HELP FROM GERMANY

Britain Advised To Help Greeks Still Further

(United Press Association-Copyright.) (Received November 18, 10.55 p.m.) LONDON, Nov. 18.

"The Times" correspondent issues a warning that the improved diplomatic prospects in the Balkans that should result from the success of the Greek arms should not blind observers to the prospects of certain over riding considerations.

"The outcome of the campaign is increasingly a question of air superiority, whereby supplies for the Italian air force in Albania may be cut off. There is the serious possibility that the enemy will be able to employ important aerial reinforcements of the Morebel Redecible and forcements of the Morebel Redecible and forcemen forcements after Marshal Badoglio's conferences with General

"From calculations of the carrying capacity of the Simplon railway, such reinforcements are hardly likely to be troops, although General de Bono, after attending manoeuvres in Albania, declared that it was impossible to attack Greece with fewer than 1,000,000 men.

TOKYO, Nov. 17. It is reliably reported that the Imperial Conference on Wednesday decided to give Chungking "a last chance" to consider its attitude to Japan, upon which, if it fails to reconsider within a certain period, Japan will formally recognise the Wang Ching-wei regime.

It is unimpeachably stated that the Foreign Minister (Mr Matsuoka) inormed the United States Ambassador (Mr J. C. Grew) on October 11 that he was personally exhorting contact with Marshal Chiang Kaishek for a final offer. It is understood that he requested Washington All Constructions Costing not to interfere in the peace attempt.

RUGBY, Nov. 17. Even in modern news with all its norrors chivalry is not yet dead, and berhaps it is most evident among the British "Knights of the Air."

The following story may be taken as a typical illustration.

An Italian flying-boat was shot down in recent operations and, as the aircraft struck the water, two members of the crew of five were unable to extricate themselves and were drowned. The other three as were drowned. The other three, a naval sub-lieutenant, a sergeant-major and a wireless operator, managed to scramble into the collapsible from Greek soil on Sunday.

"The Times" Athens correspondent says that General Soddu appears to be drawing reinforcements from Scutari, Elbasan and Alvona, but the rapid Greek thrusts are hampering the regroupment of his forces. General Sodhu must also be perplexed to discover the direction from which the main Greek attacks are coming. He is threatened in Epirus by a Greek thrust on the flanks and also harried in the Pindus sector, while his position is growing desperate at Koritza. Local counter attacks designed to test the strength of the Greek thrust have been repulsed everywhere."

Operating from bases on the French Atlantic coast, the Germans hope to nullify much of this American help by the energetic use of big bombers and a new type of long-range

Aviation authorities contend that what Britain needs is a great number of lang-range fighters to serve the dual purpose of escorting daylight raiders on Germany and the interception off Ireland of German bombers. The type of aircraft urgently needed are fighters with a top speed of 400 miles an hour, and a cruising range of at least 2000 miles. They must be heavily armed with cannon and machine-guns.

100 In One Attack
An early account of Sunday's fighting records how about 100 enemy aircraft took part in one attack. About 9 a.m., various groups of enemy fighters, with two small formations of bombers flying close together, came in over the Kent coast and up the Thames Estuary. A few crossed the Suffolk coast, but the estuary seemed to be the main objective.

While the rest of his squadron were attacking one formation, a single Hurricane pilot became separated and attacked another. He had just had time to persuade this second lot that they had better go back to France when their escort, a number of Messerschmitt 110's attacked him from the rear.

Forty Routed
Two Spitfire squadrons routed more than 40 enemy fighters. Sixteen Messerschmitt 109's, in pairs, flew in front, followed by 20 more in line abreast, with a dozen Henkel 113's a little above them. The Messerschmitts did not see any Spitfires until one of their number had already been destroyed.

Between them, these two squadrons accounted for eight of the enemy. Six were seen to crash into the sea, one more went down in flames, and the eighth exploded in mid-air.

