German Inland Harbours Bombed

BIG EXPLOSIONS HEARD

Near Berlin

(United Press Association-Copyright.) (Received November 8, 10.30 p.m.)

The Air Ministry states that three of Germany's main inland harbours, Duisburgh, Mannheim and Ludwigshaven, were victims of the R.A.F., and an important aero-engine works was a target at the Berlin suburb of Spandau.

Heavy clouds and storms harassed the R.A.F. bombers going to Berlin. One pilot said he picked up no landmark for hours but a break in the clouds showed them when they were over the target. The first bombs started a fire.

The weather over the Rhineland hid details of the bombing but fires and big explosions occurred at Duisburgh, Ludwigshaven and Mannheim. The last-named is the second largest river port in Europe and at present is used for loading war supplies.

"Our bombs caused five explosions and a big fire an Mannheim," said one pilot "and incendiary bombs rained down on Ludwigshaven, which is one of the biggest German harbours on the left bank of the Rhine."

Rhine."

Other successful night attacks were centred on the railyards at Hamm, Mainz and Cologne, a factory 20 miles north-west of Cologne, the aerodrome at Bolitz and the dockyards at Dunkirk.

R.A.F. bombers last night conducted an exceedingly heavy attack on Krupps' works at Essen and also attacked oil targets in Germany, the invasion ports and enemy aerodromes in France.

TWO MONTHS IN THE FIELD

NEW ZEALANDERS NOW TO REST

GOOD QUARTERS

Leave Before Winter Sets In

From the Official War Correspondent attached to the Second New Zealand Expeditionary Force) (Received Nov. 8, 11.45 a.m.) ENGLAND, Nov. 6.

After two months in the field as part of Britain's forward defence force, the New Zealanders have been withdrawn inland for rest and refitting. All the men are living either in requisitioned empty houses or in specially-built Nissen huts. The great majority of them are in houses, many of which are first-class homes.

A few days are being allowed for settling-in and making the premises comfortable, after which first attention will be given to clothing, equipment, and the completion of leave. Every man's battle-dress will be professionally cleaned without charge

The granting of seven days' leave to 10 per cent. of the strength each week was interrupted by the move to the coast which began in September. Within the next few weeks, before winter begins in earnest, all men who have had not this leave

Restricted Training.

The winter training programme will necessarily be more restricted than that followed during summer. Nevertheless, there will be plenty to keep the men's minds occupied and their bodies fit.

A return to the parade-ground will brush up the men's drill, and, generally, smarten up their appearance, which were of secondary consideration in the invasion belt. After that weapon training sideration in the invasion belt. After that, weapon training, route marches, and organised games will be the mainstays of the working day. In the evenings, every unit will have the use of a well-heated and well-lighted room for reading, writing and indoor recreation, and regular entertainment will be organised. Men who wish for something a little more serious are offered facility. little more serious are offered facili ties for free attendance at technical commercial, language and other classes at civilian technical colleges' evening institutes.

Brawny navvies are working shoulder to shoulder with clerks in spectacles day by day to clear the debris caused by bombs dropped on London. A Press representative had the opportunity of seeing in south London the sterling work of these men of the Pioneer Corps, between the ages of 18 and 50, who are drawn from every walk of life regardless of occupation.

The tour, which included several of the worst bombed areas, was designed to show the methodical stages in the clearance from littered piles of debris to spick and span sites whereon neat piles of bricks timber, lead piping, etc., are stacked—each collection of piles representing the salvable remains of a house. While these men of the Pioneer Corps who, as Mr Winston Churchill recently said, are as much part of his Majesty's Forces as the King's Company of Grenadier Guards, are working to repair the nightly damage, London's civilians also play their part. In one area a clergyman's wife, Mrs MacKenzie and two daughters, seven and 10, were providing tea, cake and biscuits for the workers.

Twice a Day "They have been doing this twice a day for 10 days," said the officer in charge. "It must be because I am a Scotsman, too."

The "New York Times" Washington correspondent says that Britain has completed arrangements for the construction of 120 freighters at a cost of 100,000,000 dollars. They will be manufactured piecemeal throughout the nation and will be assembled on the west coast at the rate of one a week.

The freighters will be 300 feet in length with 25,000 horsepower, giving a speed of 18 knots.

Britain is also negotiating for the purchase of an additional 63 freighters from the Maritime Commission and from 80 to 100 others from private owners.

Pioneer Corps Trouble Looming For Italians If Troops Advance

(United Press Association—Copyright.) (Received November 8, 10.15 p.m.) LONDON, Nov. 7.

The London "Daily Telegraph's" Istanbul correspondent says it is reliably reported that Italy has eight divisions in the southern sector against Greece, four in the eastern sector, and three in the interior of Albania maintaining order. Allied and Turkish military experts cannot see advantage for the Italians if they occupy Janina, except the possible moral effect.

Even if the Italian operations based on Konispolis are successful they will find themselves in a huge basin from which there are only two possible exits, of which one is eastwards over the Pindus Mountains, crossing the pass at an altitude of 5000 feet, which the Greeks would vigorously defend. The other exit goes south to the Gulf of Corinth, passing for many miles through marshes.

separate the southern and eastern sectors; reinforcements from one to the other are possible only through Albania.

In the eastern sector it seems strategically possible for the Italians to extricate themselves from the present dilemma only by trying to turn the Greek flank by penetrating Dibra and then going down the Vardar Valley. This would seriously complicate matters for Italy as it would involve the violation of Yugoslay territory. slav territory.

It states that there was an exchange of artillery fire on Wednesday along the whole of the northern front. "Our troops on the extreme left, near the sea coast, have fallen back slightly," it adds. Otherwise, the news from the front continues to give satisfaction. All gains in Albania are reported to be firmly held.

The reinforced Greece army has taken nine howitzers, four field guns, 32 machine-guns, besides prisoners, on the central front, where an Italian force is cut off in the Pindus region. Most of the captures were made as isolated units attempted to escape from the trap

"NEITHER CAN THEY DIE ANY MORE: FOR THEY ARE EQUAL UNTO THE ANGELS; AND ARE THE CHILDREN OF GOD, BEING THE CHILDREN OF THE PESUPPECTION." RESURRECTION."
(Luke 20: 36.)

