Leads Revolt In Yugoslavia: Army In

FORMER REGENT HAS FLED

New Prime Minister Strongly Pro-British

BOY RULER'S STIRRING APPEAL

"Nation Has Found Its Soul," Says Mr Winston Churchill

(By Radio) LONDON, 1 a.m.

Revolution in Yugoslavia has swept the pro-Axis Government from power. King Peter II has assumed full Royal powers and the Cabinet appointed by the former Regent (Prince Paul) has resigned.

General Dusan-Simovitch, a high Air Force officer, has been appointed Prime Minister. He is known to be strongly pro-British.

The military authorities have seized control in Belgrade and have issued a nation-wide appeal to "stand by the glorious Yugoslav Army, which is ready to defend the integrity and independence of the country."

Prince Paul is reported to have left the country, and the former Prime Minister (M. Tsvetkovitch) who took a leading part in the signing of the Axis

BRITAIN AND YUGOSLAVIA WILL MARCH TOGETHER

Mr Churchill Tells "Great News"

(By Radio) LONDON, 1 a.m. "I have great news for you. The Yugoslav nation has found its soul," said Mr Winston Churchill, addressing the Conservative Association of Great Britain.

"A revolution has taken place in Belgrade, and a new Cabinet is being formed.

"I hope and trust that the result will be a Government worthy to defend the freedom and integrity of Yugoslavia. It will make common cause with our Government, and we will march and fight together until victory is won.'

Mr Churchill gave an assurance that the new Government would receive all possible aid from Britain, and, in its own way, from the United States.

RUGBY, March 26. An Australian pilot who dived to attack nine Junkers 87's, accompanied by only one of his section, wins the D.F.C. in the latest list of R.A.F. awards. He is Flight Lieutenant Perrin, R.A.A.F.

The two 'planes, on diving to the attack, were immediately set on by 15 Messerschmitt 110's. Perrin shot down a Junkers and a Messerschmitt before a cannon shell burst in his petrol tank, covering him with petrol, setting the aircraft on fire, and slightly wounding him in the right eye.

Despite this he continued to attack another Messerschmitt at a low level until his ammunition was spent. He then crash-landed his aircrast.

GERMANS ALLEGE British Bombers Beat Off German Night Fighters

(British Official Wireless.) (Received March 27, 7.30 p.m.)

RUGBY, March 26.

While the increasing number of Nazi bombers falling victim to our night fighters attracts attention, the destruction of German night fighters by British bombers is a subject on which the public has not been greatly informed, but it is now possible to give some details of these encounters.

Again and again these night fighters are seen when R.A.F. bombers have no time to turn aside from the more urgent task of attacking their targets; but sometimes, and especially on the way home, they have some minutes to spare for a quick encounter.

When enemy night fighters have disappeared in the dark it is not always possible to say if they have been destroyed, but British crews been destroyed, but British crews on the pight of March 13 one. orrespondent.

The record of this month's en-counters with German night fighters is contained in several probable successes, as well as an encouraging number of certainties.

Burst Into Flames

Burst Into Flames

The month began well on the night of March 1, when the enemy put up many night fighters to protect Cologne. There were a number of inconclusive encounters, during which several Messerschmitts gave up the struggle and the crew of one R.A.F. bomber saw a two-engined fighter burst into flames. The enemy was held by one of his own searchlights, and disappeared.

On the same night both gunners of another bomber fired long bursts into another enemy aircraft and put it out of action. On the night of March 10 one British bomber came down low to attack an enemy-occupied aerodrome from which two Junkers 88 bombers were just taking off. The bomber had just shot up one of the Ju's when a Messerschmitt 110 appeared ahead.

Both front and rear gunners fired four bursts each at a range of 100 yards, and the Messerschmitt climbed steeply to 1000 feet, then dived and crashed to the ground.

which immediately went into a steep dive and disappeared. After another encounter, also on that night, a Messerschmitt 110 broke off the fight and a dull red glow was seen to fall seaward through the mist. The next night a bomber was immediately under a Ju 88, and the rear gunner raked it from stem to stern, pieces of the Ju falling from it the whole time.

MORE DOCTORS TAKE PATIENTS' CARDS

> Number Increasing Daily

By Telegraph—Press Association WELLINGTON, March 26. Referring to the apparent confusion in the public mind concerning the obtaining of medical benefits, the Minister of Health (the Hon. A. H. Nordmeyer) said to-day Hon. A. H. Nordmeyer) said to-day that several doctors operating the scheme had received cards incorrectly filled in. For instance, a married man with two children under 16 should get two white cards and two pink cards from the Post Office, the former for himself and wife and the latter for his children. The cards should be presented now, whether the applicant was in immediate need of treatment or not.

The number of doctors accepting cards was increasing daily, declared Mr. Nordmeyer, and in most districts applicants should have no difficulty in being accepted by some doctor. He added it was most important that each individual should present his own family's cards.

THRILLING EXPLOITS FILMED

Boasting some of the most spectacular action and sword play the screen has seen, Power's role is crammed with hard-riding, furious fighting, ardent romance and highlighted by an unforgettably realistic duel with Basil Rathbone. According to all reports Power scores tic duel with Basil Rathbone. According to all reports Power scores the greatest triumph of his career. Featured with Rathbone at the head of the brilliant supporting cast is lovely Linda Darnell as the fairest senorita in Old California, who gives her love to Zorro. Spectacularly filmed "The Mark of Zorro" also features Gale Sondergaard, Eugene Pallette, J. Edward Bromberg, Montagu Love, Janet Beecher, Robert Lowery and Chrispin Martin.