GARDEN FETE AT MOUNT VERNON

Funds For Air Force Queen

GATHERING AT WAIPUKURAU

Most Successful Party

In the brilliant sunshine of a real Hawke's Bay summer day the grounds of Mt. Vernon, the home of Mr and Mrs J. W. Harding, of Wai- 5.0: pukurau, presented a picturesque scene on Saturday afternoon, when a garden fete was held to raise funds for the Air Force Queen, Miss Cherry Raymond. The party attracted a large number of folk who came from most parts of the dis-

Arranged under the beautiful old English trees were many stalls loaded with goods which found a 2YA Wellington ready sale. The sweet stall in charge of Mesdames P. F. Wall, G. B. Lowes, T. Staines and Misses Joan Parsons and G. Kennedy proved very popular with the small children. Close by Mesdames G. W. McKenzie, J. Paton and Miss F Tucker spent a busy afternoon selling soft drinks and ices. Further along a bring-and-buy stall in tertainers. 3.30: Weather report.

GOOD GIRLS GO TO Summer and a summer a summer and a summer a summer and a summer an PARIS"

Gay Comedy, With Drama "Scandal Sheet"

Comedy in the continental manner, smart and sophisticated "Good Girls Go to Paris" is the most original laughfest of the year. The new film now at the Cosy Theatre, Hastings, co-stars Melvyn Douglas and Joan Blondell, the brilliant principals of the sensational "There's Always a Woman."

"Good Girls Go to Paris" finds its major entertainment values in the affairs of a young Englishman, professor of Greek at a midwestern university, who finds in the Aesop fables the answers to the many per-plexities he encounters in American life; and in the escapades of a pert, blonde waitress who has every in-tention of going to Paris, but whose conscience prevents her from going vir, the "gold-digger" route. "Good Girls Go to Paris" is the story of a crotchety multi-millionaire whose hypochondriac tendencies are vanhypochondriac tendencies are vanquished when the waitress comes to the rescue with a flannel stocking; it is the story of a spoiled young woman, the Englishman's flancee, who loves the butler's son. It is the story of a spoiled young man, and of a gigolo, and of a gangster. It is, in effect, the story which fits its cast like the proverbial glove.

Bringing one of the top melodramas of the year to the screen
"Scandal Sheet," is the second feature. Moving at a whirlwind clip throughout, the film maintains the ultra-modern tempo of its background, a newspaper which is none too particular over the manner in which it obtains its headline stories.
Featured in the new film is Otto
Kruger as a dynamic and relentless

Featured in the new film is Otto Kruger as a dynamic and relentless newspaper publisher who makes his tabloid an important factor in the daily life of a big city. Totally different from Kruger's usual roles, his characterisation is amazingly realistic, imbued with feeling and vitality.

"ADVENTURE IN DIAMONDS"

Thrilling Secret Service Story

George Brent and Isa Miranda are co-starred in "Adventure In Dia-monds," a thrilling drama of dia-mond mines and secret service, mond mines and secret service, which screens to-day at the Regent Theatre, Hastings.

A big liner steams slowly into the beautiful harbour of Cape Town, South Africa. On board is Colonel J. W. Lansfield, of the British Secret Service, whose furlough in England has been cut short because of the mounting theffs from the great diamounting thefts from the great dia-mond mines near Cape Town. On yoman, whose constant companion is a magnificent police dog. Every man on the ship, including Colonel Lansfield, has endeavoured to make Lansfield, has endeavoured to make the lady's acquaintance... with a signal lack of success.

Among the officials boarding the liner before she docks is Captain Stephen Dennett, a debonair, charming young man in the Royal Air Force, who is anxious to hear the news from home from his good friend Lansfield. In high spirits both men repair to the ship's bar, and there Dennett sees for the first time the beautiful woman whose name, Lansfield whispers, is Felice Falcon.

Miss Joan Hunter Honoured

Bowls of Iceland poppies, roses and honeysuckle made an attractive decoration in the drawing and din-ing rooms of Miss Jose Cornford's home, Gladstone Road, Napier, when she was hostess at a linen gift evening in honour of Miss Joan Hunter, whose wedding takes place on Thursday. The evening was spent in competitions and games, the winners of the competitions being the Misses Ailsa McLeay, Nalda Sinclair and Joan Somerset-Smith.

During the evening a dainty sup-per was served after which Miss Hunter opened her parcels revealing many lovely pieces of linen for her new home, for which she thanked her friends.

