Full Force Of German Army Flung Against Russia

BOMBERS POUND BASES

Devastating Raid Reported On Odessa

(United Press Association—Copyright.) (Received June 23, 11.5 p.m.)

LONDON, June 22. The German armies have flung their full force against Russia and are moving en masse across the frontiers while in the far north and south the ends of the vast German line are turned inwards. Wave after wave of packed bomber formations go on overhead, pounding the Russian air bases and dov.

The German news agency says that the German attacks from East Prussia were undertaken without artillery preparation to surprise the Russians. The infantry waited opportunities to break through the enemy's lines and the Pioneers succeeded in preventing the destruction of important bridges.

Authorities in Ankara estimate that 125 divisions of Germans are opposing Russia, with an average of 15,000 to each division. In addition, 25 Rumanian divisions are mobilised along the Russian frontier. The Russian forces on the western frontiers are estimated at 150 divisions.

Triple Drive

Triple Drive

Early German reports indicated that fighting was going on along the whole Finnish-German-Rumanian border with the Soviet—a distance of 1500 miles. The Germans are apparently attempting three major drives—one into the rich Ukrainian wheat-fields, the second along the Baltic coast to Leningrad, and the third a joint German-Finnish attack across the Karelian Isthmus towards Leningrad.

A German communique issued today said: "Fighting broke out early this morning on the Soviet frontier. An enemy attempt to fly into East Prussia was repelled with heavy losses. German fighters shot down a number of Red bombers."

A special communique issued at Bucharest states that German troops massed on the Soviet frontier went into action with Rumanian forces this morning. General Antonescu, Rumanian Chief of State, sent the following message to the army: "I command you to cross the Pruth River and liberate your brothers from the yoke of Bolshevism." The Pruth River forms the boundary between Rumania and the Soviet-occupied Rumanian province of Bessarabia.

The "Daily Telegraph" says that the offer to help Russia, referred to by Mr Winston Churchill, was made when the Foreign Minister (the Rt. Hon. Anthony Eden) saw the Soviet Ambassador (M. Maisky). useless.
German light artillery and machine-gun fire was opened at 3.35 a.m., and infantry advanced past a frontier post on the Prussian border, the correspondent adds. The Russians were prevented from blowing up an important bridge. German troops were soon deep in Russian territory. There was little enemy fire.

A correspondent of the Finnish border says that the Russian fire was weaker after the Germans had penetrated the frontier posts, and prisoners were captured in a few minutes

The only news of the fighting comes from Berlin or from the radio in German-occupied countries. It is stated in London that Berlin appears to be curiously anxious to boast of having attacked Russia without warning.

Hostilities are stated to have begun two hours before the German Ambassador gave notice of it to Moscow. A claim is made that hostilities opened without artillery preparation in order to take the Russians by surprise.

"Useless to Resist"

In a broadcast the Berlin radio told the Russians that it was useless to resist the German attack, "You are facing the best army in the world, which in a few weeks the world, which in a few weeks defeated the strongest armies in Europe," it says. "Therefore, Russian soldiers, turn round your bayonets and guns and drive your Bolshevik overlords from your country. Only when the Jews and commissars are driven out will there be care and justice in Russia. The German Army intends to free you from Bolshevik exploitation. Down In Baltic to the Whole from the Baltic to the Baltic to the Walling the first two are situated 10 miles and the third six miles from the second part the Germans made contact with the vanguards of the Red Army, who repulsed the enemy after stubborn fighting, inflicting heavy losses. "The enemy succeeded in obtaining slight practical successes in the guns. We shot down 65 'planes."

The Germans claim that bomber formations heavily and successfully attacked air bases, anti-aircraft positions, troop concentrations and defence works in Russia and Russian-occupied territory.

The extent of the German progress on land so far claimed is that German troops crossing the river Bug (Poland) under a flerce artillery barrage have established a bridgehead and penetrated deep into Russian territory. Infantry continue to pour in large columns, encountering little resistance.

German armoured units continue to advance in Bukovina (Rumania) and have occupied the town of Cradov.