According to advance reports Director Rouben Mamoulian has captured all the danger, beauty, romance and thrills of Old California's most exciting days in "The Mark of Zorro." Against this exciting background is set the vivid romance between Power and Linda Darnell, who are together for the third time on the screen. At great expense the makers reconstructed the colourful Los Angeles of 1820 for "The Mark of Zorro." Location companies were sent into Mexico for background shots of old landmarks and trails in order to insure accurand trails in order to insure accuracy, and hundreds of extras were acy, and hundreds of added to the huge cast.

Too" has been acclaimed by picture patrons as one of the great pictures of recent years. Bette Davis and Charles Boyer have never appeared to better advantage. Warner Bros. have produced "All This and Heaven Too" on a lavish scale, sparing no efforts in making the brilliant, absorbing novel come to vibrant life on the screen. The film was directed by Anatole Litvak, whose deft artistry in handling deeply romantic themes is well known to motion picture audiences. From the brilliant co-starring team of Miss Davis and Charles Boyer down to the smallest character "bit" player the film has been cast with minute care. It is now screening at the Regent Theatre, Hastings.

"Forty Thousand Horsemen," which opens to-morrow at the Regent Theatre, Napier, a Charles Chauvel production, is destined to make the Australian Light Horse in Palestine live again. In stages emphasising a fantasia of fun and frolic, in colourful Cairo, the hilarious initiation of Gyppos into fascinations and fluctuating tunes of two-up; the stark stolidity of the Light Horse in their trek across the soulless sizzling sands to avenge a British crisis; in the muffled thunder of hoofs of the "Forty Thousand Horsemen"

Competition Grades Discussed

Daily Mail Special Service. WAIPUKURAU.

The annual meeting of the Central Hawke's Bay Rugby Sub-Union took place last night. The chairman of the Management Committee (Mr A. L. McCormick) took the chair. He reported that the financial position of the sub-union was very satisfactory. After providing £25 for flood lighting, and £11/10/- for paint, with careful handling the year ended with a small surplus of

A discussion took place in regard to affiliation of the clubs. After much discussion it was decided that the sub-union sponsor a junior and third grade competition, and at some future date the senior grade could be considered.

It was decided on the motion of Mr N. Wyley, seconded by the treasurer (Mr V. L. King) that as some clubs could not field teams through a number of men having gone overseas, each club be asked to affiliate and have a representative on the sub-union, as last year; the representative to have the power of a vote; with fees waived when no team was nominated.

The following officers were elected: Patron, Mr N. M. Paulsen (Takapau); president, Mr J. Russell (Waipukurau); vice-presidents, M. Fergusson, last evening his luncheon talk would be in lighter vain. He kept his listeners most interested when he spoke of a trip which he and his wife made in central Europe.

The speaker described first Syraceuse, the home of the Greek play and he told of visiting one of the old amphitheatres where he found that the hearing was marvellous. He told of reaching Italy and travelling in one of the trains where he and his wife became friendly with an Italian family. He spoke also of weeks in Naples, Florence, Rome and Milan and went on to describe crossing into Switzerland.

Professor Algie said that they intended to stay for three weeks in Switzerland but the three weeks extended into three months during which time they learned a very great deal from their hotel porter who proved to be a most interesting character, speaking English, French and German with no difficulty and having a great knowledge of the literature of many countries.

The Professor gave many more interesting descriptions of events during their stay in this country but unfortunately limited time prevented him from telling more of his journey into other countries.

At the conclusion Mrs D. W. Hursthouse thanked the Professor most sincerely for his very interesting talk.

Arts And Crafts WARM WEATHER PREVENTS DISPLAY OF NEW FASHIONS

Hawke's Bay Jockey Club's Autumn Meeting In Hastings

The warm, sunny weather in Hastings yesterday added greatly to the pleasure of the day's outing for the women who attended the first day of the Hawke's Bay Jockey Club's autumn meeting. It did, however, prevent any display of new autumn wear which proved a disappointment to those who are not the keenest followers of the actual races.

In many cases almost mid-summer wear was not at all out of place and for comfort was undoubtedly best. Hats with these ensembles were, of course, of a smaller type than is usually seen at the summer meetings. Gay floral frocks under light-weight wool coats were frequently seen and short-sleeved, fine wool frocks looked smart, but tailored suits were definitely in the majority and there was little to be seen that gave any idea of the trend of coming autumn fashions.

At the conclusion of the Hawke's Bay Cup race Mrs G. D. Beatson, the wife of the club president, presented the cup to Mr Jeffares, the owner of the winning horse, Rakanui. Mrs Beatson looked smart in her frock of black silk with floral stripes in fuchsia shades. This was worn under a black tailored coat with black hat and silver fox fur.

Others present were:

Modern Home Cookery

ELECTRICAL GUIDE WITH RECIPES

Every woman will want to possess a book recently published by Whitcombe and Tombs Ltd., which is a new and revised edition of Modern Home Cookery and Electrical Guide. This most inexpensive little book is really excellent value and from front cover to final page the information is just what every housewife wishes to know.

The opening chapters are devoted the information is just what every housewife wishes to know.

The opening chapters are devoted to the uses of electricity in the home with splendid advice as to how to care for and use economically the various electrical appliances. There are also parts devoted to the correct reading of the meters, the causes of shocks and how to avoid them and a variety of hints for uses of electricity.

These chapters are followed by some splendid charts for cooking with suggestions as to the heat and time required for the cookery of all types of food. There are also some very useful facts as to food values and kitchen measures.

In the latter part of the book will be found a wonderful variety of every kind of recipe and these will prove very helpful not only to housewives who possess an electric cooker but to those users of other cooking methods as well.