Miss Cornford wore a smart frock of Paris tan linen patterned with white flowers, and Miss Hunter chose a pretty frock of dusty pink and navy blue bayadere striped silk Among those present were:

Misses J. Cornford, J. Hunter, J.
Somerset-Smith, N. Sinclair, A. McLeay, L. Cunningham, Helen Wright
J. Boland, J. Georgetti and N.
Mackie.

SUCCESSFUL FLOWER SHOW AT PAKOWHAI

Women's Institute Members Arrange Fine Effort

The annual flower show of the Pakowhai Women's Institute was held in the Church Hall and, as in former years, was an outstanding success. Although weather conditions lately have not been good, the flowers and vegetables were quite up to standard.

Mrs Mitchell, the president of the Institute, welcomed visitors and thanked exhibitors and helpers for their splendid effort. Mrs W. Bridgman, Havelock North, president of Northern Hawke's Bay Federation of Women's Institutes, opened the show and judged the needlework, which she considered very creditable.

bers on the splendid entries. She also made several suggestions for this section for future shows.

Mr Wilson, Mahora, said how pleased he was to be able to help the institute in judging the flowers and wished members every success. Mesdames Mitchell and Gabrieltreasurer of the institute, had a very

Rhythm March Display SPORTS AT WAIROA

Hukarere Girls' Demonstration

Those who saw the annual inter-house sports at Napier in Novem-ber of last year will remember the spectacular display of rhythm marching provided by Maori girls from Hukarere College. This year 50 girls are to travel to Wairoa on Saturday to present their display at Saturday to present their display at the afternoon and evening performthe afternoon and evening performances of the interhouse sports there. The organisers of the sports are fortunate in having the Hukarere girls as an added feature on their programme, for their marching display last year at Napier was accounted by many who saw it as probably without parallel in Naw robably without parallel in New American Plan

A brilliant display of concerted precision work, it is based on the style made famous by students of Annapolis Military Academy in the United States, and is considered to

The girls will travel to Wairoa by a special train leaving Napier at midday on Saturday, returning the same night after the final perform-a splendid example of physical

Another interesting feature of the Wairoa sports which was commented upon yesterday by an official connected with the organisation is that nected with the organisation is that for the first time in the district, and probably for the first time in such competitions in New Zealand, a team made up entirely of Maori girls will take part in the contests. This team, it is understood, is competing under the name of Takitimu. It is hoped it will pave the way for more such teams at future sports meetings.

Money Goes

Some indication of how fa Some indication of how far £1,000,000 will go in meeting patriotic fund requirements is gained from a survey of the voluntary contributions made and expended in various schemes during the last war. When the figures are studied it becomes clear that the organisers of the £1,000,000 appeal now in operation throughout New Zealand have not asked for too much equality basis, however, the figures are expressive of current needs.

; Mrs M. August, 117, 2.

Men: W. F. Turner, 115 points, 1;
I. Collett, 110, 2.

Afternoon tea was served by the ommittee.

W. Cuthbertson, honorary secretary, at an early date.

Freviously acknowledged 159 15 6 goods within New Zealand amounted to collector, Mr F. de Stactory, and Collectory, and Collectory, and Collectory, and Collectory, and Collectory, and Collecto shows that £5,500,000 was collected by the various patriotic societies.

More than £1,000,000 of that was absorbed by comforts, while general relief and the Red Cross each took another three-quarters of a million. For Belgian relief more than £450,000 was required and and and the second s than £450,000 was required and another expenditure was undertaken for equipment (including farewells, receptions, presentations to soldiers, and camp and hospital buildings),

2 0 0 payments to other Allies, and navy 2 0 0 relief. At the end of March 1920 there was a balance in hand of 50 0 0 slightly more than £1,500,000. Sum for Hospitals In addition to these amounts the sum received by the Internal Affairs Department for transmission abroad for hospital ships, New Zea-land sick and wounded and other special purposes, was just under £70,000. War expenses contributed to the Government by various people at the outbreak of war totalled £160,000, and the Dominion schools' contribution to the Belgian Children's Fund was more than £18,000. This brought the total cash collected within the Dominion to a total of £5,695,000.

The value of goods, stock, produce and comforts shipped by the Government on behalf of donors was officially estimated at £558,000, while the Government subsidy to the Belgian fund was £228,000, this making New Zealand's relief contribution in the last war to a grand total of nearly £6,500,000.