A FREE ADDRESS will be given (God willing) in the United Hall, Lyndon Road, Hastings, on Sunday night at 7 o'clock, on the subject:— 2.0: "THE REWARD OF THE RIGHTEOUS, MADE EQUAL UNTO THE ANGELS; ITS SIGNIFIC-ANCE."

Man, subject to decay and death, and incapable of delivering himself from its bondage, is likewise impotent to establish a stable order in the earth wherein righteousness, justice, and peace will prevail without exception. (Rom. 5: 12; 8: 21. Jer. 10: 23. Rom. 3: 10.)

(2) God has, through the work of Jesus Christ who is the resurrection and the life, provided a means of redemption from mortality for those who render obedience to His Commandments. (Rom. 3: 24-26; 5: 8. I Cor. 1: 30. Eph. 1: 5-7. Heb. 5:9, 7: 25.) Heb. 5:9, 7: 25.)

(3) Those who are accounted righteousness by Christ on his return to earth, will be made immortal, incorruptible possessors of eternal life, and will thereafter be associated with him in the setting up of the Kingdom of God over all the earth and the rulership of the nations thereof with justice and truth, to the glory of God and the blessing of all mankind. (Matt. 16: 27; 25: 34. I Cor. 15: 50-54. II Tim. 4: 8. Phil. 3: 21. I John 2: 25; 3: 2. Ps. 22: 28. Isa. 32: 1, 17. Rev. 11: 15.)

JON HALL IN "SOUTH OF PAGO PAGO"

Thrilling Adventure Romance

Against a background highlighted by the breathless beauty and tropical brilliance of the South Seas,
"South of Pago Pago" is now at the State Theatre, Hastings.

The stellar cast of this new adventure romance is headed by Victor McLaglen, Jon Hall, Frances Farmer, Olympe Bradna, Douglas Dumbrille and Gene Lockhart.

The story of "South of Pago Pago" is set in the 1880's when men who went down to the China Sea in ships were only a mite removed in character from the pirates and robbers who sailed the Spanish Main a century earlier. Bucko Larson, played by Victor McLaglen, has heard that there is fortune in rare pearls "South of Pago Pago" and he makes a strange bargain with Ruby Taylor, a Singapore cafe girl, played by Frances Farmer, when they set sail to capture this booty.

As soon as they land in the South

As soon as they land in the South Seas, Larson proceeds to trick the natives to dive for him and to still the fears of the young and hand some Kehane, son of the island chief, played by Jon Hall. Larson's plans prosper when Kehane falls in love with Ruby and forgets about his island fiancee, played by Olympe Bradna. But as the natives die off under the whiplash brutality of Larson, Kehane awakens to the dangers and horrors brought about by the

A series of fast and dramatic episodes follow and the smash action which is unreeled furnishes the picture with scenes of excitement and suspense. When Ruby Taylor intervenes in the tremendous pattle which takes place on Larson's coat, the picture draws to a climax of unforgettable power and tempo.

YOUNG TOM EDISON' FINE PRODUCTION

Role

All suspicion that Mickey Rooney is strictly an unusual personality rather than an actor is dispelled in personation so real that you feethat you are turning back the pages of history. Young Rooney definite ly demonstates the fact that histori cal roles are not for adult stars

The picture tells a vivid story of the riumph of a typical American boy and is so down-to-earth and human that it will bring a warm glow in the heart of many a boy and a tear to the eye of every sister and mother in the audience.

ter and mother in the audience. There is a generous portion of comedy in the story, comedy which Rooney does to perfection because it is genuine boyhood comedy.

Mickey, of course, is superb, directed by that genius of childhood story directors Norman Taurog. The man who made "Skippy" certainly has topped the Academy winning effort of a few years ago. The cast with Rooney is outstanding. First there is Virginia Weidler who again proves she is Hollywood's leading child actress. As Edison's sister she proves she is Hollywood's leading child actress. As Edison's sister she is a superb team-mate for Mickey. Fay Bainter is a perfect selection as Edison's mother and is magnificent. George Bancroft, playing Edison's father, has a role totally unlike anything he's ever done and one which may well spell "new career" for this grand actor. Eugene Pallette, Victor Killian. Bobbie Jor-Pallette, Victor Killian, Bobbie Jordan, and Harry Shannon round out an excellent supporting cast.

the Regent Theatre, Napier. Contrary to general belief, this powerful novel of early nineteenth century New England has never before been filmed. Few changes have been made in the original plot. The screenplay preserves the mystery and menace of the ill-fated, sevengabled structure visioned by Hawthorne and peopled with the Pyn-

fold-flung curse of the long-dead Matthew Maule, executed for prac-ticing witchcraft. Margaret Lindsay is seen in the cole of Hepzibah, first as a girl of eighteen and, in the later episodes of he story, as the stern, tight-lipped, orbidding recluse in the gloomy couse while she awaits the release the remaining of their imprisoned lover. Clifford of her imprisoned lover, Clifford, played by Vincent Price. George Sanders is seen as Clifford's brother on whom the curse of the Maules descends, while Nan Grey portrays Phoebe who brings light and happiness to the Pyncheons and who dissolves the curse that has blighted generations of the family. generations of the family.

GARY COOPER IN "THE WESTERNER"

Story Of The Early Days Of Texas

Against the colourful and adventure-filled background of the Old West, in the days when justice was administered at the point of a gun, Samuel Goldwyn's "The Westerner," with Gary Cooper in the title role, is now showing at the State Theatre,

"The Westerner" features in the cast which supports Cooper such notable players as Walter Brennan, Fred Stone, Doris Davenport, Lilian Forrest Tucker and Paul The setting of the story is Vinegarroon, Texas, in the roaring days of the 'eighties when there raged a bitter and long-protracted battle between the cattlemen, original settlers of the land, and the homesteaders, who sought to till the land which they homesteaded under

Just when this battle is reaching Just when this battle is reaching a peak, the Westerner, a roving cowboy named Cole Harden, drifts into town and finds himself entangled in the vicious "Law West of the Pecos." But the Westerner is a wily adventurer, fearless and bold, and when he comes to grips with wily reach he proves a shrewd on-Judge Bean, he proves a shrewd op-ponent. Discovering that Judge Bean's idol is the fabulous and beau Bean's idol is the fabulous and beau-teous Lily Langtry, the stranger tells the Judge that he has met the Jersey Lily and knows her well. This news intrigues the Judge, and he manages to have Cole reprieved. until further evidence in the trumped-up case against him is brought in.