It has been said that well-cooked food promotes health and contentment of mind and body, and so the value of any measure which assists in its provision cannot be lightly overlooked.

COMMENT ON THE FILMS

Story of a renegade Englishman who, in an effort to "get rich quick" tries to sell his country's secrets to the enemy, "TRAITOR SPY" gives Bruce Cabot one of the finest dramatic roles of his career.

"CHEER, BOYS, CHEER" marks the return of Nova Pilbeam to the screen after a long absence, and is the story of the attempts of a big brewery to swallow a small compe-titor. Edmund Gwenn also has a prominent part.

Replete with thrills, mystery, and romance, the latest "Charlie Chan" picture, "MURDER OVER NEW YORK," casts Sidney Toler as the celebrated sleuth. His work this time is the defeating of a sabotage gang at work on giant bombers.

Marlene Dietrich, fresh from her triumph in "Destry Rides Again," has a further success in "SEVEN SINNERS," in which she is cast as an entertainer in South Seas cabarets, with John Wayne as one of the many suitors for her love.

The popular western star George O'Brien is starred in "LAWLESS VALLEY," a story of the West in pioneer days. O'Brien is cast as a fighting cowboy who sets out to clean up a rustler gang.

Featuring the song "Wish me luck as you wave me good-bye," and starring Gracie Fields, "SHIP-YARD SALLY" is the story of the efforts of a woman to bring back prosperity to the Clydeside.

America's most popular baby star, "Sandy," is featured with Stuart Erwin and Una Merkel in "SANDY GETS HER MAN," in which Erwin plays a fireman who has to turn Romeo to hold his job. Thrilling sequences result when "Sandy" is trapped in a burning building.

Jack Oakie and Lucille Ball are co-starred once more in a further one of the Annabel series. This time one of the Affales Series. This time it is "THE AFFAIRS OF ANNA-BEL," in which Oakie plays the role of Press agent to a film star on the wane, played by Lucille Ball.

Miss Young, in this picture, will enact the role of a Philadelphia debutante who goes political and swings the state of Wyoming for Women's Suffrage. Based in part on historical incidents "Lady From Cheyenne" was written for the Scola.

The picture will be a pretentious one, and will afford Miss Young one of the most colourful characterisations of her career. The popular actives in her new vehicle will be personally directed by Frank Lloyd. It is her first film since her marriage, several months ago, to Tom Lewis, advertising executive.

to our minds, the best make-up story from filmdom in a long time is the following item about dynamic Ginger Rogers.

Ginger, as you probably know, is currently playing the title role in RKO Radio's version of "KITTY FOYLE." the best-selling novel by Christopher Morley. During the film, glamorous Ginger is called upon to enact a 16-year-old schoolgirl. It's the kind of a part that requires freckles, pigtails and the like.

Well, recently it seems that Ginger got all dressed up for the part and walked down the studio street toward the stage upon which "Kitty Foyle" was shooting. With her was RKO Radio's head make-up man, Mel Berns. Just as they reached the stage door, a six-year-old juvenile playing in another picture accosted Berns with that "I-want-to-see-you-alone" air. So Berns excused himself and walked off to a side with the youngster.

Her career, up to the time she was given the coveted lead in "Four Feathers" is a history of hard work, ingenuity and obstacles surmounted. To begin with her father, Fred Duprez, the famous comedian, disapproved of her ambition to become an actress, although he later gave her his blessing.

Her first screen appearance, after some success in a wide variety of parts with the Coventry Repertory Players, left her dissatisfied, and she returned to the Opera House in Coventry.

George Bancroft, Walter Hamp-den and Akim Tamiroff are almost totally unrecognisable in the picture; Paulette Goddard, Lynne Overman, Lon Chaney jun., and Francis McDonald, are elaborately disguised, and about 1000 of the extras are either swathed in false hair or smeared with heavy grease paint.

Changed Colour of Eyes. Hampden, America's most dis-tinguished Shakespearean stage star, actually changed the colour of his eyes for the picture—the first his eyes for the picture—the first time that has ever been done in Hollywood. Bancroft's nose and cheek bones were built up, and he wore a wig hanging to his should-ers; Tamiroff wore neither beard nor false features, but by means of minute pencilling of his face and the use of a wig, changed his ap-pearance.

Paulette Goddard darkened her skin, dyed her light brown hair black, smeared it with bear grease, and achieved the appearance of a half-breed girl. Lynne Overman wore a false nose and heavy red mutton-chop whiskers, and both Lon Chaney jun. and Francis McDonald went in heavily for false hair

FRIDAY, MARCH 28, 1941.

THE WOMAN IN BLUE

Women have always wanted to join the police force, and it has remained for a Labour Government to remove the barriers and let them be sworn in.

Perhaps the uniform is irresistible. Men are susceptible enough in all conscience to the appeal of the kilt, the braided tunics studded with metal buttons, the Sam Browne belts and all the martial accoutrements that are the prerogative of the Army officer. So much so that a cynic once observed that if all ranks were obliged to parade in dungarees and billycock hats, without brass bands, there would be an end to the war business in a week. Probably he was a pacifist or a communist, but he had a shrewd appreciation of human

A woman, on the other hand, is expected to react to the glamour of a uniform, even if it only covers the manly chest of a policeman or a fireman. Either looks well in a corner by the kitchen stove on a cold night, when a piece of pie and a cup of coffee go a long way to reconciling the wearer to a resumption of his beat on the silent streets, or to a false alarm from a suburban call box. But put a man in a soldier's uniform, and he can gladden more women's hearts in an afternoon than he could by wearing the best tailored "civvies" for a month.