The figures given in this analysis take no account of the money and goods collected and forwarded by private individuals, but they provide striking evidence of the steady and insistent drain which was imposed upon the generosity of the New Zealand people to meet general patriotic needs.

Since the war the greater part of the balance of patriotic funds held in New Zealand has been spent in various ways, a fact which has em-phasised to the organisers of pre-sent-day appeals the need of funds for after-care purposes.

To-day the calls are more urgent and more frequent, and the scope of the administration more wide spread, but with £1,000,000 in hand, the various provincial patriotic councils will be enabled for the time being to meet all reasonable require ments in the way of comforts for the troops, help also in the difficult re-adjustment period when the men are returning from active service to civilian life, and be able to assist when necessary the relief of sufferers from bombing in the United Kingdom and Empire overseas.

MEDITERRANEAN REVIEW

The Admiralty's detailed review of the losses suffered by Great Britain and Italy respectively in the Mediterranean leads to the extremely interesting conclusion that the Italian navy, without fighting a single battle of any consequence, has been more seriously crippled than anyone would have believed possible when Italy first entered the war. When the Italian air casualties are taken into consideration, it becomes plain that Italy, beyond gaining such slices of French territory as Germany saw fit to give her, has achieved nothing in the conflict. There is, of course, the Italian "success" in British Somaliland to be taken into account, but if Signor Mussolini is able to derive any consolation from a British strategic withdrawal necessitated by the defection of an ally, he is welcome to call the Italian advance into Somaliland the "conquest of a great and wealthy British colony" as long as he pleases.

The predicament of Italy, which has been neatly capped by the tremendous blow she suffered at Taranto, is already evoking a response among the remaining neutral and quasineutral States of southern Europe. Of these States, Spain is by far the most important strategically, and it is curious to find Spain, long regarded as being irretrievably lost in the Axis web, making spasmodic gestures of friendship towards

At the present time, Spain is probably the most harassed of the so-called neutrals. She had scarcely begun to recover from the years of civil war when the great international conflict broke out. She is still beset by undercurrents of internal political unrest, and, since the fall of France, she has been placed in alarming proximity to Nazi Germany, a Power with wide experience in the art of keeping smaller "friends" toeing

So far the position is plain, and Spain, between two terrifying friends, is by turns badgered and cajoled, while the prospect of a possible united assault on Gibraltar is dangled before her like a carrot before a recalcitrant mule.

But if Spain is so misguided as to throw in her lot with the Axis and to submit completely to the dictation of Berlin, she automatically becomes vulnerable to attack by the British Navy in the Atlantic and the Mediterranean. No country possesses a coastline less capable of effective defence than that of Spain, and that unfortunate nation would face a pretty prospect if she had to meet the British Navy and Air Force while the implacable might of the German war machine guarded the north-eastern frontier along the Pyrenees.

The Italian disasters at sea and the complete failure of the first Italian attempt to invade Greece have given Spain, in common with the Axis, a great deal to think about. British domination of the Eastern Mediterranean has never been questioned, but the fall of France meant a serious weakening of Allied power in the west. That weakness is now on the way to being overcome, and the object lesson of Taranto is not lost on Spain—a country which has no navy worth speaking about.

It can be assumed that the reverses in the south have a good deal to do with the vast amount of propagandist energy which is being expended on the alleged new Russo-German agreement. Probably no one outside the officialdom of the Axis and Russia will know exactly what this agreement is worth until the war is over. The German claim that Russia has promised "much greater economic support" for Germany has a familiar ring. Exactly the same thing was said in August, 1939, when Ribbentrop (who, according to B.B.C. commentators, had had experience in salesmanship as a peddler of cheap champagne) bought an agreement at the price of half of Poland. If, as Germany is never tired of claiming, Russia has been doing all she promised, why the fresh "agreement"?