The story reaches a smash climax in the scene where the cattlemen and Bean's henchmen set fire to the hundreds of homesteads and farms throughout the area. How Cole way-lays the Judge just as the gorgeous actress is about to step before the footlights and what happens when guns are fired provides the story with a swift, action-filled ending.

The Rev. C. H. Olds, assisted by the Rev. J. Olds, Auckland, officiated at the ceremony which was a choral one. During the signing of the register a duet was sung by Mrs R. Stewart and Miss Nell Batchelor.

The bride was escorted by her grandfather, Mr R. Kean, Nelson, and she wore a gown of white satin charmelaine, the V neckline finished with needlerun lace and the train inset with lace medallions. Her veil was of Indian hand-worked net and was arranged with a bandeau of orange blossom. A lovely bouquet of lily-of-the-valley, azaleas and fern was carried.

The only bridesmaid, Miss Mavis Edgar, the bride's sister, wore a gown of white flowered taffeta fashioned with a heart-shaped neckline and cyclamen velvet sash. She carried a bouquet of cyclamen and

YORKSHIRE JOURNEY: FROM eyes. At all events, she did not look like the moorland dwellers described by Mrs Gaskell—but she did look land—a piece of intelligence which by Mrs Gaskell—but she did look caused a stunned silence. Then—appropriate to see a stranger within PARSONAGE AT HAWORTH

A chill Sunday dawn strug-gled over the roofs of York. Through the mist pressing against the windows of the inn the old houses on the opposite side of Petergate loomed dim and ghostly. Only once did I hear the sound of footstepswhen a woman carrying a Prayer Book and an umbrella passed on her way to the Min-

In the coffee room flickering firelight flung warm gleams across to the eighteenth century bow-window and made the old prints on the cream walls glow with colour. There was a blue bowl of golden crocuses on the table.

HE MAID who gave me my brass candlesticks on the manthe prints or the glittering as much a part of the room as solitary, early breakfast was telpiece. You could picture her in a flowered dress with a very tight bodice and a full skirt just short enough to reveal neat ankles above trimly buckled shoes. She would wear a mob cap, too, and would blush coyly at travellers' compliments.

After breakfast I went out into the cold air of mid-March, walked down the narrow street to the Minster, and turned left towards the river. Looking back, I could see the soaring bulk of the cathedral veiled in vague, milky mist. The outline of the western towers was fairly definite, but only the base of the great central tower was visible.

On that morning, York was entirely mediaeval. The Water Gates by Lendal Bridge; the long line of the high city walls; the narrow lanes, deserted in the early Sunday quiet—all these things belonged to the past. It was not until I approached the railway station that the hoot of a taxi spoiled the ilusion. Before that I had half expected to hear the clatter of hoofs on cobblestones or the jingle of harness as the knights rode out through Bootham Bar.

For twenty minutes I shivered in a tiny shelter opposite the station.

Then a bus rolled out of the mist; I clambered in, and the journey commenced.

The church was silent and the doors were locked. There must have been a service during the morning, but now the place was as deserted as the village street. I went round to the churchyard ("terribly full of upright tombstones") and from here I had my first view of the parsonage.

Like the church itself, the parsonage has been altered since the days when the Bronte children looked out from those high windows to the churchyard that so nearly encircles the little rectory garden. A large wing, which breaks the original squareness of the house—and thus greatly lessens the suggestion of comfortless severity—has been added, and in summer, when the shrubs and creepers are in leaf, the parsonage must possess a certain degree of attractiveness. But always there is the proximity of the sea of graves.

Back I went round to the churchyard ("terribly full of upright tombstones") and from here I had my first view of the parsonage.

With the first view of it you can sympathise with the sense of chill foreboding that must have beset gentle Mrs Bronte (who had lived amid the soft luxuriance of Cornish scenery) when she first saw Haworth in the cold spring dusk. In 1820 the place must have seemed like the end of the earth.

by Mrs Gaskell—but she did look surprised to see a stranger within her gates on that chill Sabbath.

I asked if she could supply me with sufficient food to sustain life until I returned to Haworth, and after a moment's hesitation she replied in the broad Yorkshire dialect that if I did not mind very simple fare and had no objection to eating in the kitchen, she could give me tea and scones and fresh butter and ham and honey and cream and new-laid eggs. I could have embraced her on the spot.

Foreign policy is their affair and theirs alone, though here and there they summon the Supreme Soviet to head official pronouncements and to approve without discussion important political volte-faces and vital issues of war and peace. I was present at the session of the Supreme Soviet at the Kremlin last September when Mr Molotoff last September when Mr Molotoff delivered his dramatic speech demanding the ratification of the abrupt reversal of seven years of Soviet policy, the first pact with Nazi Germany. Despite warnings from old hands, I was still naive enough to believe in at least the possibility of an interesting debate on this astounding change of front, particularly as Mr

The variant "Stalin pursues the policy of adding to the power of the Soviet Union by restoring and adding to the territories of Imperial Russia regardless of the interests of Socialism as an international force and of the proletariat of other countries" is more arguable.

But true as that may be, I see nothing in Mr Stalin's wartime policy that is at variance with the interests of the Soviet Union as he must see them, even though these that Mr Molotoff's speech should be approved without any debate, and the picturesque assembly obediently

His aims one may to some extent deduce from the latest developments, but seldom the path he will pursue to realise them.

Even about the most vital question it is risky to be dogmatic. Has Mr Stalin a complete understanding with Chancellor Hitler, as Premier Mussolini had, and is his attitude one of temporary non-belligerency because Herr Hitler has allotted him this role as more advantageous to his own power.

How can we expect him to see the interests of the Soviet State?

First, it is clear that he foresaw the outbreak of war, leading at the worst to full betrayal by the "appeasers," at the best to Soviet Russia's being left to share the fate of Poland had she entered the war on their side on the terms which they were prepared to offer.