LONDON, June 23. The first definite news of Russian offensive action was a Finnish communique stating that Soviet 'planes flew over Finland raiding several points inland, also warships off the coast. Other Finnish vessels near Turku started fires at some places. Two coast defence ships, the Ilmarinen and the Vainamoinen, are reported to have been bombed near the island of Korko.

Large numbers of Soviet 'planes bombed the southeastern frontier of Finland.

The first news of naval action is a German news agency claim that torpedo-boats sank a 4000-ton Russian vessel, also a fishing boat in Russian waters.

A new Allied drive into south-eastern Syria is indicated by a communique issued at Vichy, which says: "Important the coastal section."

The Vichy radio stated that British naval units are bombarding without interruption the coast between Sidon and Beirut, probably preparing for an offensive by Australian troops. The firing has been particularly heavy in the Damour region.

Violent fighting is going on in the Jezzin and Merjiyun districts.
The correspondent of the Associated Press of Great Britain at Damascus reveals that the Australians played a gallant role in the capture of Mezze, which was a target for very heavy Vichy fire. The Japanese Press refrained from speculating whether Japan would observe her treaty obligations. However, they expect Japan to follow independent diplomacy intended to achieve her major objective of a new order in East Asia. Papers maintain an impartial at-itude. German sources say that Germany will not ask Japan for anyhing in connection with the Russian hostilities.

Authoritative Japanese circles expect the Soviet to send a Note to the Foreign Office asking Japan to observe strict neutrality. Speculation regarding the future Japanese policy is forbidden.

STALIN LINE IS NOT STRONG

Red Air Force Raids East Prussia

United Press Association—Copyright (Received June 24, 2.10 a.m.) LONDON, June 23.

As was to be expected in the early days of the Russo-German campaign, news is scarce. The most interesting item is the first Russian communique which shows that the only German advances admitted so far are across the demarcation line formed by the River Bug, which cuts Poland in two. The Germans expect to reach the so-called Stalin Line on the old Soviet frontier soon, which is likely if reports are true that the Red Army is withdrawing claim to know the Stalin Line and to be thoroughly unimpressed by it to there. German military circles be thoroughly unimpressed by it.

A report from Ankara says that the Red Army has taken the offensive on at least one sector of the Polish front.

The Polish realist and will not happen a second time. Not quite so emphatic, but equall enthusiastic, Joachim von Ribbon to the polish and the polis On the Offensive Sive on at least one sector of the Polish front.

The Berlin radio, claiming the crossing of the River Bug, said that long columns had penetrated deer into Russian territory.

The Berlin radio claims wide-spread and successful raids on Russia but does not mention the localities. It says that numerous aerodromes have been destroyed, also many grounded aircraft. "We repeatedly bombed motorised columns, troop concentrations, rail and road communications and also several important barracks, causing great havoc," said the broadcast.

It admits that Russian 'planes raided East Prussia at several points causing slight damage.

The Red Navy.

Reliable Turkish sources at Ankara state that a number of Russian destroyers and submarines have arrived in the vicinity of the Bosporous.

General Ion Antonescu is reported to have assumed command of the German and Rumanian forces in Russian tension may intervene is infantile."

Not quite so emphatic, Juachim von Ribbontrop, in August, 1939,: "Germany and Russias that that Russia of the when they were friends. The nonaggression pact is a firm and unalterable basis on which two great peoples who want to be at peace with each other and who now have established peace, will keep the peace."

Hitler was more explanatory in the Reichstag speech on August 6, 1939, when he said: "These arrangements show in an authentic manner that all these assumptions of German and so on are only an abortion of morbid imaginations."

His final effort, again in a Reichstag speech, on July 19, 1939, when he claimed that "German and Russian relations have been finally settled and any hope that new German-Russian tension may intervene is infantile."

General Ion Antonescu is reported to have assumed command of the German and Rumanian forces in Rumania, where a state of siege has been proclaimed. Women and children have been evacuated from Bucharest.

The Hungarian police detained Soviet Embassy officials at Budapest when attempting to escape by car in which important documents are said to have been found.

Not quite so emphatic, but equally enthusiastic, Joachim von Ribbontrop, in August, 1939; "Germany and Russia always fared badly when they were friends. Commonwealth official circles were startled by the swift march of war events yesterday. They attach much importance to the fact that Russia's entry into the war on the side of the democracies should immediately close a gap in the economic blockade. At the same time, it is felt that Hitler may soon be in a position to help himself to muchneeded commodities of war materials in the Russian territories at which he is aiming.