Why, therefore, should a woman in this age of equality be denied the opportunity of earning her living as a uniformed member of the police force? London policewoman look decidedly smart in their trim, well-cut uniforms, and even if they are a little more utilitarian in appearance than some of the uniforms provided for the women who are joining up with the military transport and Army auxiliary services, they are sufficiently distinctive to be noticed with approval.

As a vocation a policewoman's lot, if not as happy, will certainly provide more varied experiences than one that centres round pots and pans and cradles. Judging by the prowess of women athletes they will be quite equal to making arrests if the necessity to do so should arise. The London policewoman's training includes a course in jiu-jitsu, and the mere man when tapped on the shoulder by a hefty female exponent of the art will be wise to go quietly.

Not that a knowledge of how to overpower an obstreperous man is always without embarrassment. It is one thing for the policewoman to jiu-jitsu her man and sit on him, but in the absence of reinforcements it may be a problem what to do next.

Sometimes a little womanly guile will solve a difficult situation, as when a troublesome inebriate, on being spoken to by a London policewoman became positively fatherly and warned her of the dangers of the streets at a late hour of the night. Gallantly he offered to see her safely home. She accepted his escort and reached the nearest police station just as he was becoming affectionate.

Anyhow, the exchange of a cook's rolling pin for a policewoman's baton is one more step towards the emancipation of the sex, so why not?

ROYAL REVOLT

Whether it has any major influence on the course of the war or not, the revolt of King Peter of Yugoslavia, supported by the armed forces and the people, is a resounding blow for the German New Order.

King Peter II, who has rejected the Government of his uncle, the Regent (Prince Paul), was born on September 6, Under Yugoslav law he will come of age next September. He is the representative of a dynasty which was founded in 1804 by Kara-George Petrovitch, who first raised the standard of Serbian revolt against Turkish rule. Not the least heroic of the present King's ancestors was his grandfather, Peter I, under whom Serbia won back much of her original territory from the Turks in the Balkan Wars of 1912-1913, who organised the epic defence against the Austro-German onslaught in 1914, and who lived to see the foundation of the greater Kingdom of Yugoslavia.

To-day it seems that there is yet a chance that Yugoslavia may live up to its great traditions.

REDUCED LIGHT SCHEME

BLACKOUT UNDER REVIEW

NAPIER POSITION

Steady Progress Revealed

"Breaches of the Reduced Lighting Regulations carry heavy penalties," said the chairman of the Reduced Lighting Committee (Mr H. H. Wylie), addressing a special meeting of the Napier E.P.S. wardens in the Borough Council Chambers last night.

"The regulations provide for a penalty of £50 or three months' imprisonment and in addition a fine of £10 a day could be imposed in the case of a continuing offence," he

of a continuing offence," he

Mr Wylie told the wardens that his committee had been the first to function and that it had had to profunction and that it had had to proceed slowly so, that there yet remained much to be done. Explaining the constitution and authority of wardens, Mr Wylie said that the E.P.S. authorities had very wide powers and that some of those powers were in turn delegated to a number of sub-committees. Although the response to the call for wardens had been excellent he was of the opinion that small bands of workers would prove more effective.

Damages Claims The speaker said that the Reduced Lighting Committee would look to the wardens for co-operation and explained that they would be precluded from any claim for damages arising out of the execution of their duties duties.

Complaints had been received about street lights that continued to burn while the occupants of houses were required to screen their lights, said Mr Wylie. He said that there had been an unfortunate delay of one day in screening lights on the Marine Parade. Otherwise the committe would have escaped criticism, "The immediate problem facing the committee was the screening of lights visible from the sea," continued Mr Wylie. "This was the bork which the committee concentrated on."

An inspection of the Napier hills from Havelock North revealed a lesser degree of glare than in the case of Hastings, Mr Wylie said.
"The restriction of lighting was a difficult task for those of us who had spent some years in encouraging its use," he said.

British Procedure

British Procedure

Because of its progress the Reduced Lighting Committee had suddenly been confronted with the question of control and after much discussion had decided to adopt the procedure followed in England.

In regard to the activities of the wardens, Mr Wylie explained that there was bound to be a little duplication and expressed the hope that people would not be annoyed. In the near future all wardens would be issued with badges and warrants of authority.

The speaker said that a number of people had developed the habit of switching lights on and then pulling blinds down before they retired. This had the effect of undoing all the good work and the process should be reversed. Mr Wylie also mentioned that other people invariably opened their front doors before turning the lights off.

Wardens' Duties

Wardens' Duties Mr Wylle said that the wardens were required to request the people in their respective zones to comply with the blackout requirements. In the event of non-compliance there was no need to create ill-feeling. The garden would report the matter to the chief warden who would in turn refer it to the Reduced Lighting Committee. Written warning would then be issued to the offender and finally the police would assume and finally the police would assume control of the situation.

A suggestion that in order to avoid any misunderstanding, the regulations should be made applicable to all lights, was ruled out by Mr Wylie, who said that the committee had jurisdiction over the lights facing the sea only.

Evacuation Plans Revealed

NAPIER SCHEME

"The essence of a warden's duty is tact," said the secretary of the Automobile Association (Hawke's Bay), Mr C. V. Freedman, addressing a gathering of E.P.S. wardens in Napier last night.

"Although all wardens possess the pressary authority, they are re-necessary authority, they are requested merely to ask people to conform with the regulations," he said.

Mr Freedman said that all war-

Mr Freedman said that all wardens would shortly be asked to participate in the taking of a census of their respective zones. The idea was to ascertain the extent of transport requirements in the event of the necessity for evacuation arising. All cars would be noted so that the amount of additional transport required for a given area would be a known quantity.