That is to say, with no advanced defences in the Baltic States and Finland and no right to advance to meet a German attack on the soil of Poland, with bitterly hostile regimes in power in these countries and Finland.

No doubt it must have seemed worth-while to him to come to an arrangement with Germany as he did even though it might have prov-

The second alternative speaks the ideological monstrosity of an alliance between Fascism and Communism, since monsters rarely survive long after birth.

You may take the line that such ideological differences are a delusion encouraged by two great Powers manoeuvring for position, and that co-operation between two totalitarian dictatorships against democracy is as natural as the desire of two fundamentally imperialist States to co-operate in destroying and sharing the spoils of a richer imperium.

REARRANGING THE CONSTITUTION

The proposals of Professor Algie for re-shaping the constitution of New Zealand are of academic rather than practical interest. Since the time of Plato men have exercised their minds to discover the best kind of governmental machinery, and they are still looking for it. In our day and generation it and they are still looking for it. In our day and generation it is a harmless pre-occupation which seldom yields any tangible result. Until the cogitations of the political philosophers crystallise into projects of law, nobody bothers very much about schemes for changing the constitution.

Professor Algie is an authority on constitutional law, and his opinion is entitled to respect on any matter relating to the history of modern constitutions, and the interpretation of statutes dealing with constitutional government in the British Empire but as a framer of constitutions he must still be tish Empire, but as a framer of constitutions he must still be regarded as a novice. The Professor would abolish the Legislative Council, which he describes as "so much dead wood," and would set up a "Council of Nine" charged with a duty to "do the thinking, research, reporting and recommending" for the common or garden variety of politician.

The noble nine "could be nominated and elected in a certain way and given standing qualification such as that possessed by judges, but no executive powers." The House of Representatives is to be reduced in numbers, and Professor Algie's Parliament would be elected on "some system of proportional representation." Coincident with this sweeping change,

"party politics" must be abolished. This seems to be rather a large order. Politics is a game that can be played only if there are two sides. In any society where the laws are framed to express the will of the majority, the existence of political parties is the natural and inevitable outcome of fundamental differences of opinion.

In New Zealand to-day, the chief issue on which people divide is Socialism. The present Government are giving practical application to the principle that the day of individual initiative and private enterprise is past. They hold that the Government must control the machinery of production, the utilisation of our financial resources in productive undertakings, and the marketing and distribution of the product.

There is a large section of the community that is wholly and totally opposed to the idea. This section still believes that material progress can best be promoted by encouraging individuals to engage in productive enterprises primarily for the purpose of personal enrichment, that competition promotes efficiency and that the interest of the community is served if the Government interferes as little as possible. Under these circumstances, how is it possible to avoid party conflict between the supporters of the rival policies? It is the unquestioned right of the minority to use every legitimate means of converting opponents to their way of thinking, and the only way of abolishing party politics is the one that has been adopted by Hitler. It is hardly feasible in New Zealand. The "Council of Nine" is an intriguing idea and it is a pity that the professor is so delightfully vague about it. Presumably, the council is to be a group of Elder Statesmen, with the power to originate legislation and to advise on projects put forward by the House of Representatives, but with jects put forward by the House of Representatives, but with no power to enact or to veto.

The selection of the nine seems to present difficulties. "Nominated and elected in a certain way" may be as clear as the average legal exposition, but it sheds little light on the procedure. Appointments to public positions of this kind are usually made by the Governor-General on the advice of his ministers which is another way of saying that the job (with apologies to the Chief Justice, who dislikes the word) invariably goes to a political supporter whose performances in an intelligence test might not justify placing him amongst the first nine brains in the land. On the other hand, if the selection depends on the popular vote, Professor Algie would probably be still more disappointed with the intellectual calibre of the successful candidates

The Legislative Council may amount to so much dead wood, but whatever its faults, it hardly justifies the condemnation that it is "a check to the progress of the democratic machine.

For a long time our Upper House has been quite content to say Aye to everything sent up from the House of Representatives, and go home to bed after the supper adjournment. Its members have no constituents to placate and are denied broadcasting facilities, which may have something to do with their docility. The Massey Government secured the passage of a law providing for an elected Upper House, but none of their successors have taken the necessary steps to bring this Act into operation. The nominative system provides too useful a means of rewarding loyal supporters to be lightly abandoned.

Perhaps the cause of constitutional reform might be advanced if the New Zealand Freedom Association offered a prize for a model constitution. If it does so, one might be pardoned for suggesting that Professor Algie would do better as an adjudicator than a competitor.

"Can't Be Done"

When the divorce action Marshall v. Marshall was mentioned in the Napier Supreme Court yesterday, the Chief Justice (Sir Michael Myers), dismissed the petition on the grounds that it was premature. His Honour read the papers, and then drily remarked, "It can't be done." It appears that Mrs Marshall, the petitioner, obtained a decree nisi at the end of August to be moved absolute at the expiration of three months.

On a pouring wet night during the week a motorist whose car had suffered after travelling through the flooded streets, came to the Hastings office of the "Daily Mail" in search of help. His car was temporarily displaying as much temperament as a film star, and he wanted someone to push energetically from the rear while he steered out of the flood. Assistance was given and the car "What's wrong, General?"
"Everything! Instead of addressing my note to the Intelligence Officer you have addressed it to the Intelligent Officer and there's no such person in the Army."

It is reported that a rural electricity station has the following while he steered out of the flood. Assistance was given and the car was started off safely. On the same night two dogs and a cat, apparently far from home, sought refuge under the counter in the commercial office. This is probably the first time on record that a newspaper office has achieved the status of a community shelter.

An Eltham boy, who judging from his letter, is quite young, apparently believes in going to high official quarters when he wants anything. Recently, he wrote to the Defence Department, Wellington, asking the department to send him a New Zealand flag "for our flag pole which we department to send him a New Zealand flag "for our flag pole which we have put up for our Empire." The letter came under the notice of Lieutenant-Colonel W. R. Burge, deputy-Quartermaster-General, who, not having any flags at his disposal to hand out as presents but feeling that he would like to do something for the boy, forwarded the boy's letter to the board's office. Now the board's secretary has undertaken to see secretary has undertaken to see what can be done. There may be some person or organisation with a flag to spare.

