstown 9.13, Mungatoon 9.7 Combat 9.6, Aggravate 9.2, Donades 9.2, Crack o' Dawn 9.0, Sir Gladsoms

1.15 p.m.—SPRING STAKES, of 6115; 6 furlongs: Ageratum 8.5, Blue Coat 8.5, Bon Raid 8.5, Dispense 8.5 Eulogist 8.5, Gold Nugget 8.5, Jack sonville 8.5, Nisi Prius 8.5, Pink Gauntlet 8.5, Rora Hiko 8.5, Sweet Mystery 8.5, Urgent 8.5, Whiphand 8.5. in the brilliant Footloose if he makes his middle-distance debut here. Footloose is stoutly bred and the journey should not be beyond him. Ned Cuttle should be more forward now than he was at New Plymouth, while Winsome Lu ran quite a good race in the Mitchelson Cup and that form is worthy of consideration. Aussie Ra has previously raced well on this track and Auto Sweep is a distinct possibility at the weights.

Win-and-place betting will be used to-day and the following should claim the attention of backers:—

12.0—Trial Stakes: Talenta Lu Chang

1.40 p.m.—WASHDYKE TROT, of £121; 12 miles: Ben Travis scr, Black Label scr, Canister scr, Catalpa scr, Crackajack scr. Dandy Travis scr. Diviner scr. Hardy Oak scr. Hoyden scr. Joan Nelson scr. by MASSINE 12 by Consols 3—Mauri by Ajax 2.

From FOREST TRACK by Tracery 19—Forest Lassie by Isinglass 3—Baroness ia Fleche by Ladas 1—La Fleche by St. Simon 11.

LANG BIAN is a particularly handsome horse and closely resembles nis famous sire. He was a good winner in the best class races in France. MASSINE, Lang Bian's sire, was a nigh-class winner in France, and also beat the Derby winner Papyrus in the Ascot Gold Cup. He has twice headed the winning sires' list in France and he introduces a fresh strain of St. Simon blood through that great galloper La Camargo.

FOREST TRACK'S pedigree is well known. Not only is she by that great prood mare sire Tracery, but her third dam is that wonderful mare La Fleche, the third dam of Beau Pere and Gay Shield, two of the most successful sires in New Zealand in modern times.