The occupants of the houses in the various zones would be advised concurrently of the location of their respective wardens, so as to avoid confusion in the event of an emergency.

Captain Turnbull, the organiser of the E.P.S. scheme in Napier, said that plans for evacuation had been made not because that measure was ilkely.

"It is one of the least likely steps to be taken, but the hardest to get away with without preparation," said Captain Turnbull.

He said that there were sufficient cars in the borough to transport the population to safety. A central station, preferably at a cross road, would be established. At this central station, wardens would attach large stickers to the windscreens when the respective warden was satisfied that a car was carrying its maximum load. No car would be allowed to leave the borough without a sticker, he said.

The population would be trans-

These were: The manpower situation, the manufacture of munitions, the cultivation of linen flax, the reclamation of waste materials, the supply of oil fuels, and the position in connections with the shortage of shipping for primary produce.

Mr Fraser said that a full explanation was also made of the Government's policy regarding lighting restrictions and the impressment of motor vehicles for the Army and of rifles for the Home Guard.

The committees of the council met on Tuesday and the reports which they submitted to the council were fully discussed. The recommendations made by the council will come up for early consideration by the War Cabinet, concluded the Prime Minister.

WASHINGTON, March 26.
Congressional sources disclosed to-day that the United States Army is testing a new high-explosive described by its inventors as 60 per cent more powerful than T.N.T.

Members of the Military Committee of the House of Representatives said that, if the explosive proved satisfactory, it would be particularly valuable for anti-submarine depth bombs.

"The British could use a lot of it right now if it is as good as we are told," one legislator said.

Members of the committee said that some of the nation's leading scientists were responsible for the development of the explosive, and they said it would cost only about one-third as much as T.N.T. to produce. Existing plants could be used for its manufacture with year little duce. Existing plants could be used for its manufacture with very little change.

GUARDS FOR VITAL POINTS

Additional Volunteers Wanted

There is still a shortage of returned soldiers in the Guards (Vital Points) Company in the Central Military District, and an endeavour is being made to secure volunteers for this work. (By Telegraph—Press Association.) PARLT, BLDGS, March 27.

The Prime Minister (the Rt. Hon. P. Fraser) moved tonight that the House should rise until 2.30 p.m. on June 25 provided that, should the necessity arise in the meantime, the Speaker should be empowered to call it together.

He gave the information, published in the Press recently, that an invitation had been extended to him by the British Government to visit London, and said that he would probably not be back in time for the resumption of the session.

In his absence the Minister of Finance (the Hon. W. Nash) would be Acting-Prime Minister.

Mr Fraser added that he would ister all the goodwill in the world, but said he would have an uncomfortable feeling if, during the next three months, the urgent problems

The Leader of the Opposition (Mr S. G. Holland) said he was sure that Mr Fraser would discharge his mission with dignity and with satisfaction to all concerned.

Mr Fraser was going Home to consult the authorities, and the whole of New Zealand to a man would be behind him.

He would ask the Prime Minister to convey to the King and Queen a message of unswerving loyalty and appreciation of the manner in which they had given the people of the Empire a lead at the present time, and also to convey to Mr Winston Churchill New Zealand's grateful appreciation of all he was doing.

STATE TENANTS' RIGHTS

FURTHER DISCUSSION IN HOUSE

LOCAL ELECTIONS

By Telegraph—Press Association.
PARLT. BLDGS., March 27.
When the Local Elections and Polls Amendment Bill was committed to-day the Minister of Internal Affairs (the Hon. W. E. Parry explained that the contentious part of the clause which gave State tenants the right to vote on loan proposals had been eliminated from the Bill.
State tenants in county council areas, however, were still given the right to the franchise as far as the selection of councillors was concerned.

Deletion Suggested. When the Leader of the Opposition (Mr S. G. Holland) indicated that he desired that the clause should be cut out in its entirety, the Minister said he was afraid that the committee would not agree to such a course.

The Hon. A. Hamilton: How many State tenants are involved?

The Minister said he could not state the exact number, but it was the question of principle that mattered.

Representatives of counties did not want a change, but it was considered that State tenants in counties should have the right to vote for councillors, and the Bill gave that right. State tenants, however, could not vote for loans.

Too Contentious.

Mr H. S. S. Kyle (Nat., Riccarton) said he would like such a contentious Bill to be withdrawn. In his opinion it was wrong at such a time to bring in such contentious legislation.

In its place he suggested that the Provision For Reserves.

As far as facing up to problems was concerned, Mr Fraser said that provision had been made for reserves and actually millions of pounds had been expended in building up stores of raw materials for the factories.

The responsibility would be the Government's if the country were let down. No one would suggest that keeping the House in session was going to help in the solution of the problems. There would be hard times ahead, he said, but he believed that as a result of the co-operation that had been extended in the last few days from the community, the country would come triumphantly through any crisis that might arise. legislation.

In its place he suggested that the Prime Minister should bring down a measure to suspend local body elections this year. In that case he would support him gladly, and he was sure that 95 per cent. of the public would be behind such a proposal

He contended that it was unfair that State tenants residing in a county should be able to put up a candidate for a seat on a county council. Such a man would be difficult to defeat in a local election, and he would have a say in the spending of money which the rate payers provided.

"Have No Say."

"Have No Say."

The Rt. Hon, P. Fraser said that some 700 or 1000 tenants were affected under the Bill. As far as counties were concerned, State tenants had no say in the communities in which they resided, but he recognised that it was undesirable for the State to enter into local politics. An anomalous position was created in respect to tenants paying rates through their rents.