Raising War Funds

Sir,-In view of the fact sir,—In view of the fact that every child costs its parents £500 to rear from birth to school-leaving age, and perhaps many hundreds more if the child is to pursue the calling of a doctor or a lawyer or to be equipped for some of the other professional callings, it is up to these married counts who have to those married couples who have no children deliberately or otherwise to contribute £500 to the war fund.

to contribute £500 to the war fund. So far I have not seen their names figuring for that amount or anything near it.

Take parents who have raised a family of 10 (quite common in the good old days and worthy people they were) which cost them £5000—a fortune for the childless couples. What assets to the country those families of ten were. And what assets in wartime!

Money alone will not win wars. In fact, money would not be necessary at all were the State to be paramount and not so apologetic to sary at all were the State to be paramount and not so apologetic to those who dictate to the State because they have money.

What do we want after all?—only food, raiment and shelter. Many people in the Old Country who are just as good as we, are not getting these necessities. In very truth we do not realise how well off we are. Now, sir, if the family man and his wife have sacrificed that £500 to rear each child and have looked upon it as a labour of love and kept

Return to Winter

Although nearly half of November has gone, the month has so far-failed to produce any warm weather in Hawke's Bay. Yesterday was cold, with passing showers and a biting southerly wind in most parts of the province. A depressing weather forecast last night suggested that wintry week-end was in store.

Shop Day at Napier

A successful Shop Day was held in Napier yesterday by town and country members of the Red Cross Society. The produce offered was solld without difficulty, and as a result a sum exceeding £100 was raised and will be devoted to the £1,000,000 patriotic appeal.

Soldiers' Greetings

On behalf of the people of New Zealand, the National Patriotic Fund Board has made arrangements to issue to each New Zealand soldier in the Middle East a set of six letter cards. These cards have been specially designed in New Zealand to convey greetings from New Zealand soldiers to their relatives and friends.—Press Association.

Prospective Teachers

A committee appointed by the Hawke's Bay Education Board is at present interviewing applicants for admission to training college. The committee, which comprises the secretary of the board, Mr W. L. MR ALGIE'S IDEA

Abolition Of Party Politics

By Telegraph—Press Association. AUCKLAND, Nov. 6.

AUCKLAND, Nov. 6.

Abolition of party politics in New Zealand, the institution of a national council without executive powers to consider State proposals and a reduction in the size of Parliament, were proposals advocated by Mr R. M. Algie, director of the New Zealand Freedom Association, in a luncheon address to the Auckland Junior Chamber of Commerce.

"After the war we will get nowhere if we set up in opposing camps in our own domestic democracy and shoot at each other," said Mr Algie. "There is need of co-operation in a proper spirit."

"People sometimes object to the abolition of party politics, suggesting that we would never get continuity of policy, but we can see how much of that we have had in recent years.

Check to Progress "The Legislative Council is so nuch dead wood, and a check to the progress of the democratic machine, which should function quickly and efficiently.

"Parliament should be a place where the busiest man in the community could serve, and thousands of pounds could be saved by abolishing such procedure as the Addressin-Reply debate," said Mr Algie.

Consideration was advisable of a national council of say nine men, who could do the thinking, research, reporting and recommending for Parliament. They could be nominated and elected in a certain way and given standing qualification and given standing qualification such as that possessed by judges, but no executive powers. Council could institute proposals and consider others sent to it by Parliament, which, reduced in numbers and properly elected on some system of proportionate representation

"This is an appeal to the manhood of Hastings. Men of average physical strength and health are needed, and urgently needed—no matter whether ex-service men or civilians, so long as they are over the age of 16 and not burdened with years—then there is a place for them in the Hastings Battalion of the Home Guard.

Ride Everyicas and properly elected on some system

"This would get rid of some of the dead wood," said Mr Algie.
"Men can and will do the thinking

Mr Algie said there was a definite

NATIONAL COUNCIL NEW ZEALAND FULFILLING OBLIGATIONS TO EMPIRE

Magnificent Record Of The Dominion's Air Force Is Reviewed

By Telegraph-Press Association DUNEDIN, Nov. 8.

A review of the manner in which New Zealand is fulfilling its obligations under the Empire Air Training Scheme was given by the Minister of Defence (the Hon. F. Jones) in a speech prior to the commencement of a concert by the Royal New Zealand Air Force Band in the Town Hall to-night.

Mr. Jones said that the fact that the Dominion now had 5700 men in training for the Air Force would give the public an idea of the important contribution the country was making to the Empire's mighty air effort. There were more than 1000 New Zealand airmen serving in Great Britain at the present time, he continued, and of these 45 had been decorated by his Majesty the King for distinguished service.

Next year New Zealand would have 10,000 men in training and would send overseas no fewer than 4500 pilots and aircraftsmen, some of whom would go direct to Great Britain, while others would be sent to Canada for further training. "New Zealand's war effort has been splendid," Mr Jones said. "Many of our men are overseas waiting to play their part in various fields of activity. The invasion of Great Britain may never come, but if it does our forces are there to assist the Mother Country.

MEDICAL BOARD MINISTER REVIEWS THE FARM LABOUR PROBLEM

War Has Created A Difficult Situation, Says The Hon. P. C. Webb

> By Telegraph—Press Association WELLINGTON, Nov. 8.

"If ever the farm labour problem has been honestly tackled by the Government it has been so dealt with by Labour," said the Minister of Labour (the Hon. P. C. Webb) in a review of the position throughout New Zealand.

"This season has been particularly difficult because in spite of all that Manpower Committees have done, thousands of farm workers have gone into the military forces. The withdrawal of these men from industry has intensified the problem of meeting the demand for farm workers. Much has been done to meet the abnormal situation."

"Although we do not claim to nave solved all the problems, it can be claimed that the Government has adopted new measures to ensure that farmers get the necessary labour to maintain production which is an essential part of the country's war effort," said Mr Webb. "Steps war effort," said Mr Webb. "Steps have been taken to enable farmers to obtain seasonal workers without delay. This year farmers distant from the placement offices may apply direct to local bodies employing Scheme 13 labour. In the past application had to be made through the State Placement Officer, who had to communicate with the local body and this meant a certain amoun

Some of the other measures the Government had taken were outlined by Mr Webb.