The Finance Minister (the Hon. J. L. Ilsley) announced to-day that the 600,000,000-dollar Victory Loan had closed, over-subscribed, to 710,958,000 dollars cash, to which would be added 95,875,000 dollars for conversions.

The total numbers of subscribers is 851,698, which is the greatest in Canada's history.

The eded commodities of war later labeled to limited the constitution of the current sals in the Russian territories at which he is aiming.

The official attitude at Canberra is summed up to-day as follows: "While Russia's resistance may turn out to be unbelievedly good news for the democracies, the Government prefers for the time being to view the prospects with extreme caution."

German Use Of Drugs

CAPTURED ARTICLES

The use of drugs to steady the nerves and support declining morale is growing in the German army. This is revealed by the Ministry of Economic Warfare, which has gathered a strange assortment of articles from many different sources for examination, says the London "Daily Telegraph."

The analysis shows how the Germans are becoming deficient in various commodities as a result of our blockade.

Dr. Phelps, a Ministry expert, said that from an examination of the pockets of men captured at Lofoten it could be said that the drug habit nad increased considerably among monthly meeting in St. Andrew's Hall, Hastings, Mrs C. M. Haggett presided. The Bible study was ably conducted by Mrs Persen, who took for her text "Lo I am with you always, even unto the ends of the world."

Miss Tobin, Anglican missionary from Kweilin Kuangse, China, who was the guest-speaker, was warmly welcomed by the nurses. She told of her life and work there, and emphasised the value of prayer and love in China. Years ago the churches had started the Christian teaching, but many people seemed to have forgotten this and the war there had brought numbers back to Christ and His teaching. The schools, colleges and hospitals were all doing good work and where many were antagonistic towards religion before, they were now asking to be taken to the missionary hospitals for preference as it was here they received such love and comfort.

The speaker said that the Chinese probationers were only 16 years of age and doing noble work. There were only two trained nurses and a number of students at first and one doctor, who gave two hours a day to the hospital. When the Japanese bombed the town the chapel and men's ward were used for soldiers and caves, too, where they were car-

Madame Chlang Kai-Shek was veyr sympathetic with the hospital work and helped by her patronage. The Government was asking for more and more missionaries and were enrolling hundreds who wanted to become Christians. They had not enough Bibles to cope with the demand. Miss Tobin also spoke of the Burma road and how she had ridden along in a transport lorry. The capture by bandits of Miss Tobin will be remembered by many New Zealanders and she told of how she was released by faith and prayer. of her many weeks of captivity with these men. Steel Wool Of

Great Use

Lord Beaverbrook is the has had three careers—three entirely distinct successes, writes H. N. Casson.

For which of the numberless modern inventions have women most cause to be grateful? This question excited a good deal of argument at a gathering of women. One matron stouty asserted that steel wool for cleaning pots was a boon for which the discoverer should have been knighted, and she wondered who it could have been. Nobody was sufficiently interested to try to answer the query, but several housewives the query but several housewives the query but several housewives the query, but several housewives the query, but several housewives the query but several housewives the query, but several housewives the query had been problem to a University. It is a wise plan to select a time when one is not busy to tear the bundle of steel wool into small sizeable pads. A pair of stout gloves should be donned for the purpose. Ready-to-use pads are also available. Women whose hands easily become tender and soft from being too much in water should endeavour to accustom themselves to wearing rubber gloves.

Dossible.

By birth, he is a Canadian. His father was a Scot in Edinburgh who emigrated to Canada. His father we went to a University. He didn't. At fourteen he went to work in a chemist's shop. He swept the shop, washed the bottles, and so on, Also, for a time he was a newsboy.

As it happened, in the same small town there was a young lawyer—I. B. Bennett—who afterwards became the Prime Minister of Canada. Bennett was the first man who appreciated young Max Aitken's abilities. He engaged the lad to be a clerk in his office.