Mr Baillie, who is honorary organiser of the King's Birthday carnival, said to Mr Smith: "If you will ride a draught horse in the procession, I will." Amidst laughter Mr Smith said that riding a horse was by no means new to him, but he was afraid that the dignity of the Chamber would suffer. membership by 20 or 30 at lings," said Mr H. G. Napier Wool Appraisal

The second wool appraisal of the 1940 season opened in Napier yesterday, and is expected to be completed towards the end of this week. In view of the recent wet weather, The determination of a pair of starlings to nest in a letter-box in Ellison road, Hastings, has resulted in some inconvenience to the householder and an unending task for the birds. As fast as the starlings have carried straw and scraps of other rubbish to the box and started shaping a nest, it has been cleaned out. The birds have taken exception to letters being placed in the box, and several times the mail has been found lying on the ground, apparently thrown out by the starlings. The birds show no sign of weakening in their determination to hatch their young in the letter-box, and the householder in the started the started and In view of the recent wet weather, the entry of 12,200 bales is considered quite satisfactory, and the quality is also stated to be well up to standard. Individual catalogues are as follows: Dalgety and Co. Ltd. 1321 bales, de Pelichet, McLeod and Co. Ltd. 1931 bales, Hawke's Bay Farmers' Co-op. Assn. Ltd. 2663 bales, Murray Roberts and Co. Swallowed Bottle Cap

Alexander Phillips, Taumarunui, the well-known King Country Rugby football forward, had an unpleasant experience when attempting to bite the metal cap off a bottle of home brew. The liquid blew out with such force that the cap entered his gullet. Although the cap was stuck, Mr Phillips drank the contents of the bottle in the hope of washing the cap down into the stomach. He was unsuccessful. Mr Phillips was later taken to a medi-Sir,—I think that few (if any) of those who supported the official Labour candidate will agree with your amusing "explanation" of his defeat. You attribute it to the hidden hand of the Democratic Labour Party whose "members" whose "members . . . stayed at home."

Actually the Democratic Labour Party has few members at present in the Waipawa electorate for the excellent reason that we have not attempted yet to organise it. On this occasion we left the field entirely to the two candidates, and did nothing whatever to hinder or help either of them. So please do not drag us in to explain a defeat which obviously is due to a decline of confidence in the Government.

Skeletons Found

Two complete skeletons, buried close together in sand not more than two feet below the surface, were found by borough workmen on the upper edge of Ngamotu beach, New Plymouth, last week. The discovery was made about 50 yards eastwards of Bayly road, on the road leading to the oil bore. It is believed they are the remains of Maoris buried when there was a large native settlement near the beach. The native burial ground in the locality was then probably of

PRIME MINISTERS VIEW OF WAIPAWA ELECTION

Mr Fraser Does Not Regard The Result As Indicating A Political Swing

By Telegraph—Press Association WELLINGTON, Nov. 18.

"I do not attach much political significance to it," said the Prime Minister (the Rt. Hon. P. Fraser) in commenting on the result of the Waipawa by-election. "All that can be said is that Labour has not improved its position in Waipawa since

Mr Fraser said the result indicated that in an historically conservative constituency a substantial majority was still opposed to a Labour Government, but this did not indicate any swing of popular feeling against the Labour Government, and no one could claim that a typically conservative seat held by a National Party member could be a fair test. A fair test of public opinion would be in an electorate held by Labour. While Mr Christie's vote showed a decline from that obtained in 1938, scrutiny of the previous election figures, when Labour swept the country, showed that in Waipawa substantially the same position

"Government Will Proceed" "Government Will Proceed"

Mr Fraser concluded by declaring that in any case the Government proposed to proceed with its essential measures in connection with the war effort and payment of war expenses while at the same time endeavouring to maintain the social and economic standard of the people. "It is quite prepared to leave it to the verdict of the country, and personally I have no doubt as to the people's final decision."

Mr Fraser added his appreciation increased, and independent squadfithe work of Labour supporters rons of mounted rifles had also been of the work of Labour supporters in Waipawa and the fight put up by Mr Christie.

The visiting delegation comprised men with some knowledge of the terrain in which the Italians have suffered their initial setback in their Greek campaign. They stated that the Pindus area is extremely mountainous, and is traversed by only a few passes, through deep ravines for the greater part. Defended with courage, these passes could not be won except at great cost. von except at great cost.