"What is known as Scheme 4F provides for subsidies to farmers who employ less experienced men," he said. "The subsidy is 30/- a week for the first six months and 15/- a week for the second half year. By that subsidy we have encouraged the employment of more than 800 men whom farmers would not otherwise have employed.

"Then we have arranged for temporary accommodation to be supplied by the Public Works Department for married men and single Less Experienced Labour

"Then we have arranged for temporary accommodation to be supplied by the Public Works Department for married men and single farm workers. The latest return showed that 315 units of accommodation have been provided through the facilities provided by the Government. Further applications are being received which will be dealt with expeditiously. In addition there is the farm housing scheme, under which farmers can obtain financial assistance.

Two small sons of Mr E. W. Led obtained gunpowder from some schoolmates and attached a fuse to investigate. An explosion occurred and both boys were badly burnt on the face and head.

The son of Mr Arthur Hurtey, aged 18 months, pulled a cord at tached to an electric jug full of hot water which poured down his neck, scalding his arms, back and chest. The latest report is that he is doing as well as can be expected.

Work For Married Men "Another point is that to encour age the employment of married men an allowance of f1 a week is paid to men separated from their fam-llies. More than 100 men are re-ceiving this allowance in cases where married quarters are not available."

The Minister also referred to assistance given to farmers under the scheme known as 4B, which aims a the development and improvement of farm lands. Assistance is available up to 75 per cent of the labour cost for land clearing, drainage, sub-divisional fencing, top-dressing of difficult country, etc.

DETAILS OF CATTLE DRIVE

Patriotic Fund Appeal

EFFORT SHOULD BE BIG SUCCESS

Details of what promises to be one of the most successful efforts in the f1,000,000 "heart-to-heart" appeal were outlined yesterday afternoon by Mr A. Kirkpatrick, chairman of the committee which has in hand the stock drive for cattle. The sale of cattle thus donated will take place on Wednesday, November 20, at the Stortford Lodge saleyards.

"The collection and bringing in of the stock will be carried out by the supervisors of the various areas into which the district has been divided," said Mr Kirkpatrick. "Drovers of Hastings have met, and generously have offered their services in this work as their donation to the fund.

Selling Free of Charge "The cattle will be sorted according to age and description, and will be marketed, free of all charges, by the Stock Auctioneers' Association."
All stock donated in the area covered by the Havelock North Subzone Patriotic Committee would be sold with the rest and the proceeds.

as follows:

"'I am reminded that there was a rumour that Professor Algie, the greatest political failure, and the most expensive failure, I believe, was going to contest this seat.'
"The possibility of my contesting the Waipawa seat was not a rumour at the time when your address was delivered. It was a well-known and widely-published fact. So also were my reasons for declining the invitation that had been extended to me. "I regret very much that you should have found it necessary to follow the time-worn practice of seeking to disguise your own weak case by making personal attacks upon those who happen to oppose you.

"However, as you have seen fit to introduce into your campaign speech an entirely irrelevant matter, and as you have chosen to give widespread within to a passonal attack that is publicity to a personal attack that is as unjustifiable as it is false, I now offer you the choice of either of the following alternatives: (a) To withdraw these remarks with such a measure of publicity as you may consider to be appropriate and fair, or (b) To test the value of our rival philosophies by taking the platform with me in a debate upon any one of the undermentioned aspects of Government policy. "If you should choose the second of these alternatives I am willing that such a debate should take place anywhere in the Waipawa electorate, and I am quite indifferent as to whether the meeting is thrown oper to the public generally or is restricted to your own supporters admitted by ticket or otherwise.

"The subjects which I submit for your consideration, and from which I challenge you to select any one,

OFFICIAL OPENING

Famous Coronation Picture

The huge Coronation picture measuring 15ft 6in by 9ft 6in, is undoubtedly the most compelling feature of the Centennial Exhibition of New Zealand Art, which was officially opened at the Hawke's Bay Museum and Art Gallery at Napier yester-day. The weight of the canvas of this picture, without frame, is 3cwt. and the picture travels in a special case weighing two tons.

When the Prime Ministers of the various Dominions commissioned Mr Frank Salisbury, C.V.O., R.P., to reproduce on canvas an artist's conception of the Coronation in Westminster Abbey, the painter probably cid not foresee the long journeys overseas that his work would make.

With its tremendous scope and ts rich but restrained treatment of the Abbey interior, the giant can-vas needed specially contrived back stretchers to keep it extended. Its frame travels separately in another substantially case 18ft 2in long, and before each exhibition the frame has to be pieced together and bolted for to be pieced together and bolted for the reception of the picture.

Old and New The exhibition comprises some 400 The exhibition comprises some 400 paintings depicting every phase of New Zealand life and history from the visit of Abel Tasman until the present day. The art styles of the earlier periods contrast strangely with some of the more modern work, but all is of absorbing interest as a portrayal of the country and its people and its people.

It has taken a week for the pictures to be hung at the Art Gallery, and when the display closes on No. vember 19 it will take another week to pack them in readiness for the next stage of the journey.

In declaring the exhibition officially open yesterday afternoon the Mayor of Napier (Mr T. W. Herwick) cock) expressed appreciation of the action of the Art Society in arranging to stage the display in its building. The pictures were typical of New Zealand, he said, and it was to be hoped that the public of Hawke's Bay would take advantage of the op-portunity of viewing a unique cola great deal in cultural subjects," Mr Barnard added.

The exhibition had been arranged by the Government as part of its Centennial celebrations, said Mrs Murray Fuller, who is in charge of the pictures. The paintings were most valuable in that they were a permanent record of conditions in the early days, more lasting and less liable to change than the spoken or even the written word. They demonstrated the transition from the early olonial period to the present, and illustrated the change in both styles and ideas.

Appreciation Of Gallantry Of British Seamen In Wartime

By Telegraph—Press Association WELLINGTON, Nov. 8.

In appreciation of the gallantry of British seamen in never failing to take their ships to sea despite the increased menaces of present-day warfare, a movement has been launched in Wellington with a view to seeing that this service on behalf of the Empire is recognised in the same way as that of the Navy, Army and Air Force.

The committee has been named the Overseas Seamen's Gift Committee.