The two men became lifelong friends. They now have homes near one another in England.
But clerking was too slow for Max Aitken. He branched out as a salesman of life insurance. He found this experience in salesmanship most valuable to him. He calls it "my university." He learned how to influence people.

At 21 he had a stroke of luck. He met an elderly banker—John L. Stairs. He suggested to this banker that the many small banks in the district should be amalgamated. The banker said, "Yes." Max Aitken plunged ahead and did the job. This gave him his first capital, £2000.

Then the banker sent him to Tinidad, to organise an electrical company. He did this and earned £10,000 more.

He then struck out on his own as a business organiser in Montreal.

As a pleasant reaction against the surfeit of "practical" wartime fashions that have been showing, designers in London and New York are presenting their new collections with novelty and romanticism as the keynote. Mark you, the practical element is not forgotten altogether, but it is subtly disguised under a veneer of ultra-femininity and with many attractive results.

One such outfit has a slim black skirt, a chalk white jacket, and with it you might consider the charm of a black open-necked shirt with a white Beau Brummel stock cosily wrapping the throat. The hat would be a dashing tricorne trimmed with a ribbon cockade in patriotic colours.

The "starchy" look, is another personalised fashion which sponsors the alliance of softly tailored little suits or dresses worn with much frou-frou in the way of crisp white collars and cuffs. These recall the modes of Regency days, and in particular those of the lovely Lady Hamilton. Hats of velvet flowers are the correct accompaniment.

HEALTH THROUGH CHIROPRACTIC BACKACHE: BACKACHE:

The seat of a backache is in the foundation of the back—the spinal column. This does not refer to the one-day backache that follows unusual exertion such as digging up the garden, but to the persistent, nagging, painful backache that hangs on seemingly without reason. To be rid of such a backache, get rid of the cause by having the spinal column restored to normal alignment by Chiropractic spinal adjustments. You'll be surprised how quickly the old ache will be a thing of the past.

A Chiropractic patient writes:

A Chiropractic patient writes:
For three years I suffered continually with backaches and severe pains in my ribs. I tried rubbing with ointment and liniment and then tried plaster applications, but with little result. I was told I had liver trouble, but I decided to try Chiropractic and after treatment by spinal adjustments I feel like a new person.

MOTHER SHOULD KNOW

The new member of the harbour board was attending his first meeting. The board was discussing a proposal to place two buoys at the entrance of the harbour for the guidance of mariners.

"I beg to propose as an amendament," said the new member "that one man should be placed there instead of two boys, as the latter are too young for such a responsible position."

Every mother should know of the money-saving, quick-acting refmedy for ALL Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Sore Throats, Influenza, etc., made by adding a 2/6 bottle of concentrated "HEENZO" to sweetened water. Quite simple, and the saving is tremendous, a 2/6 bottle of "HEENZO" makes 12/6 worth of the best Cough Mixture procurable. "HEENZO" has many purposes—take internally for the chest, gargle for sore throats, and use as a nasal antiseptic for Catarrh. All Chemists and Stores.

BLITZ FOR BLITZ

If Hitler and his satellites hoped that the German attack on Russia would confuse public opinion in Great Britain and the United States their line of reasoning has been working the wrong way. After eight years of Nazism in Germany people in the outside world would not be in the least surprised or confused at anything that originated in Berlin. The last real shock was the Russo-German Pact in 1939. After that anything might happen—and it did.

There is, however, another point to this question of confusion. What do the German people—assuming that they are still capable of thinking at all-make of the latest develop-For six years they were told, on the authority of the Nazi bible, that Russia and Russian Bolshevism were the arch-enemies of Germany; that Germany must expand to the east; that whatever happened in the rest of the world, Germany would never be secure until Russia was destroyed; and that the Russian people (consisting either of Mongolians or Jews) were a sort of pernicious blight on the face of the earth. Then, without any warning whatever, Ribbentrop went to Moscow in August, 1939, and signed a treaty of alliance with Stalin. Later, Molotov visited Germany and was feted. The anti-Russian passages in Hitler's "Mein Kampf" were carefully expunged, and the Germans were told to forget everything they had been led to believe about Russia. In fact, Bolshevism was not so bad after all.