Mr Fraser also gave a hint that the Government might examine a plan whereby State tenants would pay their rates separately in order to give them responsibility and the vote. If such an adjustment were made through the State Advances Department requiring tenants to nay rates thay could have a vote. "Have No Say." Department requiring tenants to pay rates, they could have a vote to-morrow both in respect of the personnel of councils and loan pro-vote.

Mr Holland said it was not in the best interests of the Dominion to have contentious legislation brought down now. The contentious provisions of Clause 7 of the Bill had been only partly removed.

There was no public demand for a provision that State tenants should have the right to vote in county council elections, he said.

The discussion on the Bill continued until the afternoon adjournment.

When the House resumed at 7.30, the Leader of the Opposition intimated that an arrangement had been reached between the two parties to let the Bill go through. The Opposition, he said, had registered its protest on those portions of the Bill with which it did not agree and it was prepared to facilitate the passing of the remainder of the measure.

SMALL FARMS ACT IS ANALYSED IN DETAIL

Provisions Under Fire In An Address At Hastings Last Night

"The point I have tried to make is that the Small Farms Act is a socialisation measure," said Mr R. M. Algie, organiser of the Freedom Association, in summing up his address in the Assembly Hall, Hastings, last night.

"It is true that certain assurances have been given to the effect that the burdensome and unpopular clauses would not be used, but it is equally true that Ministerial assurances have been given in the past and have been proved worthless.

Selecting for the immediate object of his "analytical criticism," the Act to which he thus referred Mr Algie gave an address which received in the main an attentive hearing by the large audience. There was a sprinkling of interjections from a section of the audience, which considerably enlivened proceedings, as the speaker retaliated with brisk repartee.

DAYLIGHT SAVING

DURING WINTER

Legislation For Period

Of Half-Hour

By Telegraph-Press Association.

Daylight saving is to continue throughout the year, according to an announcement by the Prime Minister (the Rt. Hon. P. Fräser) to-day.

WELLINGTON, March 27.

The aims of the Freedom Association were outlined in an opening address by the chairman (Mr R. D. Brown) who stated that the association had as its purpose the fostering of analytical thought regarding problems of the day, from the point of view of the greatest good for the greatest number of people rather than of short-lived temporary gain.

In these days, Mr Brown claimed, many people were afraid they were losing some of their traditional rights, and in the absence of direct evidence that their democracy was not in peril they had still the right to criticise.

The Coverestore

The Cornerstone.

"I regard the 1940 Small Farms Act as the cornerstone of the architectural structure of Socialism," said Mr Algie in opening his address. "It is the final piece in the whole edifice of the socialisation of the land"

the land."
Substantiating his contention, Mr Algie referred to what had been said and done in Great Britain on the same subject. He asked whether, when New Zealand soldiers overseas came back, they would find that the people they left behind had been true to their trust, or whether they would find that they had been stripped of the freedom the soldiers had been fighting to defend.
"You would think that it might be possible to obtain from the political leaders of the country a clear and unequivocal statement of what they are going to do," Mr Algie said. He added that no indication had been given as to the Government's intentions so that he could quote the presider of the Taymore's Union as felllaw courts.

The Act of 1940 was totalitarian justice. There was no other word for it, Mr Algie claimed. He believed sincerely that there was at present in this country more than enough socialisation, and more than should be was dragged into the war.

"Our men overseas have gone to law courts. "Our men overseas have gone to defend freedom, and we believe that freedom is best represented by democracy. The price of socialisation is too high," the speaker concluded.

English Example.

English Example.

To find the truth, Mr Algie suggested looking first at the example set in England, then at the political platform of the Labour Party and lastly looking at the Statute Book. In England the Labour Party had been in office on two occasions—though never with the complete majority gained in New Zealand. When in office it had been very silent about socialisation, although out of office it had ceaselessly "twittered and chirped" about the subject.

Mr Algie quoted the statements of a number of prominent Labour leaders in England on this subject, summing up their views in the one opinion that the socialisation of the land was to be brought about as soon as the Labour Government was in office, and that it was to be carried out on the main by an emergency committee, leaving Parliagency committee, leaving Parliament to discuss only the first prinried out. In New Zealand the policy was set out as the socialisation of the means of production, etc., without so specific a statement.

The Hon. F. Langstone was the only leader who had openly, consistently and unashamedly avowed the intention of socialising the land.

Last year there had been introduced the Small Farms Act, designed to settle discharged soldiers on the land. If that had been its only object it would have been one of object it would have been one of the most popular pieces of legisla-tion ever introduced. But why not. Mr Algie asked, call it a Discharged Soldiers' Act instead of tagging it on to an Act introduced for an entirely different purpose?

Land was then granted out on a 10-year renewable lease, and after four years the lessee had the right to obtain the freehold.

There was one provision, however—described by the speaker as "mischievous and wicked"—that stated that the compensation to be paid was to be fixed by the Land Board.

The 1940 Act, said Mr Algie, dealt with the subject in a totally different way, It enabled the Government to take any land, whether adequately used or not, and in any district

"I must emphatically protest at the way the evidence was presented to the Court. An attempt was made to say that the defendant was intoxicated, when he was not charged with being intoxicated," said Mr C. R. Sainsbury when representing Peter Manu, who appeared before Mr J. Mr J. W. Coddington, of the Transport Department told the Court that on the first day of the races the defendant drove past him while he was conducting the traffic coming from the races, and failed to stop when called upon to do so.

Two days later, on the second race day, he drove along the Parade and swerved to one side.

Concerning the State mortgage system Mr Algie said that the whole idea of socialisation was to lower interest rates artificially to get the people to borrow from the State instead of from private enterprise, and in this manner to defeat the "moneybags."