Mr D. J. Turrell was elected pre-ident and captain F. A. McIndoe chairman at the first meeting.

It was decided to send a letter to the National Patriotic Council pointng out the service which seamer are performing on behalf of the Em pire, and suggesting that crews of ships leaving New Zealand for Bri-tish and foreign ports should receive gift parcels in the same way as men of the three fighting services.

Cr. Murray said there was a definite shortage of houses and pointed out that it was the publicity that brought the applications.

The letter was received.

Attention was drawn to the untidy state of the War Memorial Ground and a suggestion was made that the work should be undertaken by the Borough Staff or that a contract be arranged for an outsider to look after Nelly Jull Park and the War Memorial Grounds. It was decided that this matter be referred to the reserves committee for a report and also the question of completing the concreting of the path from High Street and the placing of seats in Nelly Jull Park.

"Daily Mail" Special Service.

WAIROA. Despite the war the Labour Day Picnic Committee is making every endeavour to assure that every per-son in the Wairoa district, living son in the Wairoa district, within reach of the rail, shall have the opportunity of spending a day at the beach. In the hope that the weather will be more settled than it usually is on Labour Day, the Picnic Committee is holding the picnic on the King's Birthday, Monday, November 25. Because of the restrictions in the use of petrol this year the commit-tee expects that last year's record crowd will be exceeded and is mak-ing arrangements accordingly.

At the meeting of the committee held on Wednesday evening last, the train committee reported that arrangements with the Railway Derangements with the Railway Department were practically completed. The issue of the family ticket last year was so successful that the committee decided to make the same concession this year. The train this year would take the passengers right to the beach. A sub-committee comprised of ladies were authorised to complete their arrangements for a stall on the beach for the sale of ice-cream and soft drinks. An attractive programme of events had tractive programme of events had been drawn up, the children being catered for by races, sand-building contest and a treasure-hunt. Other items on the programme include a freezing workers' championship, Labour Day championship for both men and women and, providing enough support is forthcoming, bathing beauty contest.

NATURE NOTES

THE HANDSOME SUGAR PINE

(By L. W. McCASKILL)

Among all David Douglas's tree discoveries in western North America, he took most pride in that of the sugar pine, Pinus lambertiana, to him "the most beautiful and immensely grand tree." One of the first he discovered in 1826 in Oregon proved to be the largest in existence. It was 245ft. high and 18ft. in diameter, truly the king of the pines. In addition to being the biggest of all pines, sugar pine is one of the most handsome.

It should find a place in all our larger parks. In its natural home it is confined to a narrow strip about 1000 miles long in Oregon and California. It reaches perfection in the Yosemite region, where I saw it associated with yellow pines, incense cedars, and big trees, a splendid quartet.

The straight cylindrical trunk of mature trees frequently rises 50 to 80ft. to the first few long horizontal limbs which form the base of a wide crown. These great branches sweep outward and downward in graceful curves. The deep blue-green needles which have a whitish tinge occur in groups of five. They are 2½ to 4in. long, stout, stiff, and twisted tomake a complete turn.

The cones during the first year are purple in colour and stand erect. By August of the second year they turn and hang down. Normally they turn and hang down ward and down term of the second year they turn and hang down of the second year they turn and hang down. Pam's Letter

Dear Girls and Boys:

I know that during the last few weeks quite a number of you have been learning all about Dr. Barnardo's Homes at school where you have been visited by Mrs Dutton, the New Zealand travelling secretary. No doubt there are also many who have not heard anything, so I thought I would tell you a very little about it.

Dr. Barnardo was a little man with a very big heart and he began his work in London nearly 75 years ago. In those days poor little children received no education and life was very hard for

Dr. Barnardo became very interested in these poor children, many of whom had no parents and lived just like beggars. He tried to get to know many of them and those who had no money and no homes he cared for and so began his very first

He loved the children and he worked all his life for them and now at the Homes especially kept for this purpose no destitute child is ever refused admission and they take the poor little ones who are delicate, crippled, blind, deaf or dumb and do everything possible to keep or cure them.

Many of the children who work hard do very well later on and there are very many of them now fighting for their country.

We in New Zealand can pay a small subscription and join the Barnardos Helpers' League and we will know that by doing so we are helping some poor little child with no home to be looked after and made happy and well. Next time any Playmates have a few pennies to spare I hope they will remember this.

FINDING A FAIRY Darby And Joan Beautiful Night HOUSE

When the sun was overhead at noon

An Original Poem By Lillian Stanley

When the sun was overhead at noon to-day,
I followed through the forest a little path of clay,
When I came to the end what do you think I found?
A tiny fairy house stood there upon the ground,
There it stood right at my feet
With doors and windows all complete O, beautiful night, you are so still Is it yours or some other's will, Sometimes you are dark, sometimes Why is it so? O beautiful night.

Way up high the golden stars Glitter, whether it be Venus or Mars, Make the night a little more light For thee, O beautiful night.

The round, yellow, friendly moon, Her face will show in thee very soon Moon and stars they make more light
For thee, O beautiful night.

The two kittens who live here came up the lemon tree to the nest when I was away, and when I came back instead of finding my babies I found—I found the kittens lying in the nest. Here she was suddenly overwhelmed with sorrow and burst out weeping again. When she had quietened down, she went on. "Oh, and not a baby to be seen. know those kittens have killed them and I was so proud of my first babies. To think that they should all be killed like this!" She stopped sobbing after she had got over her first moments of grief, and I urged her to come over to our home for a rest. This she did willingly and while she was resting I slipped back to her nest to look for her babies. The kittens were now gone from the to her nest to look for her babies. The kittens were now gone from the nest and there were several people searching round the tree. I knew that they were looking for Mrs. Speckle-Breast's babies for her and I also knew they would not harm them if they did find them. I sat on the fence and watched. One climbed up to the nest by aid of a step-ladder and looked in the nest, calling to the others that it was empty. After searching diligently one called out "I have found one," and with a cry of joy gave it to the one on the ladder to return to the nest. So busy were they at their job that they did not notice the big black cat strolling lazily towards them. The little bird when put in the nest simply refused to stay, and it was not long before to stay, and it was not long before it was down on the ground again. They replaced it but it just repeated

They replaced it but it just repeated the performance. The little girl was still hunting for another baby, though they did not know if there were any more, when she gave a cry of anger and slapped the cat hard. "Oh," she said, "it found another bird for us and it was only sniffing it. The bird hasn't been touched." She held it up and it was put beside its mate in the nest. Yet a third one was found, and the kittens were playing with the fourth one, which they had killed.