To-day one can only presume that all the chopped-out parts of "Mein Kampf" are being restored and that the patient Germans are expected to learn them all over again. The fact that in 1939 the Fuhrer led Germany up the wrong lane is a detail; whatever may have happened between 1939 and 1941 is immaterial—Russia is all it was said to be before

If the Germans as a race possessed a sense of humour they would stop the war on the grounds that their Fuhrer apparently does not know his own mind. But the Gilbertian situation will be lost on the Germans in the grim reality of a new war—this time the dreaded war on two fronts.

It has been said by overseas commentators that the Nazi crusade against Russia is a gesture of despair. That may or may not be true, but there can be no question that if the Russians have really learned the lesson of their war with Finland and if they are better organised for a life-and-death struggle with Germany than they were in 1914, Hitler will be in a hopeless position. To-day he is staking everything on a swift victory. He has done the same thing many times, and every time he has won. It now remains to be seen whether Russia, with the help of the democracies, can draw Hitler into a trap.

From what we know of the vast Russian armies and the weakness of Russian organisation, mechanisation, and communications there does not seem to be much ground for hoping that the Soviet to-day can defeat the world's greatest war machine—the force which has overwhelmed France and a dozen other nations, great and small. At the same time it must be conceded that in this most fantastic of all wars the incredible very often happens. For instance who believed, eight months ago, that Greece would rise to heights of unparalleled heroism and sweep the great Italian forces out of her territory in a hopeless and humiliating rout?

Further, even if Germany achieves her object in the Russian campaign, she will not do so without heavy loss. The opening up of a new theatre of war in which the Germans are engaged on a vast scale will give Great Britain an invaluable opportunity to narrow the margin of advantage which Germany has held ever since the fall of France.

It is very certain that Stalin would have contrived somehow to stave off the war with Germany if he had been convinced of Russia's total inferiority in arms, for the dread of another Tannenberg has been a Russian nightmare for 27 years. With equal certainty it may be said that he has not accepted the Nazi challenge out of motives of sympathy for the British Empire. Russia is fighting to-day because Stalin believes that in the end the Soviet may get something out of the struggle and because, if Russia has no love for Great Britain, she has even less enthusiasm for the future possibility of a victorious Germany on her doorstep.

And in the meantime the German people are faced with a major war on the Continent while the growing strength of Britain deals them blitz for blitz in the air and on the sea.

GOOD PROSPECTS

By Telegraph—Press Association. CHRISTCHURCH, June 23. Describing the wheat and flour position in the Dominion as sound, the Minister of Supply (the Hon. D. G. Sullivan) said in an interview that the flour mills had sufficient stocks to last them until April 28, 1942, without touching any of the new harvest, which will begin to come in next January.

The prospects were, he said, that the 1942 harvest in New Zealand would be sufficient to carry the country on till the following year.

While in Australia last year, Mr Sullivan made arrangements for 27,000 tons of wheat to be shipped to New Zealand and stored for an emergency.

Up to date the Wheat Committee has handled 6,574,820 bushels, which is 350,000 more than at the same date last year.

Another link in the chain of early settlers of the district was broken with the death on Saturday evening of Mr James Butler, Waipukurau.

Although he had been in ill-health A small order paper was tabled at the monthly meeting of the Waifor some time, his death came suddenly.

Born in County Kerry, Ireland, in 1866, Mr Butler came to New Zealand at the age of eight years, travelling with his father. They settled first in the Waimate district, where Mr Butler's father was engaged in farming. After his marriage when in his early thirties, the deceased came to the North Island. He lived in Napier for a short time before travelling to the Waipukurau district about 40 years ago, when he was placed in charge of the Shorthorn cattle breeding activities at the Mt. Herbert Estate. He retained this position until the estate was subdivided when he purchased a property nearer town.

With his family he resided there up to the time of his death.

The late Mr Butler was best known among the earlier residents of or his enthusiastic support for Rugby football and in the days when trotting meetings were conducted on Pa Flat, he accorded this sport great support.

Until a few years ago, he was a travelling for his enthusiastic support for great support.

HAWKE'S BAY FIRMS

Furniture made from the conventional imported oak is somewhat scarce in many parts of the Domin ion, according to cabinetmakers and retail furnishers. The long delay from the time the timber is cut until it is sufficiently dry to use is one of the greatest difficulties faced by the trade, and in this connection the practice of kiln-drying is expected to relieve the position considerably. In this way timber can be prepared for use in three or four weeks instead of anything up to a year.