Towards the coast, the country was more favourable to the advance of troops, for an enemy would be able to make his own selection of able to make his own selection of attacking points, instead of being pinned to the few passes, as in the mountains. Nevertheless, there were three rivers which offered natural lines of defence, and though the Italians appeared to have passed the Kalamas, in their first rush, they had still a long way to go before their army troubled the Greek Government seriously.

The degree of assistance already given to Greece by the British forces had delighted the Greek community in New Zealand, the delega-tion stated. Every countryman would understand how difficult it must be to establish in a few days depots and encampments for the re-inforcing troops, bases for naval units, and aerodromes for Royal Air units, and aerodromes for Royal Air Force 'planes. If Greece had been guilty of un-neutral behaviour before the Italian invasion, these depots, bases, and air fields would have been made ready for occupation by the British. As it was, they had to be prepared after Mussolini's declaration of war.

Unlimited Faith in Britain "The Greek people have unlimited faith in the British Government and in the stamina of the British Empire," stated Mr Manes. "We recognise that it will take time to break down the strength of well-prepared enemies. But we have plenty of time, and we have plenty of confidence. CENTENNIAL PERIOD REVIEWED IN FULL

Minister's Praise For Part Of New Zealanders In Celebrations

Saturday saw the 100th anniversary of the issue by Queen Victoria of Letters Patent separating New Zealand from New South Wales. the manner in which they carried on the celebrations through the trials of a year of strenuous war effort."

Mr Parry's statement continues: Seen in retrospect, the Centennial, from every point of view, has been a remarkable achievement. The machinery of organisation, from the National Centennial Council down through the Provincial Councils to their zone and interzone committees, not only functioned admirably but by its ready adaptation to the needs of our patriotic effort, during the present war, has shown itself to be an almost perfect means of organising the people as a whole for the purpose of securing co-ordination of national and local effort in any great cause.

The Centennial was approached in a spirit of reverence for the pioneers, of pride in a hundred years of achievement and faith in the future of our country. It is now appropriate to review in broad outline the fruition of the four years of planning and preparation. In every porvince and in almost every locality celebrations embodied historical pageants and re-enactments of historical occasions giving scope for creative imagination in planning and carrying out programmes worthy of the great national cause.

I am pleased to express the Government's thanks to the Centennial appeal. It was only by their enthusiastic co-operation that success was achieved.

Many Memorials

The number of memorials approved by the National Centennial Council was more than 250, including various kinds of buildings, monuments, parks, playgrounds, swimn.ing baths, and tree planting. Some of the structures have architectural grandeur, they are impressive aesthetic assets. The proportion of Plunket Rooms and Women's Rest Rooms well supports the leading part taken by New Zealand in the progressive movement for the welfare of women and children, and it is natural that this fact should find widespread expression in Centennial memorials.

On the cultural side, the influence of Centennial events will reach far into the future. It has been truly said that for many New Zealanders the main memory of the Centennial ceiebrations will be the Music Festivals. For others it will be the Dramatic Festivals or the Art Exhibitions.

War-time circumstances have War-time circumstances have decided effects on the consumption of wool. Trading in Australia has shown its influence, the stores usually selling clothing freely to the men of younger ages are feeling the result of enlistment of so many of them, and business in male suitings has fallen off. The mills are busy, but their activity is largely on Government orders providing uniforms for the army, air force and navy. The fabrics require different types of wool from civilian goods, and there is less work for the pattern designer as Government materials are of plain colours.

Sheep off shears in many parts of Australia have started the growth of the new clip under adverse conditions. They did so in New South Wales in 1927, the circumstances being similar to those now prevailing. Late summer rains, however, provided a good body of feed and the clip shorn at the 1928 shearing was generally sound and of good length. If adequate feed is available from November onwards, most of the new season's wool should, therefore, be of good standard.

Sir Amyas had one race as a two-year-old, and his only placing last season was a second in the Apprentices' Handicap at Riccarton twelve months ago. However, he has been a model of consistency this season since his fourth to Don't Forget at the Christchurch Hunt meeting. In his only start at the National meeting he was third to Boloyna and he was next produced at Wingatui where he won the Trial Handicap and the Clarendon Handicap, the latter event from Airline, Spearthrust and a strong hack field.

Sir Amyas has now started 21 times for four firsts, a second and two thirds and he has won £900 in stakes.

two thirds and he has won £900 in stakes.