In the course of his address Mr Algie voiced criticism of legislation which provided for appeals by an ejected owner to be heard only by the state of the property of Alexander James Muir, of Putere.

Hawai was further charged with destroying a pig with intent to steal the carcase.

Mr C. R. Sainsbury pleaded not guilty on behalf of the accused.

The case for the police was conducted by Sergeant Moore.

Alexander James Muir said that he was leasing a property at Putere on which he kept about 130 pigs and on the day in question he heard dogs barking and went to investigate. He saw a man on top of a hill and another man running up the spur, followed by two dogs.

Witness stated that later he found a barrow pig that had been killed with a knife, and he took it home. One of the dogs he recognised as belonging to Hawai.

Constable L. Campagnola, who investigated the case, said that he visited Whale's camp on two occasions, and the second time he saw that a notice had been erected to the effect that any pigs found on his property would be destroyed.

The constable said that it would be impossible to mistake the pigs for wild ones, as they "were so tame" for wild ones, as they "were so tame they would eat your boots." Wil-liam Whale told the Court that the country round about was very heavy and bush covered, and he had killed many wild pigs on his property. It was very hard to tell a wild pig from many tame ones and he was not aware the pig killed belonged to Muir.

The Magistrate pointed out the seriousness of stealing animals.

Whale was fined £7, while the other two accused were each fined £2, and an order was made for the repayment of the value of the pig. On a further charge of destroying a pig Hawai was convicted and is to come up for sentence within 12 months if called upon. Supplying Liquor

"NATIONAL EVIL"

The French collapse was largely due to the national consumption of liquor, said the secretary of the New Zealand Alliance (Mr H. W. Milner) addressing a meeting of liquor reform sympathisers at Napier. The gathering was arranged by the Napier branch of the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

The French had become the greatest consuming nation of spirituous liquors, said Mr Milner. A large number of cases of D.T. were dealt with among the defenders of the Maginot Line. This aspect of France's national life had been referred to on numerous occasions by the leaders of the nation.

Increase of Convictions.

In the course of his address Mr Milner said that the increase of convictions for breaches of the liquor laws and drunkenness was reflected in the undermining of the moral fibre of the community.

A startling revelation of this fact in New Zealand was given by the 1940 annual report on justice statistics. Under the heading of divorces the following facts were gleaned: During 1939 there were 1243 petitions for dissolution of marriages (including seven for nullity). This figure represented an increase of 65 over the number of 1938 and was the greatest ever recorded.

Appellants Warned That The Position May Be Again Reviewed

"Although an adjournment sine die is sometimes granted in appeals on the ground of undue hardship, that does not mean that the appellant has been granted an exemption," said the president of the Wellington District Armed Forces Appeal Board (Mr W. F. Stilwell, S.M.) at the conclusion of yesterday's sitting in Napier.

"The ballotee is not released from his obligation to find someone to take his place and should in his own interests take advantage of opportunities in the interim," he added.

Associated with the president were Messrs. J. W. G. Browne and A. Parlane. The Crown Solicitor (Mr C. O. Bell) conducted the proceedings on behalf of the Army Department.

In view of the admissions made by the appellant, the appeal lodged by John Henry Leonard Golding, bootmaker, was dismissed. Golding bootmaker, was dismissed. Golding appealed on the grounds of undue hardship. He said that he had just completed his territorial training and asked that his re-entry into camp be postponed until the second overseas ballotees were mobilised. Golding said that while he was in camp he had had to employ help and that his business had suffered. In answer to the Crown Solicitor the appellant said that he was married towards the end of December.

Seaman's Appeal Pleading that it was in the public interest to retain his services in their present capacity, John Henry Merritt, an able seaman on the coastal trader Wainui, was granted an adjournment sine die. The appeal was supported by the Union Steam Ship Co. and the N.Z. Shipowners' Federation.

The appeal of Francis Ralph Conway, a farm labourer, Eskdale, was withdrawn by consent. The appellant stated that he had reconsidered the matter since the appeal had been ledged.

The appeals of Peter Henley Blakiston and Francis Ayland Oulds were adjourned sine die on the application of the Archbishop of New Zealand, who was represented by the Dean of Waiapu (the Very Rev. J. B. Brocklehurst).

Mr M. R. Grant who appeared in support of the Napier Harbour Board's appeal for Ralph Annand Simpson, assistant engineer to the board, called evidence to the effect that Simpson was indispensable. The board's engineer (Mr C. R. Davis), was enrolled in the Engineers' No. 5 Works Company and might not be available in the event of an emergency. At present Simpson was engaged in the supervision of important harbour development works. The appeal was adjourned sine die.

HAWKE'S BAY MEETING OPENS IN FINE STYLE

Rakanui's Cup Win; Kinneff Unlucky In Hack Sprint

(By The Barb)

The outstanding feature of the first day of the Hawke's Bay Jockey Club's autumn meeting was the easy win of the promoted hack, Rakanui, who won the 1941 Hawke's Bay Cup from start to finish, a happening seldom recorded in this particular race.

One must go back many years to find a horse winning this event from go to whoa; in fact, it has only been done on very few occasions, and a glance back at the record will show how very few have been successful who have just been classified from the lower grade.

All the events were well contested, although there were two or three decisive wins.

Malacca, having his first race in a hurdle event, never looked like losing, as after the field had settled down he was in on the rails in third position, going most comfortably. Going into the back stretch he went up to join the leader to take over down he was in on the rails in third position, going most comfortably. Going into the back stretch he went up to join the leader to take over command half a mile from home, and from then on it was only a question of how much he would win

Hyderabad who was second past the post had every chance being placed in the middle of the field throughout, and it was more his condition that carried him into second money than his ability. Opoho did not appear able to go with his field in the early stages, although the pace was never fast. Half a mile from home he made a forward move to look as though he would make a race of it, but it was only half hearted and a moderate third was his best. However, the race should do him good.