The nest was left in peace, for the people went into the house. Seeing this I flew back to Mrs Speckle-Breast and told her the glad news, season.

In the days after the Boer Warmany cabs were to be seen in the streets of London and many of the horses were from the cavalry.

One day a gentleman hailed a cab some distance from the Paddington Station and asked the driver if horself of the station in five could get him to the station in five

The driver replied that he would try but did not think he could do

However, the gentleman, who was an ex-cavalry officer, saw the ear mark designating that the horse had been in the cavalry, so he said to the cabman: "You listen to me, and I will show you that the horse can I will show you that the horse can

I will show you that the horse can do it."
With that he jumped in the cab and shouted: "The company will advance, charge!" The horse immediately broke into a gallop and when they got to the station, the cavalryman shouted "Halt!"
The horse stopped so suddenly that the cabman nearly took a dive off his high seat. The station was reached with several seconds to spare.

On another day the same cabman was asked by another man to get to the station in a hurry and he said he could do it. He shouted the magic word "charge" and when they got to the station he had forgotten the word "halt." In dismay he called to his passenger, "Jump, man, jump, I've forgotten the word to stop him."

"Busy Bee," Hastings: I thought your snowballing sketch was very good, "Busy Bee." Are you especially fond of drawing? Also I loved hearing about your naughty little kittens and I hope they have good homes now. I know exactly what your Koala bear is like because when I was in Australia I saw the real ones and loved them.

"Pluto," Hastings: Yes, "Pluto," I thought also that it was very nice to meet you in the office the other evening because I like to know all my Playmates if I can. I was most interested to hear about your Nana's farm and I'm sure the orchard will be lovely later on. I am sorry I made a mistake with your birthday date.

Lillian Stanley, D.S.O., Hastings: I was most interested to read your letter from England, Lillian, and will return it later on. I am glad that you had such a good day at the Labour Day Sports and won some prizes. Yes, Christmas will be here quite soon now and one must begin to think about it.

"Gay Boy," Mohaka: I am so glad that you enjoyed yourself at the show and that you saw our "Daily Mail" stall—I was not there, "Gay Boy," but I wish I could have met you. You now have 60 marks so do try very hard and see how soon you can reach 100.

Racegoers Assured Of Keen Sport At Greenmeadows

By "MOTUROA"

Racing at Greenmeadows, Riccarton and Avondale to-day will hold Dominion-wide interest and, while the opening day of the Napier Park Racing Club's fixture is of paramount importance to Hawke's Bay racing enthusiastis, the opening day of the New Zealand Cup meeting will claim much attention from this district. Weather conditions are unsettled in the North Island, but there has been no rain in Canterbury and the track at Riccarton is likely to be found hard and fast to-

The going will be good at Greenmeadows, too, unless heavy rain falls over-night, and, given a good day, the Napier Park Racing Club should see new figures recorded on the totalisator. The win-and-place machine will be in use for the first time in many years in Hawke's Bay and the splendid fields carded suggest that this system of betting should prove very Hawke's Bay's main interest in the New Zealand Cup to-day will be the Hawke's Bay Cup winner, The Ring, but that promising lightweight, Serenata, is owned in Hastings also. Endorsement will carry much local support in the Stewards' Handicap, while Poutatau, Blandisher, Oragon, Arabic, Varuna and Lambourn are other Hawke's Bay horses engaged on the opening day of the fixture. The Hawke's Bay team should not return empty-handed.

A big improvement in his jumping was shown by Lucullus Boy at Bulls and, while he did not stay on too well there, he is sure to be all the better for his race. He will appreciate the easier track conditions also.

Southern Blood has not raced for some time, but Son and Heir, who won at Hastings, ran well at Trentham and was narrowly beaten on the final day of that meeting. Morning Flight has jumped well in private, but may be reserved for the main handicap. Lacan and Collodion would need to improve on their form at Hastings, though Lacan ran a fair third at Gisborne. Kathbella has a solid impost here, but she is a really good mare and there is evidence that she is right back to her best form. She won in a canter at Opaki with 9.5 and ran a wonderful third at Trentham with 9.1. Kathbella looks improved by her racing and, as she is a genuine performer, a stout effort can be anticipated from her to-day. Nora Gregor will be bracketed with the top-weight and this speedster will assure a strong early pace that will play into the hands of her stablemate. Nora Gregor has not raced since she ran a third at Hastings last June, but she will keep them all busy while her condition lasts.

Royal Star II would have to be respected if he takes on this race in preference to the sprint, for he won with 9.0 at Hawera on Labour Day. Yogi stands out as the class horse in this field and, although a bad foot has interrupted his preparation, he will carry the confidence of bettors in this event. He listed among the winners again.

Gold Court ran solid races at 2 Trentham last month despite the fact that he was suffering from a ing, but it is impossible to over-look the fact that she is a class mare when right. She can usually be depended upon for a good race on her home track and it will be remembered that she won this race two years ago. Passaform may not start unless there is rain, while the consistent Sword-stick will probably find the distance too far. However, The Ring is bred on good staying lines. St. Cloud is galloping well and is in form though he' failed unaccountably at Motukarara on Saturday. The ruling favourite is Sir Beau, but he does not impress as being another Beaulivre and the fact that he has been troubled with a bad foot will not improve his chances. He has his stiffest task to date ahead of him to win to-day.

stiffest task to date ahead of him to win to-day.

Enrich makes as much appeal as Sir Beau and he likes the track for he equalled the five furlong record last November. Endorsement is a good mare from whom can be expected a solid effort. She raced well at Trentham and is improving all the time. Not Out won impressively the first day at Trentham and is right back to his best form. He comes in on a nice weight too.

Belie Cane is a doubtful starter, but Don't Forget must be respected and there will be some support for Gold Flight, who has been reeling off some smart gallops. Kentucky would have a better chance here than in the hack mile. However, a preference is expressed for the scrip of