By Paladin, the sire of the N.Z. Cup winners Chide and Palantua, Sir Amyas is a half-brother to that former good sprinter Janet Gaynor, his dam being Beulah, by the Flaxmere Stud sire Tractor from Bonnie Lake (dam of Mobile, Roseman and Gusto), by Sunny Lake from Droski (dam of Ravenna and Overdrawn), by Stepniak from Whirlpool, by St. George from Watersprite, by Traducer from Watersprite, by Traducer from Waterwitch, by Camden from the imported Mermaid.

This is a great winning family which has produced Limerick, Ballymena, Stonyhurst, Rabbi, Cynisca, Natator, Pilliewinkie, Grand Rapids and other Cup and classic winners, and Sir Amyas shows that he possesses the family stamina.

WOODVILLE'S SUMMER MEETING

Nominations Will Close On Thursday

The Woodville Jockey Club's summer programme for December 7 and 9 is the next matter to be considered by Hawke's Bay owners and trainers, and sight should not be lost of the fact that the club is devoting all its profits to patriotic purposes.

A SUCCESSFUL VENTURE

Better Horses And Better Fields

"MOTUROA"

For the first time in a decade the Napier Park Racing Club showed a turnover of more than £10,000, and the result is most gratifying to the stewards and officers of the club who worked so hard to assure the success of the fixture. The change in the fortunes of the Napier club is a matter for congratulation and the 1940 spring meeting may have seen the change in the tide of fortunes for this sporting body.

To a very large extent the success of the meeting was due to the granerous support given by East Coast and Wellington to the generous support given by East Coast and Wellington trainers, and the visiting horses not only swelled the fields but improved the class. This tended to provide keener racing and the consensus of opinion was that the meeting was in every way enjoyable.

The Napier Park Club experimented with the win-and-place betting system, which is proving extremely popular with the betting public at present. The decision to adopt this system was not decided upon until the eleventh hour and there were naturally a number of unavoidable hitches. However, the club will be in a position at its next meeting to improve the totalisator facilities and overcome the bugbear of delay which made the last race on Saturday an hour late.

The Napier Park Racing Club has set its house in order and it is to be hoped that this spring fixture will be the pre-

Native Song impressed me last season and I am convinced that he would have been very hard to beat in the Hawke's Bay Cup last autumn but for the severe interference he received going out of the straight and again at the half-mile. In fact, he finished so well in his races that it would surprise if he did not find twelve void of stamina. In fact, he finished so well in his races that it would surprise if he did not find twelve furlongs within his reach.

I was most impressed on Saturday by the courage Native Song showed when, after making a hot early pace, and being headed at the distance by Yogi, he won going away. Shani's first win was in marked contrast to her Gisborne form, but Jim Price has this mare looking a picture at present and the veteran Hastings trainer was not caught napping when the Hunting Song mare paid her two score the first day. Shani again came from the ruck on Saturday last and her divi-dend was again very acceptable.

There was much merit in Shani's wins, but backers should not be carried away. This mare has passed the stage where further improvement can be expected. Her five successes to date aggregate only £490, so she is still eligible for hack races, but she will need very careful plac

BRILLIANT SPRINTER

Veteran Can Still Show The Way Home

By "Moturoa" Quite a few horses have a penchant for certain tracks, but the "horses for courses" rule is no better exemplified than in the case of the Acre gelding Farland, winner of the Cambridge Handicap at the Waikato meeting on Saturday. Farland has now won eight races and, all but his surprise win in races and, all but his surprise win in the King George Handicap at Ellerslie, have been achieved at Te Rapa.

Farland, who is bred from a mare named Rose Arch (presumably by Marble Arch), began racing as a four-year-old, but he has not started a great many times. In his five seasons on the Turf he has been produced on only 36 occasions for 8 firsts, 5 seconds and 1 third. In stakes he has won £2195.

On only three occasions has Farland been unplaced at Te Rapa and his record on that track reads:—

Foxola has now won at her last three starts and may improve still further.

The improving Eulogist should not be hard to place at the summer meetings.

Salutation was very sore at Riccarton, but she ran two splendid races. This Theio filly shows really good class.