The top weight was in the rear most of the way, but did not strike out over the concluding stages in her usual stride. Making the home turn her rider took her off the track altogether. This was not Queen's Dream's best form. Helios was next to finish. Royal Stuart after leading for about a mile stopped to a walk, to be many lengths away from the winner at the finish. Lady Stella ran as her condition appeared in the bird cage—last.

A BLANKET FINISH

The hack sprint resulted in a titanic struggle over the concluding stages for the first four horses to flash past the winning post abreast, the judge being the only one to know what had won. Battlegain, who got the verdict, was in fifth position after they had gone a furlong and coming to the home bend had run up into fourth position and from then on gradually forged ahead and Always in a handy running position he was fourth at the three furlong post when he met with interference from Battlegain, which cost the favourite many lengths. Making the home turn he again met with trouble. However, he was undaunted and came again, falling by the narrowst of margins. He appeared to be the best of good things beaten.

Flying Spy ran a good race and is due any day now for a win. She did not have the best of passages arely, but after that had nothing to complain of. She finished most resolutely to participate in the blanker finish. Sunny Knight had every chance, but was not equal to the was fourth. Time, 1.271.5.

She finished most resolutely to participate in the blanker finish. Sunny Knight had every chance, but was not equal to the winner on the day. He was not in the same running position early in the race as the winner, but it made no difference to the ultimate result.

away from the winner.

Khurja, who was rather big in condition and so in need perhaps of a race, ran fairly well to finish fifth just ahead of Black Majesty, who was very sore. After him came Hinerangi. However it was a race confined at the finish to the first four horses but as mentioned here. four horses, but as mentioned be-fore Kinneff should have won and it was surprising that his interference went unchallenged. TRAINER GREENE AGAIN.

Following are the acceptances for the second day of the Hawke's Bay Cup neeting:—

Another fine finish resulted in the Maiden for the consistent place get-Maiden for the consistent place get-ter, Catanach, to be at last reward-ed for a straight-out win. He was ridden a perfect race by B. H. Mor-ris, who bided his time and made a run at the right moment to get up in time to gain the verdict. Singa-pore, who fretted somewhat at the barrier, was always in the picture to have every show, if good enough, but perhaps it was the want of a race that saw him weaken over the last few chains.

Support, the favourite, drew No. 1 at the barrier, and although not first out was never further back than fourth or fifth. On the rails throughout and at the distance to get a clear run she responded in a half-hearted manner to finish a fair. half-hearted manner to finish a fair fourth. Her performance did not justify the confident backing. Kinstep, who delayed the start through having to return to have a through having to return to have a plate adjusted, ran a game race for her first start, and she collected third money. The extra half furlong to-morrow should see her perhaps doing even better. Next to finish were Myrna Loy and Nalla ahead of a bunch.

RAKANUI ALL THE WAY.

Rakanui stamped himself as a class galloper when making his debut in open company, and in a cup field right up to the standard assumed the lead immediately the 15 runners took up their running positions, and was never headed. Half-way down the structure to see the structure of the structur down the straight he was just coasting along with his young pilot having a look over his shoulder and a smirk on his face, thinking how little chance the others had. It was ndeed a fine performance.

Little Robin showed a definite re turn to form by acting as runner-up, so that his turn is not far distant. Authoress ran her best race to date. Young Howell always had her in a handy position in the running and covering not an inch more than was necessary, brought her along at the finish to collect third money. Kathallar was fastly builting when had bella was fourth. Pulling very hard running down the back she met trouble at the half mile bend and again at the three furlong post. However, turning for home she was

However, turning for home she was in a good position, but failed to come on when expected.

Hunting Cat, with his 8lbs overweight, ran a fine race for fifth, just ahead of Piastre and Bold Step. Lady Furst and Diana Tetrix were the last to finish. The latter was doing nicely in about fifth position three and a-half furlongs from home but she received a very nasty check which spelt finis to any place chance she may have had.

having her first race, pleased by collecting the second money. The Whipper, not a good beginner, came on over the latter stages for third. Captain Star also finished well for fourth, as in the early running he was well back. After him came Greek Dancer and Condole. The last to finish were Uganda and Recompense. The winner simply outclassed the field.

ANOTHER FAVOURITE SCORES. Another well-backed favourite, Phyto, scored in the Heretaunga.

Phyto, scored in the Heretaunga. Early in the running she was last but one, while at the five furlong post she was still in the same position, but within the next furlong Wiggins had rushed her up into third, where she remained until turning for home. At the distance she appeared to be making hard work of it, but responding under punishment, went on to win decisively by three lengths.

Arabic, the runner-up, came from fairly well back, but the winner was too good on the day. Indian Sun appeared as though he would come on and win a little over a furlong from the final peg, and appeared to have the measure of Phyto, but he weakened and only gained third at the finish. Tailed off early Kalika finished strongly for a good fourth, but was lame on returning to scale. but was lame on returning to scale. Then came Pinocchio, Dainty Dell, Gold Craft, Chablis and All Quiet, while Oragon was last to pass the winning post.

NIGHT ERUPTION WINS.

NIGHT ERUPTION WINS.

Night Eruption came from the clouds to triumph in the open sprint. She was never in the first four during the early running, but over the last furlong and a-half came with a great run to win on the post by a head. Poutatau acted as co-pacemaker with Hui for most of the way, and when he appeared as though he had the race within his grasp the winner came and took