Matter For Consideration By BIRKOLOGY WINS Racing Conference

NOMINATION SYSTEMS

Some Clubs Flagrantly Break Racing Rule

(By THE BARB)

Early next month the New Zealand Racing Conference will hold its annual meeting at Wellington, when club representatives from all over the Dominion will be present. Many motions have been forwarded by racing bodies as well as amendments to the present Rules of Racing but there is one matter that could be tabled at this meeting and that is the abolishing of the wrong way in which some clubs have been accepting nominations for their race meetings.

The Rules of Racing say that nominations must be given in writing or, if telegraphed, must be confirmed in writing immediately and each entry shall be accompanied by the nomination fee. This rule has been broken for years as regalds the forwarding of fees, but more for convenience sake than for any other reason. However, there are clubs in New Zealand, particularly in the North Island, which have made the rule more or less a joke.

The arcticularly in the North Island, which have made the rule more or less a joke.

A few years ago, perhaps in the days of the depression, the enterprising secretary of a country club hit upon the idea of telling intending nominators they could enter their horses in as many races as they cared to and they could also accept, but with the understanding that they would be itable only for the nomination and acceptance fee in whatever race their horses started in.

This on the surface suited the battler-owner and it was nothing to see a horse nominated four and flive times at one meeting and accepting two and three times in one day. This care-free system fooled the public, as acceptances looked bright and good racing was expected, but they found on the day the scratching pen had been extensively used.

THE HABIT GROWING.

The habit is growing instead of diminishing, with the result that racing clubs which run their affairs without flouting the rules are unpopular with a certain class.

Owners, trainers, jockeys and others are expected to keep to the Rules of Racing strictly and, if they do not, suspension or some other penalty is meted out. It is time that the Conference took action and told the offending clubs to put their houses in order or their permits will be refused.

There is no advantage in this supposed liberality. An owner nominates his horse at the average fee of fl to see what has also been entered. The handicapper then does his job and if the owner is satisfied with the weights he accepts. But if every owner is allowed to nominate and accept without fee, nobody knows what is in the race, and nobody is better off in the long run—not even the secretary who has broken the Rules of Racing.

weights he accepts. But if every owner is allowed to nominate and accept without fee, nobody knows what is in the race, and nobody is better off in the long run—not even the secretary who has broken the Rules of Racing.

COMING HOME TO ROOST.

The Barb knows of some owners who have not been aware of this system nominating and accepting in good faith. Then on acquaintance with the acceptance list he decided that his chances were not appealing so forfeited, but after reading the scratchings wished he had made the trip. The Barb has had a fairly wide experience of racing, including a few years in a jockey club office, and passes this advice on to secretaries: "Never stuff your nominations or acceptances, as it is beguiling the public, who do not like it. You are fooling yourself and at the same time breaking the Rules of Racing."

TRACK AND PUBLIC FORM.
What a vast difference there is between track and public form! Last Tuesday morning Battle Gain and Gayest Son were associated in a five-furlong gallop for former to make a limback. Of Mr Alf Symes's four-year-old gelding. Not a great deal of notice was taken of the trial as Gayest Son, after being badly defeated a week previous by Kinkajou and Rhodes, two moderate second-raters, was considered useless on anything but firm going. Again last Thursday on the Hastings plough, good going, Diana Tetrix and Gayest Son were associated, with Diana Tetrix passing the winning post alongside her mate, but with her mouth wide open.

Came the seven-furlong race at Awapuni on Saturday and Hastings track watchers thought that Battle Gain was just about a "sitter," but if he should get beaten Diana Tetrix might be the one to bring it about. Result, Gayest Son first, Battle Gain second, and "Diana" down the lane. In mentioning Gayest Son's win, Bert Morris's fine horsemanship must be given credit. Bert has ridden many excellent races and finishes in his time but Saturday's effort was equal to the best. This horseman has recently accepted a position as private trainer to Mr F. Ormond, but it is to be hoped that he does not contemplate retiring from the saddle.
